(New) Editor's Letter

"HOW'S LIFE IN THE HOT SEAT?" That's the question everyone's been asking me since taking the helm at Muzik. Well, the answer is: "Bloody marvellous, thank you." Where else could anyone want to be other than editing the world's finest dance music magazine? A top gig and no mistake.

Muzik commands deep respect and affection in equal measure – among its readers, among big name DJs and among the movers, shakers and spinners in the dance community – for one very good reason. We have an unrivalled reputation for covering the very best in quality dance music.

Yes, we know what it means to lose it on a dancefloor, but we also know the joy of spending an entire Sunday afternoon leafing through our old vinyl. We get a rush from sniffing the musty fragrance of a fresh acetate. We can talk bollocks for hours about our favourite remix. And if we are found stumbling around in the darkness it's probably because we're searching for the cutting edge. Yes, we say to the world, we take our music seriously – you got a problem with that?

But don't think we're going to be resting on our laurels. There are big plans. . . very big plans. Plans so big we're having trouble fitting them into the office at the moment (we're literally knocking down walls). But fitted they will be, and when they are, you'll all know about it, and I know you'll be as excited as we are.

Finally, a quick brag: I've just spent the last couple of days updating the Muzik office stereo. Tough job, huh? Thanks to some nice people at Denon and Minipod it's looking pleasantly phat and you'll get to see the magnificent beast in all its completed glory next month. It's all about getting the essential things in life right. Right?

Muzikists Dr Bob Jones

The DJ, producer and Muzik soul don reaches for his prescription pad

What are you up to at the moment?

My East West Connection remix of M-Flo is coming out soon on Avex. And I'm going to Ireland, Norway and the Southport Soul Weekender.

First and most recent records bought?

The most recent was Sandra St Victor's 'Gemini' on Expansion. The first was Edwin Starr's 'My Weakness' on Motown. I was 12.

Dream person to work with?

Alive it would have to be The Sounds Of Blackness. Dead, it'd be John Coltrane and Miles Davis. They were always searching and pushed music to the limit.

Final message?

Look out for Chilli Funk, a force to be reckoned with!

"Yo, bum rush the ho"

Ho's sorry now

Dear Muzik Magazine, Armand Van Helden [Singles, issue 76] has given me new inspiration. His review of my recent collaboration with Spesh and Jerry Bonham, 'Deep Love 9' indicated that the record had "a sex vibe going on" and also that he'd "put this on if I was in a club and I'd pulled a ho' out of there."

From now on I am only going to produce ho-pulling sex vibe tracks and I will send them straight to Mr Van Helden. All you ho's had better watch out, because Mr Van Helden will soon have a fat case of ho-pulling sex records. Also, I'd like to request Beavis & Butthead as your next celebrity reviewers. Thank you, Jondi, Loöq Records, San Francisco

It's a well know fact that Armand has NO need of musical assistance when it comes to the pulling ho's. They flock around him like flies round, er, um, a leading house DJ.

Smokin' Jo and Corvin Dalek (inset) - can you spot the difference?

Trance in his pants

Dear Muzik

It's time you for you to stop dissing trance. I really dig your magazine, but you need to come clean. If you don't think trance is music, why keep the review column? You have that column because the music sells, right? And what does that make you? Credible? You call it commercial. You call it cheese. But you still review it.

People who call their music underground are just not good enough to be on Top Of The Pops. And people like you write about this so called underground to look cool. Try being cool for real instead.

Trance is the only music around that's not fronted by pretentious people. And that's why I love it. And that's why YOU hate it. How long will the two-step trend (it's not music, it's a trend, okay?) get until you consider it uncool? Like, two more months? Or hard house? That music has no soul whatsoever. When trance was at its peak you all loved Ferry Corsten. Now he's crap. What have you learned? Nothing. You need to get a different perspective on music. Or change the name of your magazine to 'Flavour Of The Month'.

Regards

DJ Emphatic, Sweden

(proud member of www.trance.nu)

Who said we hate trance? Some of it may be crap at the moment, but these things always go through phases. Also, are you talking about trance, progressive trance, or only trance that gets played on TOTP?

Hetzjagd auf Nazis

Hi Muzik,

This interview with Ellen Allien from Germany [Issue 76] is disgusting. Look at her T-shirt! The German Nazi symbol of an eagle! Most people in the Berlin techno scene didn't like her from the beginning. She was only ever interested in herself and in money. So why do you feature her?

There a lot of other people in Berlin and in London you could cover.

Alexander Powell, Berlin

The eagle's a symbol of Germany rather than Nazism, surely? Besides, Muzik prefers not to take sides in Berlin techno scene in-fighting - we've heard it can turn nasty.

Mounting anxiety

Dear Muzik,

Is it just me or are your covermount CDs getting more and more boring? Sure, the contents of the CDs are top tunes in their genre. The only problem is that we're not talking about that many genres. Where are the CDs covering drum & bass, techno (the new trend, they say), electro (resurrected and kicking) or techno-electro, that German hybrid that's big in Europe? What about urban, soul, leftfield or the breakbeat scene? All we get is progressive, more progressive and... oh, it's summer, why not stick in a nice 'Ibiza' house/chill out CD? I think that you have a responsibility to showcase what's new and different, and not to just get as trendy as you can. How do you feel about that?

Sincerely yours

Andreas Mushroom, Athens

Maybe we did go a little overboard on the progressive tip, but since our last three covermounts have been deep house, techno/leftfield and this month's excursion into classic bangers, we reckon we're already sorting that situation out. You have an excellent name, by the way.

Ladies and gents,

Congratulations on the cover-mounted Mute CD. I'd not bought your magazine since you put Robert Miles on the cover all those years ago, but you seem to be making an effort again - Plastikman slating the singles was most entertaining.

One thing - I notice you no longer feature happy hardcore in your Trainspotting section. How long before you ditch both the hard(ly) house and trance sections? You may just earn my subscription. Keep it up

Mikey T of the International Techno Cognoscenti

Take that, Mr so-called Mushroom!

Exterminate!

Dear Muzik,

I'm pleased your reporter Steve McLay enjoyed Sonique's set in the Serious Arena at Creamfields so much, with her ability to 'get the groove back'. Surprising as she didn't play, and her set was filled by Corvin Dalek - you know, the man who 'is not just a stupid name and misjudges it completely, banging it out rather than following everyone else's funky-up flow'. Cheers

Ben Pugh, Head Of Promotions, Serious Promotions Ltd, London

Oops. To be fair, in a crowded tent it's pretty hard to tell if the DJ is the one listed on the running order or not. Apologies to the multi-faceted Mr Dalek.

B afraid

Dear Muzik,

In the light of recent events in NYC and the deluge of dodgy e-mails about the Nostradamus 'Twin Brothers' prophecy, I thought you should know of a far more sinister (and accurate) prediction from those fundamentalist hip hoppers, Eric B & Rakim. The following is a verse from 'Casualties Of War' from 1992.

"So I wait for terrorists to attack/
Every time a truck backfires I fire back/
I run for shelter when a plane is over me/
Remember Pearl Harbour?/
New York will be over, G".

Yours in fear

Tom Stephan: Soon to face the trauma of having to discuss Neighbours plot lines with undergrads twatted on 'really wicked hash'

Tom Stephan Rocks Your House

US-BORN, UK-based tribal house DJ/producer Tom Stephan enters into the spirit of British student life with relish next month – as he offers himself up as a competition prize. Tom will be playing his trademark Superchumbo twisted house tunes ("hopefully 'The Revolution' will be the one that takes the roof off") at the Engineered Jeans House Party, a night hosted by Levi's. They will provide the decor, lights, decks, speakers, bouncers and a – yes! – free bar at a house party thrown at the winner's 'crib' for 200 of his or her very closest friends.

Tom (who came to the UK on a student exchange programme for six months and is still here 10 years later) rocks studentsville off the back of releasing his 'Soundworx Session Two' mix album. The mix runs from Christian Hornbostel's 'Back To The Music' through his own Superchumbo mix of Missy Elliot's 'Get Ur Freak On' to his personal fave on the album: 'Loose Leaves' by Nova Scotia. "My biggest sound is that dark, tribal stuff, but I do like other stuff too," Tom says.

To enter the Levi's house party competition, visit any Levi's store and pick up an entry postcard. You will also receive a 10% discount on Levi's clothing if you offer proof – a large collection of road cones, for instance – that you're a student. 'Soundworx Session Two', meanwhile, is out now on Southeast Recordings.

Dave Clarke Signs To Skint

BRIGHTON boy Dave Clarke is signing to the city's Skint label. The fun-loving techno producer and DJ has agreed a six-album deal, clinched in typically quirky Skint style over a cream tea in Rottingdean. Clarke joins stable buddies Midfield General, Lo-Fi Allstars, Freq Nasty and current scene darlings X-Press 2, and his first release will be 'The Compass' (which includes mixes from Josh Wink and Terrence Fixmer), out next month. His first album for the label is expected early next year.

Clarkey, in characteristically jovial mood after his new record deal

Coco: Visibly thrilled by new record label

Chris Coco launches chill out label

MUZIK'S covermount star, downtempo correspondent and chill out king Chris Coco and his manager Seven Webster (the man behind the rise of Sasha, John Digweed and Dido) are set to remedy the rash of half baked 'chill out' compilations currently saturating the market with their new label, Organic Recordings.

"I get to hear a lot of chill out compilations that aren't all that great," explains Chris. "They're usually just a mixture of pop music and big names. We wanted something with a bit more feeling and musical thought put into it. That's why we chose the name Organic."

Organic Recordings

The debut release, 'Acoustic Chill', includes such acts as Blue States, Turin Breaks and the Röyksopp remix of the Kings Of Convenience track 'I Don't Know What I Can Save You From'. The latter sums up Chris's ethos: "a great guitar song manipulated by great producers."

The duo are now working on an ambient album. "We just want people to listen to good music and not reconstituted rubbish," Coco says.

'Acoustic Chill' is out on Organic on November 5th (go to organicrecordings.com). You can hear Chris on Jazz FM from 4-5am on Sunday mornings.

Front Of The Box

Five tunes that are feeling our needle

Bubba Sparxxx: 'Ugly' (Beat Club)

The Missy-riffing debut track from Timbaland's new imprint.

Clouddead: 'Peel Sessions' (Big Dada)

Four cool new tracks and a remake of 'Bike' that's like a 'Hey Jude' for the post-hip hop weirdo generation

King Britt Presents Sylk 130: 'When The Funk Hits The Fan' (Ovum)

Mood II Swing, Sanchez and Francois K create a remix package to die for

WOSP: 'Gettin' Into U' (Data)

Katherine Ellis vocals and a Laurent Garnier hook that had the summer crowds necking another one in homage

Beber & Tamra: 'You Wonder' (Mob)

Ace second single from the Sonny & Cher of vocal breakbeat

Back Of The Boot

Five tunes that are junking our trunk

Michael Jackson: 'You Rock My World' (Epic)

No amount of cosmetic surgery can hide the fact that this is crap

Decade Raid: Moby Go (Outer Rhythm)

1991 was as awash with anthems as a kosher restaurant isn't awash with pork chops, but perhaps the biggest of them all was Moby's 'Go'. Like most great dance music, the straight-edge slaphead's classic alchemised the simplest of ingredients – in this case a string swell from Angelo Badalamenti's 'Twin Peaks' theme, a break, and a bloke going "Go!" – into six minutes of blissful, physical movement-related japes. It was remixed more times than Laurence Llewlyn-Bowen has fucked up a bedroom, with later revisions such as the 'Arpothaski' and 'Dub' mixes even having the distinction of being quite good.

Moby, meanwhile, went on to become a monumental Christian, vegan bore, pontificating about the environment to the six people who bought his records post-'Go', before discovering his true calling as a maker of finely honed background music for gas-guzzling car adverts. Tsk. (DB)

Solid Steel Presents. . .

SPLIFF HOP imprint Ninja Tune have launched 'Solid Steel Presents. . .', a new series of mix albums that takes its name from the label's long-running radio show. The first in the series is by DJ Food (Strictly Kev and PC) and DK (Darren Knott), who throw together everything from Jeru The Damaja to The Beat's 'Mirror In The Bathroom'. The next two compilations will be by Mr Scruff and Kid Koala.

A Night Of Solid Steel tour kicks off in Oxford on October 16th and visits Newcastle, Glasgow, Cardiff, London (the launch party at Ninja's Xen night at Cargo on October 25th) and Leeds. Check out ninjatune.net for details. You can catch the radio show on BBC London Live (94.9FM, midnight on Mondays).

The Coup spike artwork

THIS IS the new cover artwork being used by US hip hop duo The Coup on their forthcoming album 'Party Music'. The original image (pictured right), was conceived by group member Boots Riley several months ago, and shows DJ Pam The Funkstress and Boots in front of a burning World Trade Centre. The rappers were quick to release a statement after the terrorist attack on the Twin Towers, stressing that any similarity between life and art in this case was purely coincidental. Boots added, "My condolences go out to the families and friends of the victims". There were no albums ever issued using the original artwork. 'Party Music' is out on November 5th.

Bugged Out! Meets The Boutique moves to Heaven

BUGGED OUT! Meets The Boutique, who have just held their final party at Fabric, are now gearing up towards yet more packed out gigs at Heaven, Charing Cross. The night, which moved due to "internal management disagreements at Fabric", celebrates its second birthday at the same time.

Bugged Out! co-promoter John Burgess explained why Heaven was the obvious choice. "We can expand, and the upstairs back room will now have Rob Da Bank getting messy with his Sunday Best mates. It's the same room that Alex Paterson held the first chill out ever – Heaven's rooted in acid house history."

You'll also find David Holmes and Erol Alkan covering The 19th Hole in the Soundshaft, plus James Holroyd (Bugged Out!), Jon Carter, Midfield General and Freq Nasty (The Boutique) and the usual A-list guests.

Bugged Out! Meets The Boutique launches on November 5th at Heaven, then the first Friday of every month. Call Heaven on 020-7930-2020 for details.

Deep Dish, hoping everyone will start 'Russian' out to buy their new album

Deep Dish hit Moscow

THE latest in Global Underground's series of international DJ mixes is set in Moscow, having been put together by Ali 'Dubfire' Shirazinia and Sharam Tayebi, aka Deep Dish. The double album includes such tracks as the Washington-based duo's own mix of Dido's 'Thank You', 'Lost In Brixton' by Dakota and a 16B remix of 'Wish You Were Here' by John Creamer and Stephane K. Inspired by a recent trip to Russia which saw Deep Dish spinning at Club XIII and the like, CD1 is full of melancholic deep house grooves, while CD2 is, as Sharam describes it, "more banging". 'GU021: Deep Dish Moscow' is out on October 29th. Check www.globalunderground.co.uk for more info.

Pump Up The Volume

LATEST in the realms of 'when I were a lad, pills WERE pills' literature currently cluttering up bookshop shelves is Pump Up The Volume. It's a history of house that wends its way from Chicago to Manchester via Ibiza and a couple of M25 service stations. Written by Sean Bidder, the book accompanies the Channel 4 series of the same name, including interviews with such luminaries as Marshall Jefferson, Shaun Ryder and our Coxy. Carl, incidentally, gets his very own quote on the cover: "House is a feeling. And if you don't feel it, it can't be house." Well, absolutely. Pump Up The Volume is out now on Pan Macmillan, £9.99. Look out for the C4 series around the end of November.

Antidote releases DJ Yoda

NEW UK-based hip hop label Antidote celebrates its first release this month, 'How To Cut And Paste' by the cheeky DJ Yoda (aka Duncan Beiny). The album, described as "Salvador Dali meets Funkmaster Flex" is an earbending hotch-potch of spoken word, breaks and hip hop, put together by North London's own cut and paste comedian, and featuring bites from Biz Markie, Pete Rock, Ugly Duckling, Paul Barman and the like. Antidote are to team up soon with hip hop magazine Fat Lace on a compilation series. 'How To Cut And Paste' is out October 22nd.

"Strong is the material on my compilation. Buy it you should. Tell a lie to you would I?"

Designer Label Tommy Boy

IN hip hop terms, Tommy Boy is the grandest of grand old men. Founded in 1981 by Tom Silverman (hence the name), the impact of Afrika Bambaataa's 'Planet Rock' – the label's second ever release – propelled the imprint to the forefront of hip hop. Double D & Steinski's cut ups created a genre consolidated by the likes of Coldcut over here; Force MDs reintroduced r&b into hip hop (a mixed blessing in some people's eyes); while Stetsasonic carried the baton in the mid-Eighties and introduced the world to Prince Paul, co-mastermind of De La Soul's 'Three Feet High & Rising' and new school Handsome Boy. Tommy's roll-call is rich and varied, from Queen Latifah, House Of Pain, and Naughty By Nature to, er, Coolio. But it's the label's hit and miss nature that's its charm, with the recent signing of Masters At Work showing that there's definitely life in the old Boy yet. (WA)

Muzik Magazine Dance Awards 2001

THE MOST important event in the dance music calendar is finally upon us: the Muzik Magazine Dance Awards 2001. In the next issue of Muzik we'll bring you the complete lowdown from the night itself: including all the winners and the Saints And Sinners (there'll be plenty to choose from, we'll wager). The DJ and live act line-up includes Fatboy Slim, Sasha, Carl Cox, Erick Morillo, Plump DJs, Yousef, MYNC Project and Rob Da Bank. We'll put money on it being the messiest night of the year, so we'd like to thank a few friends right now for making it all possible. So, thanks and big love to KLP, Anglo Plugging, Outside Organisation, Radio 1, Pete Tong, June Sarpong, Russell Brand and Rapture. Oh, and not forgetting all the DJs and acts who've supported us, as well as all our sponsors and anyone we pulled in at the last minute. Cheers!

Passport Control:

Best airline? Lufthansa: good food, good service and unlimited red wine. The best airport's Turin, the closest one to my house! The worst airport is Milan Malpenza: it's the most horrendous in the world for delays. That's official. Any travel nightmares? Time after time my records end up in, say, Dubai instead of Dundee, the bloody dyslexics. And I was strip-searched at a Norway airport once because I was "carrying a record box". You should've seen my manager's face when they were pulling on the rubber gloves. . .

Mauro Picotto

Ever get recognised? Once, I caught a charter flight from Frankfurt to Ibiza and all these kids clapped when I got on. Then the air hostess put on my CD over the system. That was very, very, embarrassing. Most luxurious flight ever? I got upgraded once when I went to Chicago. We had our own masseuse and waitress. In-flight fun? I get my manager drunk on wine and watch him make a tit of himself with the hostesses. Any drawbacks? The jet lag. Last week I went to seven different time zones in five days, across nearly 20,000 miles. I didn't know if I was coming or going.

We'll bring you the full car crash of a report in next month's issue

Double Egg

MANY THANKS to Muzik reader and vicar, the Rev Kenneth Curbishley, who suggested this unholy pairing: slimy, failed politician with a fondness for foreign travel (to places like Tangiers) Michael Portillo, and cuddly German DJ Timo Maas. System Vertigo is Jimmy Galvin, who releases his debut single, the rich, orchestral 'There Is A Place' on November 19th, with an album, 'Suburbia Kills' expected to drop early next year. . . Underground house producer Funk 198 is also one Darren Klementi, who has just signed to Loaded under the name

The Crompton Set. He releases his debut track, 'Suburb Of A Suburb' on October 22nd. . . This time last year, no one had heard of Dan Snaith. They still haven't. But you may know his debut album as Manitoba, 'Start Breaking My Heart', which received an avalanche of plaudits from the critics. This September, Dan relocates from Canada to London, and it wouldn't be right unless nuff respect was paid to Dan's home town. On the 'Give'r EP', he brings you the glorious 'Dundas, Ontario', with a brand new remix that kicks that 'folktronica' tag into oblivion. . . 'Hardbeat - The Album', a cracking new Nukleuz double CD, has now been put back to January. Other forthcoming Nukleuz releases include Joy Kitikonti's 'Joyenergiser' (with remixes by Mauro Picotto, The Wiseguys and Mdouble). It looks set to go all the way with a wicked remix package and heavyweight support from the likes of Judge Jules and Fergie. Could it be this year's 'Dooms Night'? . .

Twisted Nerve Competition

BY the year's end, super-eclectic imprint Twisted Nerve will have reached the grand old age of 30 – releases, that is. To celebrate, the label have put out a compilation, snappily titled 'Everything You Wanted To Know About Twisted Nerve But Were Afraid To Ask', featuring the likes of Andy Votel, Badly Drawn Boy and Alfie. Even better, they're giving away five copies of the album, five pairs of ultra-rare Twisted Nerve seven-inch slipmats (with raised felt in the middle that fits snugly into your 45s), and five Twisted Nerve bunny logo T-shirts. To enter, just tell us: what do you want to know about Twisted Nerve but were afraid to ask? The five best questions will win. Send your question to Twisted Nerve comp, Muzik, Kings Reach Tower, Stamford Street, London SE1 9LS before November 14th. To check out the full TN deal and the rest of their current tour dates visit www.twistednerve.co.uk.

Winter Warmer

IF you liked the summer's Big Chill parties, you'll love The Big Chill Winter Festival 2001. It runs from September 7th-9th, using three London venues: The Union Chapel (Highbury Corner), Ocean (Hackney), and Dingwalls (Camden). There are sets from Röyksopp, Tom Middleton's AMBA (with The Joyful Company of Singers, no less) as well as Alucidnation, Pete Lawrence and Lol Hammond, and the tickets are a mere £30 a pop. Ring either 020-7688-8080 (Big Chill) or 0115-912-9152 (Wayahead, 24 hours). You can also book via www.bigchill.net

Massive Attack Video Compilation

A BAND who have always prided themselves on a good promo, Massive Attack have compiled an 11-track DVD of their very best, from 1990's 'Daydreaming' to 1998's 'Inertia Creeps', along with the previously unreleased video for 'Angel'. But in spite of, or perhaps because of, MA's rich and varied work, the video itself is in a clear plastic case. As 3D explains, "no one piece of artwork could summarise the work that we've done. But if anyone's really inclined they can always go to our web site and download their own."

The DVD is out on November 5th. Massive Attack are releasing their next album some time in 2002. Download your own artwork at www.massiveattack.com

Gatecrasher launch a label

GATECRASHER are to put out all their future albums and singles via an independent imprint called Gatecrasher Music. Their first release, 'Gatecrasher Digital', is a triple CD covering the club's classic big room vibe, plus a bonus chill out mix. GC supreme Scott Bond explained, "I've been looking forward to this. It'll be refreshing not to have to compromise our ideals." All singles will start rolling out from early next year. 'Gatecrasher Digital' is out now. Go to www.gatecrasher.com for updates and upcoming world tour news.

Snapshots

Hip hoppers Donsen Park bring out possibly the most incongruous sleeve of the year, with the cheap happy hardcore-styled effort for their new album 'Emotion Sickness' (Lightyear). It's a fluffy no-swears effort that rides the new 'PC Rap' wave. . . Cristiano 'Groovejet' Spiller is back with an EP of house cuts. 'Crybaby', released on Positiva on November 19th, holds the eponymous lead track plus remixes from Röyksopp,

Tom Middleton and new boys Jolly Music. There's also his rather special take on St Germain's 'Rose Rouge' . . . Also back is Azzido Da Bass (aka Ingo Martens). He conquered clubland with his 1999 track 'Dooms Night' (with a classic remix by Timo Maas that you may have heard once or twice). His second single, 'Speed', is due out on Edel over the New Year, and features a vocal from Roland Clark (of 'Star 69' and 'Flowers' fame). . . Correction: 'Sonic Mook Experiment', last month's Compilation Of The Month, is on the Hub label, not Lo Recordings as we stated. Sorry. . .

Money Mark welcomes Muzik into his luxury Tudor-style mansion

Money Mark

The keyboard virtuoso answers questions for cash

FIRST coming to the public's attention with his work on the Beastie Boys' 'Check Your Head' and his own 'Mark's Keyboard Repair' album, Money Mark previously worked as a session musician and carpenter. In was in the latter capacity that he met the Beasties, having been hired to fix the gate of their house. Right now he's promoting his latest CD, 'Change Is Coming', but when we spoke to him, his equipment was stuck in New York, as he'd played a gig there the night before the terrorist attack.

What do you recall about September 11th? [Quietly] We finished the gig about 2.30 in the morning. We woke up to the planes hitting. It's definitely a tragedy – there really aren't any words that can express. . . I spoke to my tour manager today and he just got back into the club where we played and everything was still set up as we had left it, it was really eerie.

How was the tour going before that? My shows kick ass right now. I did a show in Detroit and I had two guys dressed – very elaborately – as the Swamp Thing. They came up on stage and started dancing, but amazingly, one of them was really good. He was breakdancing, spinning on his head with all this seaweed flying off him. That was great. I take whatever energy's there and turn it to my advantage. Even hecklers.

Hecklers?

Yeah, I use some of my Taoist techniques and incorporate them into the show, get them up on stage and basically turn the whole audience against them. I say 'who wants to see this gentleman dance?', get a little disco beat going and get the lighting person to get some lights going. I'm kind of famous for it now – I've even done it at festivals – so they have to climb up to the stage, and then they have 30,000 people. . . after them!

What was working with the Beastie Boys like?

It was democratic and we had lots of fun. There was no pressure on me – although I realised later that they were kind of making a 'comeback' with that album after 'Paul's Boutique', which was critically acclaimed but sold about three copies.

Were you into hip hop before then?

Yeah, I was into hip hop, and I was into jazz and funk, and a lot from those styles was being used in hip hop. I was interested in technical things about hip hop too. Working with the Beastie Boys gave me an opportunity to learn a lot, and I think they learned a lot from it too.

Your music's got quite a light touch to it – some call it 'loungey' or 'kitschy'. Do you feel you sometimes don't get taken seriously because of that?

Well, I just do what I do. As for this 'music journalism' – so called – I can live without that. I know exactly what I was doing when I made it, so with critics I know whether they've 'got it' or they haven't. I had one guy who said my music was like [vile American aerosol-projected cheese] Cheez Whizz, but I didn't know if that was meant to be a compliment or not. But you know what man? I don't care. I didn't ask to be in the music business. I was just fixing a gate for the Beastie Boys. . .

Saints & Sinners

This month's guide to the titans & tits of dance music

The Saints

Mr and Mrs Da Bank

Sunday Best head honcho Rob Da Bank married Josie (co-founder of Sunday Best, Inc. and girlfriend of 10 years) on a beach in Scotland surrounded by friends, family, The Cuban Brothers and a few surprised seagulls. We wish we had room to show you the Padre's extraordinary multi-coloured scarf, but you'll just have to wait till you pick this month's Hello!

Not Judge Jules

TEC recently received this scary crayon scrawl which read, "Dear TEC, I would just like to inform you that I have changed my address, so can you send me any promos to my new address below from now on please." The closing line proves how brassnecked vinyl junkies can be: "I would have e-mailed you but my PC is knackered. Cheers for your help. Judge Jules."

Christopher Walken

Fatboy backed an outsider when he cast googly-eyed nutter Christopher Walken in the promo for 'Weapon Of Choice'. The actor (who began his career as a hooper, apparently) proved his worth when Spike Jonze's vid picked up an incredible six gongs at the 2001 MTV Awards. Expect to see Walken in 'Bloodbath At Le Moulin Rouge' some time next year.

Col Hamilton

Lush's Col, armed with naught but a small selection of warm-up tunes, hit Cream last month. Imagine his surprise when, his short set almost over, he was told he had to fill in for a late Jazzy M in the main room. An hour on, Hamilton (by now presumably dying for a new record box) heard Timo Maas was a no-show too, and... you can guess the rest. Luck of the Irish? Hal

Darren Emerson

Knowing a good party when he hears of one, Darren Emerson changed his travel plans for the week to play at Subliminal Sessions' closing party at Pacha. Replacing Doc Martin and Josh Wink, Emerson rocked the joint for over four hours. Fellow Essex luminary Denise Van Outen even called Dazza personally to be put on the guest list, so we hear.

Lottie

And also in Ibiza... After a storming set at Space, Lottie wouldn't let it lie, moving gamely on from Space to Circo Loco at DC10, then to Cocoon at Amnesia. The brunette bombshell was last seen on a podium at Manumission, thus missing - for the first time in her career - the flight home. Four clubs in 24 hours: a cracking effort by anyone's standards.

The Sinners

John Buckby

Buckby, one third of deep house groovers Schmoov, who was DJing at a club in Munich, was clearly pleased about that week's devastating England victory over Germany's footie team. In an inflammatory visual display of schadenfreude he sported a brand new T-shirt with the cruel design '5-1'. Bosh!

Jam Master Jay

Legendary as Jay's contribution to dance music may be (blah blah, Run DMC, blah, first rap group to win Grammy, blah, multi-platinum, blah, blah), his dismal 'Be A DJ: Part 1' video seems to cater for an audience likely to say "What are those? A 'pair of decks' you say? They look interesting!". You'd be better off going straight to 'Be A DJ: Part 7'.

Howie B

The 'Boycott Esso' gig at Fabric was a huge success and Howie B, determined to lend his support, was the very last person to leave. Howie's unique method of 'fighting the power', however, left him so completely and utterly shitfaced he had to be physically carted from the premises by lock-up staff desperate to go home. Well done Howie!

JFK

JFK, resident at Passion in Coalville, shot himself in the foot when he played his closer the other night. In an attempt to appease 'the kids', the misguided soul dropped Ian Van Dahl's 'Castles In The Sky'. Cue a room of people staring open-mouthed, and a red hot slagfest in a web chatroom near you the next day.

D12

Ministry's 10th birthday celebrations went Smoovely enough on the Friday, no thanks to Eminem's cronies (or The Five Twats, as we must learn to call them). They smoked spliffs, were unnecessarily raucous and even started a full-on punch up in the VIP room. Such behaviour is, of course, absolutely disgraceful and... hang on. Shouldn't this be in Saints'?

Daft Punk

Gap ad? GAP AD?! Corporate cock-sucking, beige-clothing-fondling, whoring pair of garlic-munching, stupid robot hat-wearing, French bastard twatmongers. That's all we have to say on the matter.

Coxy's Big Column

Techno god Carl Cox's international escapades

THE MONTH BEGAN with my third trip to Ibiza this summer, to play Paul Oakenfold's Perfecto night at Pacha. He hasn't actually been out there much this year, but he's been recruiting people to fill in for him. I was representing a different sort of sound from what I play at Sven Vath's Cocoon nights – namely tribal, chunky house.

Then it was off to Marbella with José Luis Magoya's Deep Productions. He's done a lot of parties in Madrid and Malta and now wants to broaden the clubbing horizons of Marbella. He's already had Laurent Garnier and Richie Hawtin out there and wants to get people like Danny Tenaglia to go along.

The venue, called Oh Marbella, has been there for about 15 or 20 years and was absolutely packed with Scottish and Irish people going nuts. The strange thing is that you also get the local population turning up, namely rich Arabs and expatriate British crooks. It's interesting, to say the least. And there are five girls to every guy! Next stop Malta.

The Tribu Festival was Malta's first, and not entirely successful. I met Sander Kleinenberg coming home and his girlfriend had her foot all bandaged up. She'd trodden on a broken bottle on the dancefloor and wasn't the only one. Not only that, but because some Dutch DJ got caught trying to bring in 500 pills in his record box, all the rest of us had to have stringent searches by the police before we were allowed to play. Despite all that, the Maltese are really good people and know how to enjoy themselves. It can only get better.

After a quick stop in Majorca to play at Palma's BCM (the one time I've played there this year, spinning proper techno to a passionate Spanish crowd) I came back to Britain and to Creamfields. I arrived there at about four in the afternoon and there was already a massive queue, but their organisation is spot on, and when I went on at 6.30 the tent was packed. Definitely the best British festival this year, and a great way to get back into UK clubbing after my Gatecrasher disaster.

Straight back to Ibiza, and I played the Terrace at Space, Cocoon and the MTV party. Space was phenomenal as ever, people really making an effort to look good in the daylight! You just think there's no tomorrow. The MTV bash at Privilege was interesting too. They filled the place to bursting point, but the whole thing was very much geared towards TV, as result of which I had to wait 15 minutes after Faithless finished their live set before coming on. In front of 10,000 people! It was all rather stressful.

I've been avoiding Ayia Napa for two years now, but my month ended with my first trip there. I'd heard stories of a massive battle in the Square and So Solid slugging everyone off so I was a little apprehensive. No need, however: I played The Castle alongside Roni Size and we absolutely rammed it. I totally forgot I was in Ayia Napa! Best of all, lots of Cypriots came along who wouldn't normally go to garage clubs. It's just a shame the place is spoilt by a minority of people who think they own the island.

Patriotic lovely girl

The Dukes Of Hazzard Collection

Director: Does it really matter? (Retail VHS)
Tom Wopat, John Schneider, Catherine Bach
In the deep south of America, in a county where all car chases take place in a circular fashion around the same glade of scrubby trees, live Bo and Luke Duke with their leggy sister Daisy and grizzled Uncle Jesse. Utterly corrupt local fat-man-in-white-suit with non-specific profession, Boss Hogg, along with IQ-of-nothing sheriff Rosco P Coltrane doesn't like them much. Cue car chases. As enjoyable rubbish about inbred family values go this is fantastic, and much better than The A Team which replaced it on Saturday nights many moons ago. Though that isn't saying much, admittedly.

Ginger Snaps

Director: John Fawcett (Rental VHS/Retail DVD)
Katharine Isabelle, Emily Perkins, Mimi Rogers
An original low-budget horror movie. For once. The tag-line 'They don't call it the curse for nothing' goes halfway to telling you what it's all about. One of two somewhat anti-social adolescent sisters gets bitten by a werewolf and just as she begins her monthly cycle for the first time, yes, you've guessed it, lycanthropy kicks in. Darkly funny, well-paced and occasionally rather nasty.

Games

The Simpsons Road Rage
PlayStation 2
The Simpsons TV show rips off scenes from all kinds of sources, and now the games are at it - this is basically the awesome Crazy Taxi set in Springfield. Race Barney to the Duff Beer Factory, then hang around Mo's Tavern at 2am trying to rip off loads of yellow-hued pissheads desperate to get home.

Time Crisis 2
PlayStation 2
Any game that comes with its own gun has to be good, and this is a spot-on conversion of the best shoot-em-up in the arcades. Two can play, but the split-screen view is pretty shite, so you need two PS2s and tellys for full effect. Although carrying a telly and a gun to your mate's house is more likely to get you shot by the police.

Wario Land 4
Game Boy Advance
Wario is the 'Super' Fried Chicken of the Mario series: similar product, but a sinister taste. Sporting the purple nose of a professional alcoholic, Wario endures self-abuse to get past puzzles - flattening himself, setting himself on fire, that sort of thing. And unlike Mario, he'll serve you under-the-counter booze when the offie's shut.

Snow White And The Seven Dwarves

Director: Walt Disney (Retail VHS/DVD)

Lucille La Verne, Adriana Caselotti, Harry Stockwell

When this appeared in 1937 it had an impact equivalent to Toy Story's high-tech computer animation a generation or two later. 'Heigh Ho' and 'Whistle While You Work' may be two of the most irritating playground songs ever, but the overall film is genuinely charming. The plot, featuring Doc, Happy, Bashful, Sneezy, Sleepy, Grumpy, Dopey and 'mirror on the wall', you're possibly familiar with.

Natural Born Killers

Director: Oliver Stone (Retail DVD/VHS)

Woody Harrelson, Juliette Lewis, Robert Downey Jr

Written by Quentin Tarantino, this superviolent 1996 Bonnie and Clyde update sees Mickey (Woody Harrelson) and Mallory (Juliette Lewis) become famous as they mount a just-for-kicks killing spree on Route 666. With its mixture of styles (video, cartoon, black and white, security camera) top soundtrack and great performances (not least from Downey Jr's news reporter), this is sickeningly brilliant.

The Hitchcock Collection

Director: Can you guess? Well, can you? (Retail DVD) Kim Novak, James Stewart, Tippi Hedren and Sean Connery, among many others

It's hard to fault 'the master of suspense'. This collection sees some of Hitchcock's finest (The Birds, Marnie, Torn Curtain, Topaz, Family Plot and Frenzy) plus a wealth of extras including documentaries, story boards, deleted scenes, original endings, screen tests and news reels. If you buy the whole box set there's a bonus flick in the form of Vertigo.

Herdy Gerdy

PlayStation 2

As Emmerdale shows, country folk are great entertainment. Now Gerdy brings us the first countryside video game. All the key elements are here: a hero with inbred facial features, animal-shepherding gameplay, and a quest for an acorn of power. Unrealistically though, it lacks copious consumption of magic mushrooms and Brian Glover.

Grand Theft Auto 3

PlayStation 2

Stealing cars is not clever. This game, however, is. A whole 3D city is filled with vehicles you can hijack and trash, from taxis and cop cars, to school buses and ice-cream vans. You can even beat the previous owners up with baseball bat, Uzi them, or torch them with a flame-thrower. Good, wholesome fun and a great stocking-filler for the nippers.

Legend Of Zelda: Oracle Of Seasons/Ages

Game Boy Color

Two games in one. Oracle Of Seasons is a fantasy adventure in which you change the seasons to solve puzzles (like getting across lakes in icy winter). Ages uses time travel (like getting through a door before it's built). These are the best games ever on GB Color.

Beth Hirsch

Sensuous singer-songwriter with a penchant for electronic musicians

REMEMBER THE FIRST time you heard 'All I Need' by Air? Remember the hazy, romantic reverie of that Spike Jonze video? Confused that the vocalist was nowhere to be seen? Then fret no more. If 'All I Need' sent shivers down your spine, you probably need a little Beth Hirsch in your life.

A Paris resident with a penchant for – yikes! – Todd Rundgren and Steely Dan, Beth is busy on the blower from France, eager to explain how that fateful meeting with Air's Jean-Benoit Duncker and Nicolas Godin occurred.

"We lived in the same neighbourhood," she recalls. "We crossed paths for a moment in time and the chemistry was there, but we've both moved on since then."

Indeed. Beth's second solo album is testament to the happy fact that her earlier AOR sound has been remedied by the crisp beats of Black Dog Productions.

The result, a semi-electronic album called 'Titles And Idols', is sharper and far more emotionally direct than the first. It's a bit like Bjork after one gulp of Joni Mitchell too many.

"The album is about doing the right thing. We blame the media for so much but we contribute to it.

People always want to make a quick impression but we always pull out the old tricks. There are so many choices in life – like taking easy money and instant attraction – and people will always flock to that. But I'm not out to change society, I just want to make people aware of certain things."

Fair enough. But is Beth aware that most people will end up listening to her music in the early hours of Sunday morning?

"Well, I haven't intentionally made it that way, but that would pretty much be my cup of tea as well," she replies, unabashed. "There's so much energy and sexuality around during the course of an evening out, so it's good to reflect on what's important when you get home."

Four-thirty to five in the morning is supposed to be a good time for this, apparently. Especially if you've just got back from a club. Or so we've heard.

"For you guys, I guess!" she giggles. "You Brits can get pretty radical!" But I have a different lifestyle now. I'm normally in bed by 11. . . at weekends I stay up a little later. Hey, just do your thing."

'Titles And Idols' is out now on IK7

The Streets

Two-step Mockney urban poetry anyone?

BRASH. GLAMOROUS. Egotistical. Danceable. Four words that sum up UK garage, the swaggering upstart of the British music scene.

Which makes the arrival of The Streets – aka Mike Skinner – all the more fascinating. This 22 year-old MC and producer really is one of the most original things to hit the record stores in aeons. The proof is in his debut single, 'Has It Come To This?' – a visionary MC track that owes more to the spoken word of Gil Scott Heron than it does to straight up mic-man tracks such as Pied Piper's 'Do You Really Like It'. The one-liners and quickfire chat have given way to a measured, distinctly British style of urban commentary. Sure, the instrumental and underground pirate radio vibe anchors it to the two-step community, but by Mike's own admission, it's not the type of tune to get your butt jiggling.

"For me it's a garage record but you don't listen to it in a club. So far, it's been a radio thing, and to be honest, I don't even think the dance mixes [courtesy of the likes of Zed Bias and Stanton Warriors] hit the clubs that hard."

It's this modesty and lack of thrall to the clubs that makes The Streets such a gust of fresh air in a climate that's often characterised by MCs with swollen heads and loud mouths to match. Mike's a 'non-scene' bloke who's spent the majority of the last seven years holed up in studios in Birmingham "for no less than four hours every day." Much of that time was spent making hip hop records that never saw the light of day.

"I started off trying to copy the American sound, making Wu Tang type records. Gradually I realised though that being yourself is a better way to go, so the hip hop became more English. Instead of talking about bitches, I started talking about Stellas and full English breakfasts. The style I've got now was an executed move, something that I thought would work."

Support has already been forthcoming from The Dreem Team and Gilles Peterson. But it remains to be seen whether The Streets' bag of urban tales set to a UK garage soundtrack will strike a chord with a public who have been fed on a diet of high energy party tracks from the likes of Arcitechs and Mis-Teeq.

"The people higher up in the scene, the more forward-thinking ones, have all been really positive," says Mike. "Some of the kids on the street, and even my mates back in Birmingham, were like 'what's this? It doesn't sound like Zed Bias to me'."

The single 'Has It Come To This?' is out now on Locked On

Charlie May

The ex-Spooky man pops his head over the parapet

WORK on the new new Sasha album has been suspended for a moment, on Muzik's behalf. Sorry, Sasha fans, but we need a chat with his right-hand man, his production guru, Charlie May.

Once one half of progressive house (1991 definition) duo Spooky, May helped forge the scene's definitive statement – the album 'Gargantuan'.

"We were a couple of sponges really," he says of himself and Spooky partner Duncan Forbes. "We were into stuff like the Pixies and the Cocteau Twins. So we had a lot of influences to get out of our system. A lot of other people making records at the same time were of the same mindset, which was why it got labelled progressive. It was a bastardisation of everything we had been exposed to."

Since then you could be forgiven for thinking he's vanished. Not so. In fact, May took a deliberate back seat ("Thrashing yourself around the globe never appealed to me"), retiring from the band elhic of Spooky to become a twiddler of knobs for the likes of Sasha and William Orbit, who he knew of old from days at Guerilla Records. Orbit, of course, is a man most people now know as 'that Madonna bloke – the one who's not Mirvais'.

"She can't take a dump without some minder sitting outside the door. It's almost like she's handicapped,"

May says. Now though, he's returning to the fore with the first release under his own name, the 'Bug' EP, currently 'doing business', as people with ponytails say.

'Bug' is a big dollop of midtempo shiznit joining the dots between today's dancefloor and Leftfield before they went rubbish. May plans a second EP chaser and then an album.

"How do you get the 4/4 stuff to sit alongside the ambient stuff or the electronic stuff? That's the challenge. If I have an ambition it's to make a record that works not just in the club and in the car home, but everywhere."

Charlie May? Nah, course he will.

'The Bug' EP is out on Junior on November 5th

Spit it out!

"There's a sound coming through at the moment that my girlfriend christened 'fun house', like Daft Punk and the new Felix Da Housecat. It's a bit less cocaine and a bit more beer."

As James Holden looks about 12 years old, he should not be given cocaine under any circumstances

"I was at a club with a friend of mine and I peed on myself. I just didn't want to go to the bathroom"

Macy Gray: a dirty, dirty cow

Smitten Records

Pounding acid mayhem ahoy!

PEOPLE OFTEN talk about 'underground' but in reality, most people involved in the record industry are aiming at 'overground', where they plan to wormble up as much cash as possible. Not so Steve Smith, aka Steve Smitten.

Having headed to London squatland in the early Nineties after periods in the North and Norwich ("I was a hippy – best not mention it"), he became involved with the free party scene and the likes of the Liberator DJs and Lawrie Immersion.

"Lawrie had these tunes and I said I'd put them out," he explains. "Next thing it's, 'Oh, we've made a record, suppose I'd better find another one'. That was six years ago."

Since then the underground acid techno of Smitten and its sister labels has stood head to head with labels like Stay Up Forever and Routemaster as foremost representatives of the scene. Groups with names like Mad Cows On Acid or Punk Floyd demonstrate a welcome sense of humour while keeping the beats relentless and the techno harsh. Deep in the warehouses of Hackney, and indeed across the country, weekends pass in a blur of chemical excess to Smitten's steam-hammer drums, while abroad, as far afield as Japan and Canada, the cultural baggage is dumped and clubbers lap up the records. So does Steve still leather it till Monday morn every weekend?

"I can't hack it any more," he admits. "I don't get into work till Thursday if I do. You can see the periods over the years when I've been really into going out and caring it because Smitten just falls over."

'Sound Of Smitten Volume 1 Mixed By Aaron Liberator' is out in November. Smitten's sixth birthday party will be at The Stratford Rex on November 23rd

Neil Landstrumm

You can hear it in his accent when he talks – he's a Glaswegian in New York

"I'M JUST a mile and half away across the water in Brooklyn," Neil Landstrumm recounts over a transatlantic phone line. "I saw the whole thing unfold in front of my eyes. I've never experienced anything like it when that tower came down. It was really scary. I've got an old military land-cruiser I've done up and we decided to drive out of the city to my mate, Abe, who's in Hollis, Queens, but all the motorways were closed so we were driving across the central divisions and... I always liked that movie 'Escape From New York' and here it was coming true."

He pauses, breathless. The events are still fresh in his mind, and although we're supposed to be talking about the jagged, chopped up beats and diseased hip hop breaks of his gnarly new Tresor album 'She Took A Bullet Meant For Me', world events have conspired to dwarf our Muzik/music microcosm.

"I'm sick of techno," he snaps, eventually. "I'm really at the point where I don't want to hear another techno doublepack."

Maybe that's why he's spent the last year working as a computer animator. But his musical forays into techno's murkier reaches look set to continue.

"The events of this week will eventually slip into my music. You can't help it, it's darkly inspiring," he concludes. Very darkly.

'She Took A Bullet Meant For Me' is out now on Tresor

November 2001 Winner

MADAM BREAKS

Contact: 07980-563-906 / madambreaks@defaultrecords.com

Personal details: Madam Breaks, aka 22 year-old Clare Wells, lives in south west London, where she works at an architectural company. She's been DJing for two years, running a garage night called Drive while at university. She also completed a remix last year of OT Quartet's ancient camp classic 'Hold That Sucker Down' as Baby Clare. How's that for eclectic?

Claire describes the secret of her breakbeat success as "providing variety, catering for all. I like bringing in funky, groovy fat breaks. I'm not into hardcore breakbeat. I like the whole range, from Digital Pimp and Two Sinners to stuff like Stanton Warriors."

She now DJs on the Breaksworld web site and is looking for more gigs elsewhere.

Favourite DJs: Future Funk Squad, Koma & Bones, Blim, Rennie Pilgrem and General Midi.

Favourite labels: Default, Forged, TCR, Mob and Acetate.

Favourite clubs: Trigger in Birmingham, The Concorde 2 in Brighton, Bar Atlantis in London and Blue Mountain in Bristol.

Runners-up

- 1 Jody King ('More Blue Than Black Mix' from Sheffield)
- 2 DJ Debz ('Tech Ass-Tastic Mix' from Leicester)
- 3 DJ Muz-X ('Deep Into The G-Spot Mix' from Lithuania)
- 4 Paul Stirrat ('Pure Rhythm Mix' from Southampton)

Winning tracklisting: Issi Noho – 'First Snow' (General Midi Mix)... DJ Abstract – 'The Name Of My DJ'... Reach And Spin – 'Hyper!' (Tim Wright Remix)... Toxteth Renegades – 'The Rhythm Track'... DJ Icey – 'Controlled Trek'... Digital Pimp – '2 Bit Hooker'... Future Funk Squad – 'Twisted Future' (Phantom Beats Remix)... Brothers Of Dub – 'Same Frequency' (Future Funk Squad Remix)... Basspluggger – 'Cortex'... Buckfunk 3000 – 'Jump And Disrupt'... Player One – 'Into The Darkness'... Atomic Hooligan – 'Club Shaker'... Buckfunk 3000 – 'High Volume'... Stanton Warriors – 'Da Antidote' (Future Funk Squad Remix)...

Muzik says: This is a mix with more peaks and valleys than north Wales. The scuzz-funk of Issi Noho and DJ Abstract is perfectly balanced with fresh bass-driven slates from Buckfunk 3000 and the super-smart Future Funk Squad mix of 'Da Antidote' for the 'spotters out there. It's ace, in short.

"There aren't enough girls playing this kind of music," sighs Claire. So let's have more ladies with an attitude, please... and give the girl a break!

News

Murray Richardson's notorious Rebel Waltz deep house night finally comes of age as it moves south to set up a monthly Friday in the new Blueprint club in Nottingham. Kicking off with a Toko Records night, look out for future guests joining Murray, including Justin Deighton, the Inland Knights and London's Soulsonic crew. Also this month you can catch Murray as he hits France for the first time, DJing at Le Queen club in Paris and the L'Olympic club in Nantes.

Wayne D'Mellow has arranged his third night at The Sun & 13 Cantons in London's Soho for Friday October 12th. The address is 21 Great Pulteney Street, Soho, London and the night is called Motions. Party time is from 7-11.15pm as Wayne is joined by Christian Lisczyk (BB Winner for August 2001) for a night of underground techno and electro.

Radio Flash, Italy's biggest independent radio station, will be hooking up live every fortnight with Roberto Marroni to provide music and news straight from the heart of the London scene. As well as regular appearances at the Fez Club in Reading and at Ministry with the Filthy Krew, Roberto recently joined forces with Jazzy M for a night of funky music on Ministry radio.

Simon Stuart will become part of the Shindig setup when he takes up his residency there this month. He will, of course, continue his very successful Something Else night with Lee Roberts and Steve Butler at World Headquarters in Newcastle.

Michael Barry has just finished a remix for unfeasibly excellent avant-garde lounge rockers They Came From The Stars (I Saw Them). The track will be featured on a compilation of remixes taken from their album to be released later this year.

Stewart Bennett raised the roof yet again for Alex P down at Area. He's become something of a permanent fixture there since he first played there earlier this year. Over the next few months you'll see him providing the support for the likes of Tall Paul, Brandon Block and Alex P himself.

Nat Monday is yet again in the studio, this time adding the finishing touches to a number of remixes for Distinct'ive with the team who produced the 'Swordfish' soundtrack. Expect releases on Flammable and Distinct'ive early next year.

Contender no more

Yousef's monthly manoeuvres

THIS HAS BEEN a pretty good summer all round, with lots of travelling. I always want to get into Ibiza, play my music and get out again with a clear head, but inevitably it never seems to happen that way. Erick Morillo's been doing some barbecues which have been getting quite a reputation round the island. He's not only a superstar DJ but a superb cook too. They're actually quite subdued affairs, in direct contrast to what happens later!

Our last Subliminal Sessions happened to be on the same night as the big MTV party – the first time we've had any real competition. But it worked out really well – I think everyone tried just that little bit harder. This has been my first season in Ibiza with a residency, and it's worked out nicely. The only disappointment was that I didn't get to play Space, but maybe next year...

After Ibiza, I flew back to Britain and headed to The Empire in Middlesbrough for Sugar Shack – one of the few remaining good Friday nights out. I was knackered but I ended up doing a four-hour set because of a cancellation. The place has such a good vibe, though, that I had a brilliant time.

The next night was Cream and then Back 2 Basics in Leeds. I always look forward to playing there. The crowd really trust the judgement of Dave Beer, and they'll come even if a less well-known DJ is booked. It's one of my favourite nights in the country.

Maybe I'm biased, but I have to say that Creamfields is the definite highlight of the dance festival calendar in this country. The line-up and atmosphere are second to none. Unfortunately I didn't get to stay too long this year, though as I had to go to a christening the next day. I was in church at 10am holding my godson!

A fairly quiet month overall, then. I even ended the summer with a two-week rest, so I'd be able to come back fully refreshed. Watch out for more six-hour sets from me!

How To...

ENTER. Your tape/disc must be at least 74 minutes long. Include a full tracklisting with artist, track title and label. Also include your daytime telephone number and a passport-sized photograph with your name written on the back. Send all tapes to Bedroom Bedlam, Muzik Magazine, King's Reach Tower, Stamford Street, London SE1 9LS. Muzik cannot return any BB tapes. If you hear nothing, keep trying – we listen to everything. Bribes won't necessarily mean you win, but we couldn't rule it out.

WIN. Be original. Develop your own sound rather than copying Sasha, Coxy, Tarrant or Muzik's Dr Bob Jones. Steer clear of excessive obvious anthem spinnage. It's worth bearing in mind that if you send in a progressive mix, you'll be in direct competition with the other five billion progressive mixes we get sent each month. BOOK A DJ. Call DJs Unlimited on 01895-850-157 if you want a Bedroom Bedlam DJ for your gig/party/wedding/British Legion Cockney knees-up.

CV

Born: Eisen Hutten Stadt, East Germany

Age: 29

First record bought: OMD 'Organisation' (Virgin)

Desert Island Tune: A recording of how to survive on a desert island. If not, something that will lift me up if I'm feeling down, like the 'Buena Vista Social Club' soundtrack.

Future plans: I have the 'Columbia' EP out on Deviant and I'm putting together a mix album called 'Politics Of Dancing' for Ministry Of Sound. It's going to combine the four elements of what I do - remixing, producing, DJing and being an artist - and so each single track is basically going to be remixed.

New Order

Touched By The Hand Of God (Factory, 1987)

I'm a big New Order fan. One of the first bits of music I ever held in my hand was a Bulgarian bootleg of New Order live. I still have it, actually.

The Smiths

Half A Person (Rough Trade, 1987)

The Smiths were a big influence when I was a kid. This track I can absolutely relate to. It talks about being a bit of an outsider. In East Germany I felt like this, that I was never going in the same direction as the normal stream. It's just a beautiful piece of music.

The Sundays

Here's Where The Story Ends (Parlophone, 1990)

The Sundays are another band I really love. It's beautifully sad, indie pop from the UK. Even though I like the band and this song, I don't really know anything about them.

“In East Germany I felt like an outsider”

though, he was just doing what he loved and that comes across. It's one of the best electronic albums ever made.

Adam F

Circles (F Jams/Positiva, 1997)

I had this on a tape for a holiday two years ago. It's just a nice, sunny bit of drum & bass. It's something that sounds really cool on the beach. I like breakbeat things generally, but the problem is that a lot of the drum & bass is just to do with trying to sound too cool. People too often forget the music, but this track has it.

Massive Attack

Protection (Virgin, 1995)

Well, they had to be on here. This and 'Unfinished Sympathy' are my two favourite Massive Attack songs, but I chose this because in my mind I always see the really cool video. It's one of the best videos I've ever seen in my life, all based around filming different scenes in a house. It's just really cool. Both the music and video are outstanding.

David Bowie

China Girl (EMI, 1983)

Besides the fact that this is a really good record, this choice is also to do with the fact that I usually go on holiday with my wife. Just the other day we watched the video of 'China Girl' [In which you get to see Dave's shapely arse, fact fans! - Ed.] and she was going on about it, so I thought it'd be nice to put this on here for her.

Depeche Mode

Shake The Disease (Mute, 1985)

This was another hard one to choose as they've released so many great tunes. This is one that I hadn't listened to for ages. During my musical life, there has never ever a time without Depeche Mode.

They existed when I first started and they still do. Next week I'm going to see them in concert in Berlin and I'm really excited about it.

lio

Rapture (Made/Ministry Of Sound, 2001)

This was handed to the owner of Twilo a week after the place was closed. It was a depressing time for everyone and this was the little light at the end of the tunnel, the hope. It's a nice housey kind of track. I think this will be really, really, big.

Faithless

Take The Long Way Home (Cheeky, 1998)

There's a beautiful remix of this track. I don't know what it is or who it's done by, but it's really, really nice. I went on the Muzik magazine tour with Faithless, who are one of the biggest dance acts in the world, and this came out just afterwards. I had to put this mix on.

James

Mother (Fontana, 1991)

I really enjoy this band, more so before they started producing with Brian Eno. I went to a James concert once, in the old days. There weren't a lot of people at the gig, but the band blew me away big time. On stage there were about 12 people and it was totally energetic and inspiring. I remember them playing this song and everyone waving sparklers in the air.

Sasha & BT

Heart Of Imagination (Deconstruction, 1996)

This is the B-side of 'Be As One'. I think it's one of the best dance tracks that has been done in the Nineties. I rarely play records from start to finish when I DJ, but this track gets played all the way through. It's 12 minutes long and it's a journey, but it's also banging in a way. It sums up the style and sound of Sasha for me.

Paul Van Dyk's 'Columbia' EP is out now on Deviant. His mix CD 'The Politics Of Dancing' is out on October 22nd on Ministry. It's "his first mix CD for eight years", apparently. That's apart from the one he did for us two years ago, obviously lio: "A depressing time for everyone"

The House Of Love

Shine On (Fontana, 1987)

This goes back to the days of early MTV, when you used to see something on there and think 'what the fuck is this? I've never seen this before!'. I went to the store and bought it right away. It's a song from the era when MTV broke boundaries instead of just playing what was in the Top 10. The album has some great tracks. They're from Brighton, I think.

Alanis Morissette

Ironic (Maverick, 1995)

This song is a really cool explanation of how the world is and how life goes on. I'm a big Alanis fan; my wife introduced her to me musically. I had the chance to meet her recently but I didn't do it. I just like listening to people's music rather than finding out too much about them. It can spoil the illusion.

The Cardigans

Favourite Game (Stockholm, 1998)

The Cardigans are a favourite band of mine. I got to know them a few years ago and it was hard to choose just one track as they have many good ones. For holidays this track is good. When I'm away I like to be a complete tourist and sing along to songs as I travel and this is perfect for that.

Bill Pritchard

Tommy And Co (Fontana, 1989)

This is also a guy from the early MTV days. I don't even know if he put an album out properly, but I have one CD single of his here. He's from Canada and he was very underrated. It's one of those beautiful but melancholic songs which is like high level pop music. I love pop and it's sad that a lot of stuff that we describe as pop now is made by people with no talent. Pop from the early Eighties had much more substance.

BT

Ima (Perfecto album, 1995)

I couldn't choose a specific track from the album, as I think 'Ima' is the album where he was really true to himself. I'm very good friends with Brian and I know how difficult he makes it for himself in the studio. Rather than just forgetting the world around him, he's always thinking too much about it, about what people will think. With 'Ima' he didn't care

"SHALL WE NOW play the famous Finnish sperm game?" asks one of the festival's organisers. I cling to the table trying to tot up what day of the week it is and which country I'm in. He just told me, didn't he? Finland!

Ah yes, Finland, land of the extraordinarily beautiful blonde, of avant garde musical preposterousness, of The Moomins and of Salmiakki, the thick black liquorice vodka which is accounting for my spinning skull. Having just returned from the pine-clad flat of fellow organiser Nick, where I was forced to drink two bottles of red wine before being allowed to leave, I realise the Finns are in league to try and destroy my liver.

"The sperm game, then," my host says again and I snap back to reality with a jerk. Dawn's rising on the day after the festival and sleep is a distant memory. And now they want me to play the Finnish sperm game. I dread to think. . .

It wasn't this way when I, an innocent young reporter, first arrived in Turku – ancient capital of the country until the upstart Helsinki took over – ready to glean as much information about the thriving local electronic music scene as possible. The festival takes place in a complex that looks rather like a school, with the main arena as the assembly hall. Outside there's a stage beside a swimming pool and the sun blazes down.

The site is littered with hunks of art, tarot card readers and miniature glades where small sound systems reside beside bars selling iced beer, while a man who looks like Tom Courtenay's Bolshevik fanatic from Doctor Zhivago spins the most irie dub.

And then there are the acts, the main entertainment. Finland is currently chocka with bands combining pop with various forms of electronica, particularly electro. Their names may get in the way of success outside Scandinavia, but walking between the DJ Esko Colosseum and the Motherfunk Bowlerama, one is struck by the vast array of sonic curiosities on display, summed up perhaps by the name of the group which opens the whole festival – Nuspirit Helsinki.

Filled with sufficient alcohol to induce dancing, I head for the Club Tent, just in time for Aakviko. This three-headed, besuited group combine jokey keyboard funk with Kraftwerk stylings and a fair degree of jamming. Referencing Sixties psych-rock beside modernist techno presentation, they frolic their way through their recent, and rather groovy, 'Multi Muysic' album.

Next up are the (slightly) better known Op:l Bastards. While their records have been known to disappoint, the live arena seems to suit their strange combination of indie wordage and truly unhinged electro much better. The Bastards leave the stage to the camp mercies of the Ural 13 Dictators, who locate the link between Arctic camo-wear, hi-energy disco and old electronic bodyrock of the Front 242 variety. But lose some of the crowd along the way.

Into the night, finally legless, it's time to shake a tush to F-Comm's 10 Turntable Special (with Jori Hulkonnen and pals), Jim Masters and the deep, divine Pascal FEOS. Sleep does not follow.

So, from breakfast to sauna to lake-swim, all accompanied by buckets of beer, we finally end up back on site in time for Nicole Willis' delightful soul-funk sunset performance by the pool. Heavily pregnant and accompanied by hubby Jimi Tenor on keyboards, she brings life to tunes which seemed nondescript on her recent album.

Thence to the Main Arena to see Finnish hip hop act Paleface with whom we spent some of the previous evening, trying to think up new insults to throw at Bono were we ever to have the opportunity. Compared to the dreadful Bomfunk MCs, Finland's previous rappin' export, Paleface are more akin to Roots Manuva or cLOUDDEAD, but on a level playing field their poppy cowboy hip hop may irritate some (though we quite enjoyed it).

Ladytron and Red Snapper proceed to do the business, but you know all about them, so let's concentrate on the highlight of the festival, the truly unique Kimmo Pohjonen Kluster. Kimmo's weapon of choice is an accordion. Yes, those bellows with buttons that sailors play shanties on. But in the Aktivist Theatre Kimmo's up to something different from, well, anything we've ever seen before. Something phenomenal, as it turns out. Accompanied by a percussionist and minimal synthesizer, he uses his voice, his accordion and a load of effects pedals to build a mantric theatrical experience for the ears which clips into ancient Finnish traditions (we dare say) and the most hypnotic electronic jazz. He wraps himself around his instrument, eyes tightly squeezed closed, an attractive goatee-bearded punk rocker who'd be welcome at classical festivals the world over.

Nothing could really follow such a thing so, fascinated by this charismatic performer, we decide to track him down, get wrecked on whisky with him and practice Russian dancing to a set by Futureshock – something he proves to be nearly as good at as he was at the accordion.

Which brings us back to the dawning of the next day. Slouching at a wooden table as the first glimpse of sunlight peeks over the horizon, I haul myself out of my reverie and lift my head upright at the sound of someone talking.

"We have put it off long enough," the voice of doom chimes in again. "It's time to play the great Finnish sperm game."

So I did. For hours.

How the Newman family and Laurence Malice turned a wine bar called Turnmills into a clubland legend

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 14TH, 11.30pm, three days after the assault on New York. Muzik is zipping towards Turnmills' Friday nighter The Gallery, to enjoy the pumping house sound of Tall Paul, and perhaps enjoy to not quite so great a degree the avant garde turntablism of Judge Jules.

At the door it's Turnmills business as usual. Despite the early hour and Tuesday's horrific events, the queue stretches back a healthy distance and the slightly, ahem, old school security are getting a bit busy. One of them's helpfully right-arming some doubtless 'aaart ov ordaah' punter in the throat as we disembark from our cab, as a handy hint that his drunkenness makes his custom here unwelcome. Ah, Friday night. . .

But Turnmills is no ordinary venue and this is no ordinary Friday night. It's the first of a series of 15th – yes, 15th – anniversary celebrations for a club that, like a great football team, combines a diversity of talents. There's The Gallery, the safe pair of hands at the back; techno/electro night Headstart, the mercurially brilliant creative midfield player; and of course there's Trade, the after-hours guv'nor, running ting from the heart of defence, always ready to launch a devastating attack from the rear. Add to that recent big-money signings like Danny Rampling's dressy US house night London Calling and gritty progressive mover Elements, and you've got a 'daddy or chips' situation deciding which is the best night. Not bad, considering how it started out.

"It was a wine bar," confesses Danny Newman, brother of Tall Paul and son of John Newman – Turnmills' legendary owner, who's unfortunately unreachable in Spain when this article was being put together. "We've got old pictures of Turnmills with chandeliers, carpets, you name it."

The slightly less towering of the Newman siblings (though he's still pretty tall), Danny's a sharp guy, and as charmingly norf-London geezerish as his brother. The enthusiasm and business nous of the Newman clan might well have seen Turnmills succeed as a slightly dodgy but dead classy wine bar. That it became one of London's best clubs is down to luck, a large dose of the vision of John Newman and one Laurence Malice, and a small quirk of history.

"We used to do these karaoke nights," Danny recalls, "and Paul was always into DJing, so he'd play afterwards sometimes, and other promoters would do stuff. After a while, we started to realise that once all the suits had gone after karaoke, the place would fill up with all these kids in tie-dyed T-shirts, bandanas and stuff."

This, of course, was in 1988-90. Handy, huh? But there were still one or two problems, as the bit of grit in Turnmills' oyster, Trade's Laurence Malice, recalls.

"Oh gawd, the first time I went there, they had a bloody piano and this 'orrible dancefloor made of metal, about the size of a postage stamp," Malice growls down the phone from LA, where he's currently spreading the Trade gospel.

"Nobody I brought down to look at it could see any potential in the place, but I knew it had something. Xanadu, the first club I did down there, basically involved bussing people over like Emma ['wild child'] Ridley, Jason Donovan and all the Chelsea set. It was the first place Seb Fontaine DJed. After that I started doing this Sunday afternoon there called FF."

Mentalism

FF was put on in association with a satirical gay mag of the same name (who claimed that the initials stood for 'First Friday'. Hmm.) It would later become the Sunday night end to the great gay/mixed club marathon of the early Nineties – Garage at Heaven/ various Saturday nighters/Trade/chill out/FF. A period so unimaginably brain-fucking that this particular hack, despite having gone to FF about a dozen times back then, could not remember that Turnmills was its venue. But we digress.

"I approached John Newman with the idea for Trade – I knew people wanted somewhere to go after hours," Malice continues. "The thing about John is, he's always been very forward-thinking. I mean the second time I met him I was dressed in a rubber swimsuit with a furry jacket and a big hairdo, but nothing shocks him. The Newmans are very 'straight' people, but John was always very supportive."

And he had a ready-made DJ in the family, as Malice recalls.

"The first place Tall Paul DJed was Trade. But even with that, I had to listen to his tapes – John didn't try to force me into it."

And so Tall Paul became the next part of this London wide-boy straight/gay crossover. . .

"I used to go down Turnmills, clean up, do the lights and that," Paul says. "I was into the music down at Trade, so I'd go down, listen to the music. The make-up of the crowd didn't bother me at all – alright, there were a few bitchy comments, but it wasn't a problem."

And surely a tall, handsome DJing bit of rough is going to get one or two propositions in a place like Trade?

"A few times. I'd say 'I'm married off, mate', I never had any confrontations or embarrassing moments or anything. I wasn't their type!"

As well as Tall Paul, Trade and FF helped launch the careers of a number of DJs – Smokin' Jo, Trevor Rockliffe, Daz Saund, Malcolm Duffy, Mrs Wood and Blu Peter all made reputations there. Laurence Malice reckons it kickstarted the surrounding area's economy, too.

"Before Trade, Clerkenwell was not the place to live. I really believe that Trade helped gentrify the area, cos a lot of the queens moved in, they loved it so much. When we started out we were bussing people in from Chelsea – they'd never been to that area in their lives. A lot of the queens that go to Trade are in a very high wage bracket, and they were interested, know what I mean?"

TURNMILLS

And Turnmills is a historically important part of Clerkenwell, as Malice, again, is happy to tell you. "It was supposed to be the home of Fagin, and it was also a gin distillery before it was a club – Turnmill Street was [18th Century satirical cartoonist] Hogarth's Gin Lane, you know. . ."

Actually, Muzik has heard it said that before being a distillery, the site of Turnmills has been used as a place for carousing and getting shit-faced since the Middle Ages. Perhaps it's tribal memories, echoes of the past that make the club what it is. It's just the red-nosed derelicts of Hogarth's time have been replaced by happy dancefloor punters, packing every square nanometer of Turnmills' dancefloor, where once they would have packed Turnmill Street, lovely gin in hand, merrily retching from consumption.

But let's not get ahead of ourselves. In the mid-Nineties, Trade aside, happy dancefloor punters were proving hard to come by.

"For ages we were banging our heads against a brick wall trying to get a successful Friday night going," Tall Paul remembers. "Trade was always getting all the attention. Even The Gallery took six or seven months to kick off. In fact, if we'd had club rents hanging over our heads cos we were hiring the place we'd have junked it within the first year; we wouldn't have been able to sustain it."

Happily, they persevered and The Gallery went supernova. Tall Paul reckons he knows why.

"The crowd we've got down there is very open-minded. We have such a mix of DJs, and nobody gets pissed off, whoever it is. It's special. I've played sets down there and the place has been absolutely rocking, then played practically the same set elsewhere and it's gone a bit over people's heads."

Brother Danny is quick to defend The Gallery from accusations of overt commercialism, too.

"I think anything that's successful becomes commercial, but that doesn't mean it sets out to be commercial. We had DJs like Timo and Sander down here before anyone else, Fergie, Lottie. . . One of the nicest things is seeing new DJs come through, and I still listen to loads of tapes every week. Plenty go in the bin, but plenty more get calls back."

Tall Paul

John Newman

And like we said, they always keep a musical balance at Turnmills. The Gallery's back room plays host once a month to Tom Stephan's cutting edge Chumbomundo night, just as in the past it's had the legendary likes of the Heavenly Social. Add to that the underground Headstart and the US house-based London Calling and it's hard to accuse Turnmills of chasing the cash butterfly with a big fuck-off net.

"John Newman's made money out of Turnmills," Laurence Malice avers, "but he's put a lot back too."

And tonight at The Gallery is where it all comes together. Paul's done his bit – biggest tune, not surprisingly, 'Smoke Machine' by X-Press 2 – and Julesy's on. The Muzik crew are sceptical, but the Turnmills crowd go crazy apeshit bonkers to the great man. Even when he plays 'Nightmare' by Brainbug. Same as they did to Paul, same as they have in the past to Lottie, Fergie, Tony De Vit, Mrs Wood, Blu Peter, Trevor Rockcliffe, Sister Bliss, Sander Kleinenberg and Timo Maas and more. Same as they will at Headstart tomorrow to Aphex Twin. Same as they're starting to with underground darlings like Tom Stephan and Bedroom Bedlam's Alison Marks. Because if Turnmills is about anything, it's about a packed, sweaty, friendly dancefloor, a layout designed by a lunatic and that most mystical of qualities, 'the music'. That's why it's endured.

"Who knows what tomorrow will bring," Danny Newman concludes. "But where other clubs might be thinking of bowing out gracefully by the time of their 15th birthday, we're not ready to do that. We're giving away a free CD with Muzik cos we wanted to something back to the punters and because the music's what it's all about. That's what Muzik stands for and that's what we stand for."

Turnmills Tales

Danny Newman

"One of the most memorable nights we've had here was when Tony De Vit did that 12-hour set at Trade. There was lots of food around and he was drinking a lot of fruit juices and that, pissing in bottles and all sorts. The number of people that stayed and cheered him at the end was mental.

"Then so many mad things happened down here when we had the Heavenly Social in the back room. Fuckin' full-on mental amyl-house it was. One night, Richard Fearless I think it was, played 'Weekender' by Flowered Up. People were hanging off the fuckin' sprinkler pipes, and they all burst. The water flooded down Turnmills. It was very stressful for me, sweeping up the water – people going "nah, don't stop the night!" And then we had to open up for Trade that night and all. . ."

Laurence Malice

"I once did a night at Turnmills with Tasty Tim called Beyond. The make-up of the crowd was basically trannies and the City brigade, which is a pretty healthy mix as it happens. City boys always like a bit of dragging up. Tall Paul and Danny used to come down and be, like, 'what the fuckin' 'ell's this?' We turned Madonna away once – she was over here filming In Bed With Madonna. She wanted her own entrance and everything and we just told her to sling her hook. We had a Madonna impersonator performing on that particular night too, which was rather amusing."

Sister Bliss

"I love Turnmills. It's like a labyrinth with a furry, human lining. You can lose yourself in there. I always premiere new mixes at The Gallery, including any new Faithless material or remixes that we do. I always cut a slate and test it out in there. So I'd like to thank the people of Turnmills for helping me to test new records. Although they usually just sit behind me, skinning up! Nah, you can tell by the number of the hands coming up through the laser light how well it's gonna do."

Fifteen Years Of Turnmills: A Retrospective mixed by Tall Paul

"THESE TRACKS MEANT a lot to the club," says Tall Paul, mid-way through recording his artist album deep in the heart of Turnmills' central London studio. "We've grown up with labels like JBO and Hooj from the Trade days, when my production was coming to the fore.

Tracks like Lottie's 'Bushroot' and mine are a reminder of the people who helped us out along the way. We start off with vocal stuff from the 1992-4 era, move to piano-led stuff and it's come full circle now."

So how's the album going then, Paul?

"It's due out in November, with some old stuff and some new stuff. I've done a track with Mr G [who remixed Lottie's 'Bushroot'], there's some mellow music on there and lots of stuff with my man Larry Lush. It'll be out on Duty Free and it's called 'Back And Forth' because it reflects the way that DJing life has become... there's a lot of moving about!"

Here, then, is Tall Paul's track by track guide to Muzik's exclusive Turnmills anniversary mix:

1 Fire Island 'There But For The Grace Of God'

"An anthemic vocal with classic Farley & Heller production. That reflects the label as well – we've always supported that sound at the club. Those gospel vibes had a nice Balearic feel."

2 Funkatarium 'Jump'

"A real Gallery groover that was played by most of the DJs. Even though people's tastes were dissimilar, 'Jump' united a lot of people. At the time, it started off the night. It was a track that would be built on for events to come."

3 Outrage 'That Piano Track'

"Another song that's a reminder of a fantastic era in London. I remember some great gigs at Shelley's in Covent Garden and at Club For Life. This was a big Balearic crowd pleaser, a cool song. It also introduced The Big Moment back to house, but it wasn't obvious. I'd dig it out now and blow the dust off it, definitely!"

4 Lottie 'Bushroot' (Mr G Remix)

"A great example of artist, label and club interacting – and a reminder of what Lottie means to The Gallery. She used to be a Trade-head, you know! We've used the Mr G mix here. G and I have done a track for my album. I love his drums, the guy's a genius. What's a bushroot? Ask Lottie!"

5 Sil 'Windows 98'

"This is a record that crosses boundaries and one I'd play in the first hour of a set. It was ahead of its time, and still gets pulled out now and again, especially by people like Sister Bliss. I'm sure it will revamp itself, like good records do!"

6 BBE 'Seven Days And One Week' (Rollo & Sister Bliss Mix)

"This reminds me of Jean Michel Jarre. It was a massive record in Ibiza '96. The ATB of its time? No, it was more special than that. It's very simple but it used to move people. I used to play it in Ibiza along with The Rhythm Masters' mix of 'Keep On Jumpin'. Like Rollo's early stuff, it always got played down the club."

7 Tall Paul 'Rock Da House' (Original Mix)

"Well, it was made for Red Jerry, who was starting Hooj but I wanted it for Trade Records. But [A & R supremo] Darren Strokes was working for Effective and signed it and that kept it quite underground, but it did me a lot of favours. I've given away an amazing number of signed copies in my time!"

8 Sour Mash 'Pilgrimage To Paradise' (Barrell Beat Mix)

"First released on Dance Kult, one of Hooj's offshoots. People still remember it from that 'Circus Bells' / Hardfloor era. The acid sound came out again and the record celebrates that! We had some great nights down here at that time."

9 Jark Prongo 'Movin' Through Your System'

"This record sums up the end of the night when the lights go down a bit and the music goes up. 'Moving Through Your System' is a really tough, minimal track that goes well with the lasers!"

10 Art Of Trance 'Madagascar' (Ferry Corsten Remix)

"This used to get played at the peak of people's sets. Platipus has always had some big records at the club. This is another Big Moment record and a big favourite at The Gallery."

11 Tony De Vit 'Burning Up'

"We couldn't do a mix album without at least one of Tony's records on there. Tony used to come down as a Trade customer and I knew he was talented from the moment he got a chance to play there with me, Malcolm Duffy, Smokin' Jo and Daz Saund. He's definitely sorely missed down here."

Breaking America

Muzik does Miami and Tampa with nu skool breaks superstar Adam Freeland words Ralph Moore

photos Simon Warren

CERTAIN KEY QUESTIONS pop into your head when you're on tour with some of the biggest breakbeat acts in the world. Like, why have one tour bus when you can have two? Just how rock 'n' roll can a road trip get? And how come (music hack on the) road movie Almost Famous keeps coming back to haunt us?

At short notice, Muzik has accepted a weekend trip to Miami to check out the on-tour antics of Uberzone, The Crystal Method and England's very own Adam Freeland. Taking in 25 cities in 28 days, it's a chance for ver 'Meth to plug their new album 'Tweekend' and a way for Adam to reach a crowd outside of his usual clubland haunts. But for some reason that damn film keeps flashing back...

Almost Famous' Moment Number One:

The night before we arrive, Muzik hears word that the mighty Method tour bus leaves the venue minus the ever-so-slightly crucial tour DJ. Lucky for Adam, then, that he spots the bus trundling off into the distance and is forced to leg after it in just a pair of socks. Minus his beloved sneakers, he's still hobbling – slightly humbled – from the shoeless experience several days later. How could they leave without him?

"[Tour manager] Billy's got strict rules," Adam shrugs. "If you're not back for bus curfew they just leave – as I discovered!"

Almost Famous' Moment Number Two:

'Accidentally' entering a strip joint before the gig at Boynton Beach, we're surprised to hear a familiar tune in between the Limp Bizkit/ Lost Boys soundtrack. "It's one of mine!" yells Adam before legging it over to the DJ booth. The track turns out to be 'The Red Pill' by Scratch D Versus H-Bomb. "It's on my label," he grins, beaming proudly. "Really?" replies the not noticeably overwhelmed DJ. "I downloaded it off the internet."

'Almost Famous' Moment Number Three:

How does the biggest breakbeat act in America warm up for a late night gig in Miami? By knocking back tequila? By relaxing with some weed and some eye candy on DVD? Nope. Minutes before they're due on stage, Muzik finds The Crystal Method's keyboard player Ken Jordan singing along to Elton John on their tour bus with his missus on backing vocals. The cut in question? 'Tiny Dancer', the main musical motif from... Almost Famous.
Cut.

Walking like an Egyptian is still popular in Tampa

Adam demonstrates the reverse-crab hamster punch. Or something

If the road to success is paved with excess, then we've stumbled across the right sidewalk. Arriving at Boynton Beach just before his set commences, we're met by a freshly-shorn Freeland, eager to show us the trappings of touring. The bus is littered with rock 'n' roll detritus. There's a plastic Jesus – with full gliding action! – on the kitchen sink. There's more ice and beer bottles than one man could possibly consume without risking a ruptured liver. And there are CDs and DVDs aplenty. It's couples' week and so wives, girlfriends and co-habitants have all hopped on board for 48 hours. Heaven knows what it's like when they're not here. . .

"I've never done a tour like this," says Adam, sipping on an energy drink. "I normally DJ in clubs to people who know who I am. I met Scott and Ken from Crystal Method a few years ago and we just got on. Scott's always given me the confidence to go for it, so when they asked me to do this tour I was well up for it. It's very Spinal Tap – some fucking hilarious things have happened and I've only been on tour for a week! I can imagine some funny things will happen as we start going into the deep south and everyone's girlfriends go home. It's a funny mixture of people too. You've got the kooky bus driver, Q the mad eccentric. . . I love it!"

Still only 28, Adam Freeland knows a thing or two about travel. Whether it's a quick jaunt over to Oz for The Big Day Out fest or playing to hordes of fans in Beijing, Adam's on a mission to break breakbeat on a global scale, winning respect from Sasha, Coxy and Tom Middleton in the process. And somewhere in between he finds time to run the Marine Parade imprint from his home in Brighton. A self-confessed surfing fanatic, Adam spends his time chasing breaks both in the sea and out. Just don't call him a Brighton hippy.

"I'm not!" he counters, rising to Muzik's bait. "I work way too hard for that!" But Adam knows he's an easy target. "Every time I come home I look at the sea," he admits. "And I only eat fish!"

Still, it soon becomes clear why he's so successful. Spinning from in between two concave mirrors in Miami, Adam's decks dexterity is as fun to watch as it is to hear. Slicing tracks like 'It Began In Afrika' into fresh new slates from IIs and Bushwacka!, it's a ridiculously funky sound that leaves several front-seat fans gaping-mouthed. Free of the shackles of the 4/4 beat, the only place left is precisely where you want to go. In Tampa the next night he digs out Josh Wink's 'Higher State Of Consciousness'. It's probably the only track that Tampa knows, but that's a good thing. For Adam, it's all about looking forward.

Breaks fashion, US style: Perhaps a bit more cool than Koma & Bones

What are people from Tampa called? Tampons?

"Since I did 'Coastal Breaks' I've been coming here regularly," he explains after a glorious 90-minute set at The Masquerade in Ybor City, Tampa. "It's a very exciting time for breakbeat."

But does he worry about bandwagon-jumpers getting involved? What if Judge Jules decided to 'go breakbeat'?

"It all depends on quality," answers Adam diplomatically. "If Jules started playing breakbeat I imagine it'd be cheesy, but if he played some wicked, rolling, deep breakbeat set, I'd say, 'respect!' The more DJs who play breaks, the better. The reason I play breakbeat is because it's the most forward-looking form of club music."

And is that something you think is missing in house music?

"Yeah. House music goes in circles more. 15 years on, people are still using the fucking 909! There's nothing like a great house record – when I started I was a house DJ – but my nature is that I get bored quickly and I got bored of house

In two months' time everyone in Hoxton will look like this music. It's got to be fresh. . . it's like when you hear a new sound. That's what I live for."

Suddenly the mood changes.

"For fuck's sake, in last month's Rolling Stone, Paul Oakenfold said he only plays breakbeat now. I challenge Oakenfold to mix two breakbeat records together! You know what I mean? But he's a businessman and he knows. The fact that he thinks breakbeat is gonna be the next big thing. . ."

Other breakbeat names to watch

The Crystal Method

Ken Jordan and Scott Kirkland's latest album, the guitar-driven 'Tweekend', sold a quarter of a million copies in its first month. Just don't call them The American Chemical Brothers. . .

Uberzone

Q is the wibbly mastermind behind Uberzone, whose drum-clattering patterns are pure south London (but with fewer gunshots). Odd, really, because Q lives in LA with his cats.

Kevin Beber

Kevin and Adam Freeland created a defining moment in breaks history when they hooked up with BT to make 'Hip Hop Phenomenon'. His song-based album with sultry chanteuse Tamra is due out on Mob early next year. Looks like Telly Savalas. Well, a little bit.

Tayo

Fabric resident Tayo is the owner of the Mob label, who have released classics by the Stanton Warriors and Beber & Tamra. Obsessed with the similarly diminutive-yet-sexy Prince.

The sentence trails off. Adam's said enough. "Breakbeat's problem has been that there aren't enough DJs supporting it. There's Rennie Pilgrem, Freq Nasty, Tayo, Hyper, Blim, whoever. . . but there are only a handful with an international profile, whereas in drum & bass or prog you've got loads of DJs playing round the world. I'm on a fucking mission!"

Does it irk him, then, that Mr and Mrs Average listen to acts like Travis? There's a long, drawn out silence before he replies.

"That's the thing that - deep down - gripes me the most. Honestly, there's so much incredible music out there! And I have no interest in sitting on it and keeping it mine. I know what I'm doing is good and I believe this music needs to be heard by as many people as possible."

He needn't worry. Muzik's last memory of the trip is of a late night photo shoot by a parking lot near the venue. The gig is long over and the roads are near empty. With a little time and some rolls of film to kill, we shoot a few frames and start thinking about the journey ahead. Suddenly a lone Cadillac screeches from out of nowhere.

"Hey Adam!" hollers the driver. It's a fan from the gig. "Wanna come to a party?"

Almost Famous? Not bloody likely.

On the up with Kosheen – the trio putting drum & bass
on Top Of The Pops

"OH LOOK," says Kosheen singer Sian Evans, pointing from the window of the minibus. "There are loads of really random people on the road." Indeed there are. And on the verges are similar pockets of idlers, relaxing with fags, looking for all the world like they're waiting for a brass band to come on. Can you imagine tooling along the M1 and seeing groups of blokes strolling up the hard shoulder, hands in pockets, probably whistling? You can't, can you? That's because, as a place to spend your day, motorways figure just below abattoirs in most normal folks' thinking.

But this is Turkey and, like the past, it's another country. On the one hand it's lent its name to a delicious sugary sweet that's 'full of Eastern promise'; on the other, it has an approach to human rights that can best be described as 'slapdash'. So slapdash is its approach to human rights, in fact, that at the time of writing several people outside Finsbury Park in London are on hunger strike in protest. By the time you read this, of course, their protest will probably be over.

So, strange indeed. Kosheen should fit right in. They're the two-blokes-and-a-girl dance thing you've seen on Top Of The Pops and heard on the radio, and whose drum & bass crossover single 'Hide U' you've been humming despite yourself. And who will probably sink without trace after releasing a follow-up single that sounds exactly the same and then a laughable album with 12 different versions of that same song. Aren't they?

Well, no. But that's what we've come to Turkey to find out. Kosheen are due to perform at a one-day festival in the nation's capital, Istanbul. With an admirable economy of imagination, this event is simply called Techno & Dance Festival and features hordes of Turkish acts you've never heard of as well as a smattering of big names. Old warhorses like headliners Orbital, battle-scarred veterans like Slam and Luke Slater, and new pups on the block, Kosheen.

The trio of vocalist Sian and producers Markee Substance and Darren Decoder (yes, that's Substance & Decoder, drum & bass heads) arrive on site about an hour before they're due on and disappear to do whatever it is bands do before they go on stage – vomit, probably. Muzik takes the opportunity during this important time to have a gander at the pristine-looking site. It soon becomes clear that Kosheen face something of a difficult gig. Firstly, there are not many people here. Later they'll arrive in huge numbers but it's only 7pm and everybody in Turkey is either sleeping or sitting beside a motorway. The site is barely a quarter full.

Secondly, the band on before Kosheen have effectively emptied the main stage. They try, bless them. They probably donate to charity, love their mums and never make off-colour jokes about members of the opposite sex, but the fact is they wandered into a Whirl-Y-Gig tent in 1991 and forgot to leave. And thirdly, everyone not studiously ignoring the band on the main stage is glued to a game of basketball being shown at a stage opposite. Apparently, basketball is hugely popular in Turkey and this is like their FA Cup or something. In any event, as uphill struggles go, this one would have Chris Bonnington forging sicknotes.

Who are Kosheen?

Sian Evans

Charismatic, red-haired singer Evans cut her musical teeth on the free party scene before retiring to a Welsh mountain to raise her son. She later bumped into Substance & Decoder at a Ruffneck Ting night in Bristol and Kosheen were born.

Says: "When you listen to our music you can tell we've had a dubious past."

Swears: a lot.

Markee Substance

Real name Mark Morrison, Glasgow-born Markee moved to Bristol in the early Nineties to create the Ruffneck Ting nights with Darren Decoder, as well as setting up the Breakbeat Culture record shop.

Says: "We get a lot of groups of Japanese tourists who come and take pictures of Breakbeat Culture."

Swears: a lot.

Darren Decoder

Real name Darren Beale, Decoder was a punk before Portishead's Geoff Barrow introduced him to the delights of sampling. Trips to free parties like Spiral Tribe and Bedlam inspired him to write hardcore, moving from there to drum & bass, Ruffneck Ting and Breakbeat Culture with Substance.

Says: "There are only three or four drum & bass producers writing stuff that I think is any good. Nah, I ain't gonna say who they are."

Swears: an awful lot.

"Out on the wiley, windy moors. . ."

"I don't want to fuck off the hardcore purists"

trillion compilation album licenses, and they're not puppets for a record company keen to buy themselves a bit of cred. Unconvinced? Read on. . .

The Kosheen story began some three years ago, when Decoder & Substance hooked up with fellow Bristolian Sian Evans, fresh from a stint living in a teepee in Wales, as you do. All were veterans of the free party scene of the early Nineties ("We probably stepped over each other a few times," says Sian) and all found themselves looking for a new direction. Mixing desks were duly manned.

The result of their work was a new sound, a song-based shackling of drum & bass and breakbeat to a pop/soul sensibility. Not the coffee table torch song beat-fiddling we're used to from Bristol, but songs with their feet on the dancefloor and hooks in your head. It's at once fresh and familiar. Unashamedly pop but with the kind of depth that demands repeat visits.

For Decoder & Substance, in particular, Kosheen was a reaction to their disillusionment with a drum & bass underground they'd been instrumental in creating.

This uphill struggle followed by conversion at a small Turkish music festival is a microcosm of all that Kosheen have and will go through. And the problem, ironically, is 'Hide U'. It's a little black dress of a tune, a track so versatile that its Stephane K and John Creamer mix scored them a Top 10 hit, while the original – and superior – mix found its way into Oakenfold's box.

"It's certainly earned its money," says Sian, with commendable understatement. But it's also the reason we have to tell you what Kosheen are not.

They are not two producers who fancied being on Top Of The Pops and hired a bird to sing their song; they're not overnight chancers with an eye on a

But then a startling thing happens. As tumbleweed blows across the main stage, Kosheen make their entrance. Decoder & Substance assume positions at decks towards the back of the stage and Sian straddles the mic. The bass goes wah, the floor shakes, she opens her mouth and people come flocking. No joke. As if programmed, the audience suddenly sweeps before the stage to dance. If the festival had been in hibernation before, when Kosheen arrive, the party starts.

They play 'Hide U', of course, but it's only one of several highlights, including 'Slip And Slide (Suicide)' which sees bass being drilled to subterranean depths while Sian fends off a cameraman with potentially amorous designs. If any cynical members of the audience had been expecting a brief, lacklustre PA – say, two songs as a perfunctory warm-up for 'Hide U' – they are swiftly made to feel ashamed of their doubt. Kosheen rock. And having slain the audience with their drum & bass crossover hybrid, Sian leaves the stage to Decoder & Substance, who play a DJ set just to remind everyone that they're the ice-cool mack daddies of the underground scene.

Turk Hard, Play Hard: A Turkish music festival survival guide

Don't: Take drugs. Or bring drugs. Don't even think about drugs. If you find yourself thinking about drugs, wear a woolly hat to prevent your thoughts escaping into the air. See the film Midnight Express for more information.

Do: Leave your Manchester United shirt at home. Burn it to be on the safe side. Why not just burn it anyway?

Don't: Expect to stand at the back making sardonic comments from the side of your mouth like, "Orbital playing the same set again." Turkish people like to party and you will be trampled by people less cynical than you.

Do: Smoke a lot. Like a Turk, in fact. But not drugs, obviously.

verse that goes round and round. It's catchy. It's very accessible. It's quite tribal and spiritual and protective. There's a lot of depth to it."

Nevertheless:

"We didn't set out to be crossover," says Markee. "We knew what we were doing, we knew it had the potential to do that, but ultimately you just concentrate on doing fucking good music."

"But we're not going to do another 'Hide U'," Sian adds. "We've pushed the boundaries now, so we can keep doing that and people aren't going to say, 'oh they're re-designing themselves'. I want people to get on the Kosheen vibe and come on board long-term with us."

So they're not chancers then, not puppets and certainly not two-blokes-and-a-bird miming along to their Ibiza hit. Even so, writing accessible, commercial music means having to visit environments that are fairly alien to three ex-Spiral Tribe ravers.

"We've done a few things where some pop act has been on and we're on after them," says Markee. "It's funny because we don't really fit in, but we can hold our heads up high. These are tunes we produced ourselves on the cheap in our studio and it's up there with the massive tunes that they put together. That gives us an internal buzz."

"And the kids go just as crazy for us as they go for Ronan Keating or someone like that," smiles Sian. "And I didn't even have to wear a lip ring! We're all grown-ups; we're ready to take on whatever. We made a pact that we'll see it through and we're going to. I'm not going to go on a crash diet or have plastic surgery to sell records. This is what we are, what we're like. I don't think they'd ever let us on Ant and Dec's show." M

Carry on up the jungle

The drum & bass moles who have emerged blinking into the light

Goldie

The man with the teeth got Q readers into a lather with his debut LP, 'Timeless' in 1995. But his 'difficult' second album, 'Saturnz Return' was shunned by a cruel world, while roles in the Bond film The World Is Not Enough and EastEnders led some to speculate that he couldn't even play himself convincingly. Given that he's got a rep for attacking journalists, Muzik would like to make it clear that WE don't think anything of the sort.

Adam F

Alvin Stardust's son tickled the fancy of Britannia Music Club members with his first album 'Colours' in 1997 before briefly admitting himself to the Where Are They Now? file. Mr F has since reinvented himself as a hip hop producer, tweaking the knobs for Redman and launching his brilliantly bonkers 'Kaos' album on the world.

Alex Reece

Welding his love of early Detroit techno to drum & bass, Reece produced a d&b standard in 'Pulp Fiction'. But by the time of his 'So Far' album in 1996, the drum & bass community were accusing him of selling out. Mind you, anyone selling more than 100 copies of their record gets accused of that in the d&b world. Unlike Adam F, his trip to the Where Are They Now? file has proved to be a one-way ticket.

→ "Drum & bass was getting fucking boring," says Darren Decoder (Beale to his bank manager). "I'd been writing it a long time and I need to keep doing different things. Drum & bass gets played for a month and then it's gone and forgotten, but there are tracks on the Kosheen album we did when we got together three years ago that still sound fresh now."

"Yeah, the thing is, a good song or a good track can last for years," adds Markee Substance (née Morrison). "That's what we're trying to do now."

The danger was that the drum & bass cognoscenti, a fiercely underground, isolationist group at the best of times, would turn their backs on Decoder & Substance. Not that they seem to care unduly.

"We got some gyp," admits Darren. "People were saying, 'what you playing that for - that's not hard and dark, who's going to play that?'. But when we started writing this, we did it because we were enjoying writing and doing something different."

"I don't want to fuck off the hardcore purists," adds Markee. "But there are people who like songs. For us, you've got to have the bollocks to do what you want to do and not get caught up in all that purist dance bullshit."

The irony of this discussion of the underground is that Kosheen's music is now reaching an audience who wouldn't know drum & bass and breakbeat from semolina. And it looks like that's going to be the case from now on. 'Hide U' (their third single) may have taken them out of Muzik's Trainspotting pages and into the charts, but they've got an album's worth of tracks that are just as good.

The album, 'Resist', was recorded in Substance & Decoder's Bristol studio, and on hearing it, the suits at BMG signed them to a five-album deal. 'Hide U' may be their first assault on the charts, but they have the heavy artillery to back it up. Still, the sudden whirlwind of activity around the single must have taken them by surprise.

"Of course," says Sian. "A drum & bass tune that goes Top 10? But then, it's only got one

Album Of The Month

Aphex Twin: His record is, quite literally, "dxv/splimtonstic39", critics say

APHEX TWIN

Drukqs (Warp)

Business as usual for Thom Yorke's ginger-bearded muse

SOME OF US still remember a time when releasing an unlistenable record was something to be ashamed of. Not any more. In these enlightened times it's considered the height of cool to purchase records solely to enjoy the look on someone's face when they walk into the room and go "what the fuck are you listening to?"

The fact that people find it commercially viable to release these what-the-fuck records is largely down to the Aphex Twin, the Colonel Kurtz of the rave wars. A man so influential that Radiohead based a whole new direction around him; probably the greatest living Cornishman, and certainly the coolest. Woe betide you if you don't think he's a genius. Men have been hung for lesser crimes.

But then, there's a reason he enjoys this twisted genius reputation. It's because he releases records that make people go "what the fuck?" (because they don't make the distinction between the Aphex Twin and a scaffolding accident. The Philistines) and because his records are, those people notwithstanding, really, really good. You can actually enjoy them for their own sake.

Here, then, is the new one. And if Chris Clark, Kid 606, Radiohead, all the brandancers and probably Nike were expecting clues to their future direction, they will be very disappointed. Mr D James hasn't done a lot in the way of changing over recent years (although, cunningly, he always gives the impression of changing) and there's no sudden foray down new avenues here. Instead we get 30 strangely named tracks over two CDs which mainly expand on the whimsical chamber-jungle that marked his last full-length release, 'Richard D James'.

Much of it is practically unlistenable, of course. That's the point. Its conceit is that you have to put in the work to get it, and because this is Aphex, we probably will. In return, he gives us time off for good behaviour, and for every drill & bass insane-a-thon, like '54 Cymru Beats', there are downtempo tunes that hark back to his 'Selected Ambient Works' era. It's these which yield the album's more interesting moments. He seems to be able to chuck out quite beautiful ambient numbers at will and there are plenty on here, all sublime, while the almost static 'Gwarek 2' is downright scary, much more so than any of the 'Come To Daddy'-isms elsewhere.

Trouble is, there are plenty of those on here as well. And while they do reward repeated listening – there's a trainspotterish pleasure in realising you're hearing a demented rework of 'Let's Get Brutal' by Nitro Deluxe on 'Afx237 V7' – they'll grind your 'nads too.

But that's Aphex for you. You take the rough with the smooth. And quite frankly, there's so much to go at on this astounding, confounding and occasionally quite brilliant album, that you'll find yourself ignoring its drawbacks – its length, the whiff of recycling – and returning to study afresh. And if the year throws up a more show-stopping moment than the "Come on you cunts, lets have some Aphex acid," shout out on 'Cock Ver/10', we'd like to hear it.

TEEBEE

Through The Eyes Of A Scorpion (Certificate 18)
Stripped-down junglist keeps the Norwegian flag flying

DRUM & bass is notoriously difficult to review, to portray in a manner that truly represents its gnarly twists and turns, its minimal street-beat stylings. Where do you begin, with no lyrics to mull over, very little in the way of hummable tunes and the only concept behind it all being that it's good fun dancing yourself into a lather to it (unless you're into all that Roni Size jazznik gear, that is)?

Thus it is with Norwegian martial arts junglist hero TeeBee, who provides us with a second long-player which should wend its way onto the stereos of those who wish to have something a bit meaty to get their teeth into before or after a night on the tiles.

TeeBee successfully combines the grinding bass growl and twisting splurge of effects which Muzik finds so appealing in the work of Renegade Hardware's roster or Bad Company, with a rolling dynamic that drags in the laydeez and anyone else who wants something a little less aggressive and a little more funky.

Here and there flutes flourish, submarine bleeps bounce about melodically and palatable female vocals drop just right. But overall TeeBee's latest stands as drum & bass at its indefatigable best, a raw concoction with enough rudeness and sex to not only keep Muzik's team of gnarly rave monkeys happy, but also those with gentler tastes who have previously expressed a dislike of the territory.

Neil Landstrumm

She Took A Bullet Meant For Me (Tresor)

New York-dwelling Glaswegian's latest challenging experiment fails to impress

WHILE there are those who believe that Neil Landstrumm is an edgy, experimental artiste at the forefront of the electronic avant garde, to plenty of others he's just a noisy bugger with an inexplicable desire to punish people's eardrums via the terrible, inharmonious racket he calls music. This writer has always held the latter view and there's little here to convince otherwise. The only decent melody line on the whole album comes from what sounds like an old Police sample and frankly there's nothing particularly groundbreaking about any of the rhythms either. For the most part this just sounds like the soundtrack to some second rate horror movie.

Dave Mothersole

Kings Of Convenience

Versus (Source)

Scandinavian folkies get a new lick of electronic paint

REMIXED by the finest leftfield talent this – and other – lands can offer, 'Versus' offers the best album track interpretations since The Fine Young Cannibals served up 'The Raw And The Remixed' back in 1989. But ah, we jest. In reality, 'Versus' rocks... gently. Röyksopp's mix of 'I Don't Know' is an autumnal dream, Riton re-tweak 'Sing Softly To Me', Andy Votel twists 'Winning A War' into Acidas sneakers and Muzik faves Ladytron give 'Little Kids' a new lick of electro paint. And for added value, Bamboo Soul, Air associate David Whittaker and Four Tet's Kieran Hebden are also involved. And if you haven't heard Röyksopp's remix of 'I Don't Know What I Can Save You From', then that's worth the entrance fee on its own.

Ralph Moore

Nor Elle

Slapstick (Mole Listening Pearls)

One of the house world's quietly productive kingpins heads for mellow waters

'SLAPSTICK' probably brings to mind images of anything from Lee Evans to the Keystone Cops. What it probably doesn't cause the mind to conjure is delightful, dubby soundscaping. All that changes, at least for the purposes of this review, with the release of Nor Elle's debut LP. 'Nor Elle' is short for Norman Feller, who in turn is (marginally) better known as quality German house geezer Terry Lee Brown Jnr, but judging from this, he's just as at home in Orb-ish pastures. He doesn't quite have the humour of Alex Patterson's outfit, but there's a enough imagination and appealing sonic wandering on 'Slapstick's 13 tracks to more than make up for any comic shortcomings.

Thomas H Green

Justin Robertson

Revtone (Nuphonic)

Robertson goes pop. We go 'push off, baldy'...

IN approaching his first solo outing outside of Lionrock, Justin Robertson seems to have had a nose through his record collection, particularly the section marked 'ancient Detroit techno'. From there it was a short step to releasing an album full of old-style house and techno, the like of which we haven't heard since at least 1988. It's a noble ambition, and the dividends are nice enough – the Ipress File atmosphere of 'The Ice Bureau' in particular. It's just not a particularly ambitious ambition. And the result is a record that's mainly quite nice, very accessible but not at all distinctive. And really, from a man of Robertson's obvious calibre, we expect a bit more. Good to hear Ernst Blofeld sampled on 'My Dark Places' though.

Utopian Dream (Puu/Sahko)

The specy Finnish eccentric returns to his roots

GONE is the patronage of Sheffield record label Warp, and with it the avant garde classical conceits, for Tenor has returned home to his Finnish Bontempi and sax roots (although technically speaking he's actually returned to Barcelona, where he lives with Nicole Willis). The results are fine fare, with Tenor laying down his usual showy musical trills and deadpan lyrics over a bedrock of electro-esque drums and studio effects. This isn't an icy techno outing though, for Tenor injects warmth with organic instrumentation, notably his famous saxophone, and the very fragility of most of his compositions. Truly enjoyable to listen to then, rather than 'conceptually interesting'. If only Warp had dumped him years ago!

Phats & Small

This Time Around (Multiply)

Second time around for cheeky, chart-loitering duo

PROBABLY not what you could call an 'albums band' without smirking, Phats & Small are nevertheless making a second spirited attempt at bothering Woolworths customers with this. They chuck everything in the oven and see if they can produce something tasty to eat, so we get the glitterball likes of 'Change' and 'Disco Lady' sharing album space with 'Respect The Cock', which is a decent enough stab at something darker, and apparently comes recommended by Judge Jules himself. It's hardly amazing, but then neither is it at all offensive. It's just 'there', really.

Andrew Holmes

Ian Brown

Planet Of The Spheres (Polydor)

More stoned than rosey, but palatable

IT'S the late Sixties, Kingston, Jamaica, and Toots Hibbert ain't a happy man. He knows he's being played by his lady friend, but not who with. So, he writes a tune called 'Monkey Man' to voice his displeasure at the cheeky sod messing around with his Queen. 35 years later and we are landed with Mr Brown, the biggest simian of them all, who still persists in knocking out his low slung, deliriously absurd, downtempo mong music. He sings in Spanish, babbles on about snorkels and elephant trunks and employs trusty old 'fear/here', 'still/hill' rhyme schemes. And it was recorded on a boat. But unadventurous as it might be, with its shameful Air-isms and clumsy lyrics, there is something undeniably amiable about 'Planet Of The Spheres' and, indeed, King Monkey himself.

Carl Stroud

Jamie Anderson

Blue Music (NRK)

Why not get the clean 'Blue' freshness into your life?

IS that 'blue' as in down in the dumps or 'blue' as in the word your gran would use to describe a little innocent flesh baring? A bit of both, as it happens. Although opener 'Puesta Del Sol' brings a welcome note of sun and sex to the frequently over-boyish realm of tech-house, there's also a melancholic undercurrent that deepens things out beautifully. Elsewhere you've got lackadaisical jazzy beats ('Another Day'), chugging utopian house ('They See Nothing') and, in the form of 'Trippin'', a sublime piece of 303-spiked funk of the sort that Damon Wild used to do so well.

Ned Denny

Green Velvet

Whatever (Music Man)

Techno's Mister Bonkers hits the spot again

FOR someone who produced such a vehemently anti-drug anthem as the already classic 'La La Land', it's odd that Curtis Jones manages to create music that's the aural equivalent of snorting 10 grams of Columbia's finest. His second album as Green Velvet, 'Whatever' is an unruly, amphetamine-driven beast that welds jackhammer funk to industrial beats and constantly threatens to implode. The chaotic 'Minimum Rage' is anything but, but best of all is the schizoid techno of 'GAT (The Great American Tragedy)' with Jones screaming "This is not a fucking phase!" in his best Kevin the teenager guise. Marvellous.

Neil Gardner

P Do Wa Diddy Diddy Dum Diddy Do, or whatever he's called these days

P DIDDY

The Saga Continues (Puff Daddy)
Diddy he do well?!

POST-'Missing You', Sean 'Puffy' Combs became a hate figure to rival Vinegar Tits out of Prisoner. Justifiably too, you might say, given his preening self-regard, his habit of lifting huge chunks of crappy pop songs, rapping badly over the top and having mega hits, and the fact that he appears to have more money than everybody else in the world put together.

But his name change is a masterstroke. How can you hate a guy who's called P Diddy? It'd be like hating Scooby Doo. Or HR Puffenstuff. And how, more importantly, can you hate someone who puts together albums as good as this? The most pleasant and unlikely hip hop surprise since, well, Adam F's album last month, 'The Saga Continues' boasts crisp production, NO clunking samples, a more mature lyrical outlook and top contributions from the likes of Black Rob, Faith Evans and Loon. It won't change your life—but it should change your view of the Diddy. Duncan Bell

Schmoov!: Only one of them has noticed the naked man who's just walked into the room

SCHMOOV!

While You Wait (DIY Discs)

Andre Bonsor, John Buckby and Andrew Tytherleigh were deep house ghetto dwellers. Until now...

EXCLAMATION marks in pop music aren't necessarily always a bad thing. Following in the footsteps of Wham! and Matthew Bushwacka!, Nottingham's best asset since Bent are hell-bent on massaging your mind, aided by a lifetime of experience and the best record collection this side of John Peel.

The painfully mature deep house glimmer of 'Playground' is as heart-rending as an on-form Carl Craig, while 'Keep On Bumpin' shimmies like Miguel Migs. Public Domain this is not.

But it's not all deep house solemnity. On the only slightly serious 'Aqua Marina', local vocalist Catboy melds with Ben Martin's sax for a lament to a relationship gone awry. "All I did was try to befriend her," he croons, toupé intact. "Now I want back that tenner I lent her." It's not every day that deep house and comedy collide on the way to the DJ booth. There must be something in the water up in Nottingham...

In short, 'While You Wait' has a style and grace all of its own, but recalls the debut album splendour of Big Muff and Neon Heights. And that's a fact!

GEN-IK

Outside In (No Bones)

Anonymous breakbeat bod hits a seam of good shit

BOASTING possibly the least interesting cover art ever, an utterly forgettable title, and on a label no one's ever heard of, this is exactly the sort of release that could slip through Muzik's critical net unreviewed, unloved and basically rejected (we're cruel, we know). Once the little silver disc is plucked from its dull packaging and placed in sound reproducing equipment, however, it's another story.

Computer game soundtracker Simon Robertson, who appears on the back of the album in cybernetic skeletal form, kicks up a storm of breakbeats attached to everything from trumpets to bad-ass bass bleeps. Refusing to be pinned into any particular genre Gen-ik runs the gamut of four-to-the-floor X-Press 2 house-funk, evil Freq Nasty whiplash beats, and even guitars.

'Outside In' probably won't create a storm of media interest, so unpromising is its exterior. But everyone from Koma & Bones to Basement Jaxx could learn a trick or two from such tight stylish studio technique.

Maurice Fulton

Maurice Fulton Presents Stress

Why Put Me Through It? (Transfusion)

Totally doolally American house producer does his twisted thang

STUART Paterson's small but perfectly formed Transfusion label has been knocking out underground house twelves for the best part of five years now, so it's about time they finally stepped up to longplayer status. And who better to lead the way than the daddy of all things mentalist, Maurice Fulton. The great thing about Maurice is that, unlike most artists, you really don't have a clue as to what his next release will sound like. True to form, 'Tarzan Girl' drops effected flutes over bumpy beats, 'My Gigolo' does the pornoboggie stomp and 'Look In The Mirror' comes on like Lalo Schifrin on some spectacularly bad acid. Decidedly different, but then you probably knew that already.

Beth Hirsch

Titles And Idols (!K7)

Realising that all those singing, songwriting Beths can get confusing, Muzik provide a review to help differentiate

BEFORE we go any further, yes Beth did sing on Air's 'All I Need' and, yes, Muzik did blub like a bitch with a skinned knee upon first hearing it and, yes, there is more than a passing sonic resemblance to Norfolk's finest Beth, Ms Orton. Alright? Since last year's debut 'Early Days', Hirsch has decamped to New York and managed to rope in Warp glitchers Black Dog to produce a fair swathe of this album, and the result is pretty fine. Occasionally lapsing into a bit of wine bar whimsy (see 'Captain Daylight') 'Titles And Idols' is on the whole a winsome, heartbroken gem of a record.

Adam Goldstone

ADAM GOLDSTONE

Lower East Side Stories (Nuphonic)

Unfortunately-timed paean to New York's Lower East Side from veteran Big Apple DJ

HOW was New Yorker Adam Goldstone to know that by making his debut album for Nuphonic a tribute to where he lives and works he'd be unwittingly documenting a place that seems now to belong to another age after the horrific events of September 11th 2001?

At the time of writing, the future of the world's most vibrant city remains unclear (let's face it – the future of the world looks pretty damn unclear at the moment). It's a state of affairs that leaves 'Lower East Side Stories' looking like a historical document – a snapshot of a city blissfully unaware of its impending tragedy.

Goldstone would undoubtedly resent his creativity getting caught up in this horrific historical tangle, but in fact a number of the tracks on the album specifically make reference to New York's standing as the world's most visible capitalist icon. 'Jacktalk' even begins with the chillingly prophetic words "we're gonna be talking a little bit about the end of the world" before riffing off about the end of history, the ethos of greed and how it rules Western society. Similarly, 'Earthblow' mines an environmentally aware groove, 'Dregs Of The City, Law Of The World' zeroes in on first /third world divisions and 'In The Garden' focuses on the city's gentrification.

Inevitably, an album so rooted in the everyday life and sociopolitical significance of New York will attract attention for anything but musical reasons in the present climate: nothing that Goldstone or Nuphonic can do will alter that sad fact.

Norma Jean Bell

Come Into My Room (Peacefrog)

Moodymann's saxalicious muse spreads her wings

NORMA Jean Bell's 'I'm The Baddest Bitch' is indisputably one of the finest house tracks ever released, the kind that all manner of DJs find impossible to remove from that special section at the back of their boxes. As such it's entirely appropriate that it pops up here in remix form as the opening cut. Fortunately, Norma's far from a one-trick pony, as the rest of the album demonstrates – from the D-town soul moves of 'Dreams' to the break-led 'Yes I Am' and the KDJ-introed 'Nobody,' this is a well-rounded, confident collection of quality underground house music.

Cal Gibson

Dilated Peoples

Expansion Team (Capitol)

Californian hip hopper that presses our buttons

WEST Coasters Dilated Peoples established themselves as world leaders of underground hip hop (despite being on a major label) just as that scene seemed to ossify through sheer lack of imagination. This time out, the fellows seem serious about breaking out of that particular ghetto. They still make the most straight up East Coast sounding hip hop around (and the living god of the sound, DJ Premier, makes an appearance here), but this time it's catchy. They've always been good rhymers but here the beats sound great. Check out the skanking 'Trade Money' for the best moment, but it's a really solid, funky record throughout.

Tipper

Holding Pattern (Fuel)

Bass bumping breaks for big fuck-off car stereos

FOLLOWING up the highly successful, bass-heavy 'Sound Off' compilation earlier this year, Fuel mainman and king of breaks Tipper drops his first album and it doesn't disappoint. As you might expect, there's plenty of rump-shaking going on – 'Tug Of War' has more low level reverberations than the morning after a vindaloo – but there's plenty of subtlety here too (check the pretty Warp-esque sweep of closer 'Minimal Thoughts Of Reason'). Best enjoyed at immense volume, this is not recommended if you have elderly neighbours whose ears are still fully functional.

23 SKIDOO

7 Songs/ Urban Gamelan (Ronin)

Thumping yet austere beautiful early Eighties death disco

THE Eighties eh? Bombings, rioting, Huey Lewis And The News – forget the rose tinted nostalgia, they were hell. But when people are confronted by impending doom, they organise and turn negatives into positives. Well, some do.

23 Skidoo – now best known as owners of hip hop label Ronin – did. So did Throbbing Gristle, Cabaret Voltaire and a horde of other grey-shirted, post-punk industrial/noise funkers. But none of them had quite the seriousness of purpose of Skidoo. They applied the rigour with which they approached their beloved martial arts to their music, forging a brand of razor-sharp, martial funk.

Listened to now, these records, originally released in 1982 and 1984, have of course dated – the fretless bass, angry blasts of brass and metal-bashing percussion see to that. But their remarkable subtlety, vision and musical invention remain impressive. Oh, and fans of the Chems may find 'GIFU' on 'Urban Gamelan' oddly familiar, by the way.

Along with Cabaret Voltaire's 'Red Mecca', these records are an ideal soundtrack to a dubby, edgy nuclear winter of love. Enjoy.

Noriken

Spring Themes
(Hydrogen Dukebox)
Deepness from Manchester

DOWNTempo music is big business nowadays. But while this could easily be described as 'chill out', you won't find it being advertised on TV as a source of 'chilled out grooves for blissed out moods'. 'Spring Themes' ploughs a much deeper furrow. Not that it's hard work. It's just way too chilled for mass market consumption. Instead of catchy hooks, Morricone samples and ancient Balearic beats it serves up beautifully delicate rhythms, gentle melodies and just enough pathos to satisfy that bittersweet, post-club chemical haze.

Lisa 'Left Eye' Lopes

Supernova
The fit one out of TLC releases a pretty decent solo record

A SUPERNOVA is an enormous star – do you see what they're getting at? Do you? Hmm? Pretty clever, huh?

'Block Party', the single from this maxi, has been getting something less than mad love from the urban fraternity, but to be honest, this pisses all over the over-rated 'Fanmail', TLC's last album before they all decided they hated each other (or whatever). There's no 'No Scrubs' of course, but there's nowhere near as much filler either, and even weak cyber-femme r&b is still preferable to the 'best' of most current musical forms. Nonsense but fun.

Duncan Bell

Busta Rhymes

Turn it Up! The Very Best (Elektra)
Woo hah! Got an enormous cheque!

IT'S a good job Trevor Smith changed his name back in the day. Because the hyperactive dreadlocked shouter Busta Rhymes – for it is he – neither looks nor sounds like a Trevor. Always ahead in the sample stakes – who else would dare sneak in a hook from 'Knight Rider'? – Busta's unique vocal style has made him a hip hop playa. 'Woo Hah!' – his big hit from five years ago – is included here, as are slightly less big hits like 'Gimme Some More' and 'Dangerous'. But for proof of his versatility, just check 'What's It Gonna Be' with Janet Jackson. 15 years on from 'Saturday Love', it's a reminder of just how much r&b duets have changed. And it's suggestive enough to make Lil' Kim blush. Almost.

Kelis

Wanderland (Virgin)

Big haired r&b chick is not loved all that much right now

REMEMBER when we were first mesmerised by Kelis shouting out how much she hates us right now while swooning about with an on-stage attitude topped only by her outrageous 'power to the people' hairstyle? Well she's back, still ranting, raving and strutting her funky stuff, but chances are 'Wanderland' will fall upon deaf ears. Like a spoilt brat who whines incessantly, you just want to give it a good slap, or at the very least ask it to shut the hell up. It's not all bad – there are still glimpses of the ingenuity that initially propelled Kelis to supreme urban rock diva status, particularly on 'Mr UFO' and 'Get Even', a handy guide to revenge attacks on conniving young ladies who can't keep their hands to themselves. But it's a disappointment overall.

Funke Kubgola

Daft Punk

Alive 1997 (Virgin)

More breakdowns than Mariah Carey, but not as interesting

A SLIGHTLY eccentric release, even by Daft Punk's standards, this is a 45-minute live album documenting a performance from 1997. Whatever floats your boat, but apparently the two Frenchies decided that this particular performance in Birmingham was their best ever and felt obliged to release it. On the plus side, this means we're talking 'Homework' era, so the material's top notch. They're also thoughtfully included crowd noises for the authentic 'live' feel. On the minus side? The breakdowns.

They go on forever and they'll bore the pants off you. Fine if you're there and all, but on your Walkman? Non merci.

Andrew Holmes

The KLF

Live On Stage (KLF)

The men who burnt a million quid are back to save the world

THE secret to The KLF's success during their Imperial phase from 1989-1992 was that they never let the façade slip. Every ludicrous gesture was made poker-faced, while this coolest of pop groups sold records like it was going out of fashion, simultaneously mocking and transcending notions both of underground 'cool' and popular 'success'. Now, having burnt all the money they made in that period as an artistic statement (as you do), Bill Drummond and Jimmy Cauty have bunged out this album of remixes and rarities from way back then. A tawdry, money-grabbing afterthought to one of the greatest non-careers in music history? Maybe, but the simple truth is this: from another time and another place, this collection of dodgy old B-sides is the best pure 'dance music' album this month, maybe this year. Does anyone else find that worrying?

The many moods of Mr Len

Mr Len

Pity The Fool (Matador)

Hip hop continues its journey into outer space – and the heart of darkness

THIS debut solo production effort from Company Flow's Mr Len finds him making music for and about disordered minds. But throwing in some jokes, too. Last year's single with Mr Live, 'What The Fuck' – a song about the importance of swearing a lot – is present, but so are torrents of hurt and loathing, which pour from this album like gouts of blood from a razored wrist. Jean Grae's 'Taco Day' is a sickening tale of incest, abuse and murder, while her collaboration with The Brewin ('Love Venom'), being less hysterical is, if anything, even more disturbing. Throughout, Mr Len backs his cast of underground East Coast MCs with woozy, nightmarish funk, such as you might expect to hear while dying of a ketamine overdose at a block party. Oh, and there's a song about shagging fat girls and a heavy metal number, too. You have to hear this record – it's sick in every sense.

The Legacy – Episode 1

(Ronin)

What's it all about? One of Muzik's favourite UK hip hop stables lets rip with a fine mix-up of dynamic cuts which boast lyrical dexterity, throwaway sample humour and big fat beats. In your face, but without the arrogance that often defines the scene from which it hails.

What's on it? London scratchologist Alex Baby lays down a thick wedge of slick vinyl choppin' n' changin' featuring the excellent Deckwrecka, the excellent Rodney P, the excellent Roots Manuva and a load of other quality Ronin rumbles. Excellent.

Any cop then? Veritably so. Dissing MTV rappers and keeping a distinctly British flavour, all 18 tracks represent a solid challenge to US microphone supremacy and deckology. (THG)

Colours Mix

(Reign Of Sound)

What's it all about? Scots club Colours is recommended by footballer Steve Gerrard, apparently. That's high praise. This is a very brave compilation (NB both of these statements are lies).

What's on it? Roger 'stupid hat' Sanchez; Raven 'someone else's idea' Maize; 'Star 69'; X-Press 2's 'Muzikizum'; something with Jan Johnson wailing on it – reminding us again that somewhere, a cheap cruise liner is missing a singer; the worst remix of all time (Blaze's 'My Beat', a track based on the conceit that it has a complex rhythm, turned into a 4/4 thumper. What the fuck?).

Any cop then? Some of the tunes are perfectly alright, but the lack of ambition makes our souls cry. (DB)

The Big Chill – Glister

(Big Chill)

What's it all about? Two discs compiled by The Big Chill's Pete Lawrence and Bruce Bickerton bringing a touch of imagination to an over-stuffed chill out market. A bit hippy occasionally, mind you.

What's on it? Loads of exploratory, low-key vibes from Zero 7, Quantic, Fort Lauderdale, Gerd, Blu Mar Ten, Broadway Project, et al.

Any cop then? The Big Chill organisation pre-empted 2001's obsession with all things downtempo and are consequently a few steps ahead of the game. If you're after a load of familiar faces you're out of luck, but if an investigation into where next year's horizontal trends are heading appeals... check it. (THG)

God's Kitchen: The True Sound Of A Clubbing Summer

(Incredible)

What's it all about? A post-Balearic baby from the creative Brummies at Gods Kitchen that avoids using the words ' Ibiza' and 'Ultimate'. Hoorah!

What's on it? All the best euphoric, trance and tech sounds the club has to offer, including James Holden's 'One For You', Germany's favourite baby-faced DJ Paul Van Dyk with 'Columbia' and Testa's storming 'Fight 643', which just seems to get better with time.

Any cop then? Yep, in spite of the comp sucking some serious commercial aise with tracks from trance-poppers Mrs Ian Van Dahl and Deleuran. (FK)

Lottie: Snapshot

(React)

What's it all about? The leading miss in Misdemeanours pops out of the club and strolls over to React to show us exactly what all the fuss is about.

What's on it? CD1 befriends the slightly soulful house end of things with such conviction you'd think its life depended on it, particularly when listening to Warren Clarke's mix of summer stormer 'Guitarra G'. CD2 takes it deeper with the help of tribal and progressive moves like Joskie's 'My Groove' and Jori Hulkkonen's 'Let Me Luv You'.

Any cop then? Is there no end to this lady's talents? It won't be long before she's setting up her own record label and purchasing Chelsea season tickets. (FK)

HoneyMoon By Cam

(Chronowax)

What's it all about? France's respected turntablist selects some of his favourite pieces of music for your listening enjoyment. Simple.

What's on it? Plenty of ultra-smooth Sunday morning grooves including Grover Washington's much sampled 'Loran's Dance', DJ Matsuoaka's tinklesome 'Piano Objective 3', the gorgeous tones of Bahamad'a's 'Philadelphia' and a remastered version of Henry Mancini's 'Lujon'.

Any cop then? If you agree with Justin Robertson's claim that DJs are primarily feted for their excellent musical taste, then Cam proves himself here to be a master. Seek and enjoy. (CG)

Alison Marks & Andy Morris – Parallels

(Obsessive)

What's it all about? An intriguing new series showcasing up-and-coming DJ talent, this kicks off with Bedroom Bedam winner Alison Marks and Kiss FM's Andy Morris.

What's on it? Morris turns in a real crowd-pleasing set, full of stuff like Hard Attack and Tarantella. It does the job, but Marks' deeper set is the more satisfying of the two, roping X-Press 2, Justin Robertson and I Monster into service. Certain people are calling her the female Danny Tenaglia, and they don't mean that in a nasty way.

Any cop then? Certainly. If you fancy bypassing the usual enormous DJ mix and unearthing something new, this is it. (AH)

Solid Steel Presents DJ Food & DK

(Ninja Tune)

What's it all about? Ninja commemorate 13 years of the cool, the eclectic and the downright silly, Food mixes the 'Taking Of Pelham 1, 2, 3' soundtrack into Mr Scruff, Jeru The Damaja into Cinematic Orchestra and The Beat with Peshay. Somehow it all works.

Any cop then? As you'd expect with DJ Food there's something for everyone here, the skills are sometimes breathtaking, and with Kid Koala and Amn Tobin to come this is a series to watch. (NG)

Rae & Christian: Another Late Night

(Azuli)

What's it all about? The latest instalment of 'Another Late Night' invites us over to Mark and Steve's gaff for a hot mug of cocoa and an hour plus of sweet soul music. How could you possibly resist?

What's on it? An 18-track epic that ends with José Feliciano's classic cover of 'California Dreamin'', Rae & Christian also manage to squeeze in cuts by labelmates Riton, Catskills boys Bushy Versus Sonic Boo, Faze Action's 'Samba' (their own mix, of course) and 'Mary James' by Rick James. Phew!

Any cop then? It may lack a little something in the variety stakes but there's no doubt that the Grand Central crew know their shit. One for the fans, mind. (RM)

Drum & Bass Arena

(React)

What's it all about? The official world's best drum & bass DJ, Andy C, follows up the excellent 'Ram Raiders' collection with a pick of the crop to celebrate the Drum & Bass Arena web site.

Who's on it? Quality aggro from those moody types Bad Company, in yer face rave by Total Science, the usual agility from Teebee and Marcus Intalex and a welcome return to action for Alex Reece.

Any cop then? A nicely balanced selection, as ever, from the man himself. Check the accompanying mix CD for proof of his dextrous deck skills. (NG)

Deep Dish: Moscow

(Global Underground)

What's it all about? Inspired by the Washington duo's recent trip to Moscow – and it is a trip – Al and Sharam mix up the best of this summer's proggy bangers with a hefty dose of unreleased acetates.

What's On It? 'Escape' by 16B Versus Morel, 'I Can See The Lights' by G-Pal, an unreleased Deep Dish mix of Dido's 'Thank You', 'Rapture' by Io and 'I Wish You Were Here' by K and Creamer. And not a Timo Maas mix in sight!

Any cop then? Aside from putting Pink Floyd, Yes and Emerson, Lake & Palmer on the same bill at the Royal Albert Hall, nothing could be more prog. But when the sounds are this scintillating, who are we to argue? (RM)

7 Live – J Majik

(DMC World)

What's it all about? The man known to his immediate family as Jamie Spratling adds drum & bass class to the comp series which has previously played host to luminaries such as Jon Carter, Lottie, Fergie and, err, Jazzy M.

What's on it? Majik's deranged take on Hatiras' 'Spaced Invader', naturally, plus bassbin-busters from the likes of Bad Company, Adam F, Optical, Calibre, Shimmom and Dillinja.

Any cop then? Majik manages to ride the thin line between blistering evil and girl-friendly funk with aplomb. Complete with four exclusive tracks for proper drum & bass-heads. (THG)

Trevor Rockliffe – Influence

(Mix Connection)

What's it all about? Acid house veteran Trevor Rockliffe proving there's more to dancefloor techno than relentlessly banging beats, quick release mixes and the sound of chainsaws, drills and hammers.

What's on it? Disco basslines, percussive licks and vocal snippets from artists like Mr G, Oxa, Valerino Kanzyani, Gaetano Pariso, Samuel L Sessions and Rockliffe himself – funky, party style techno from start to finish.

Any cop then? From his days as a Trade resident, Rockliffe has always balanced his strong, driving rhythms with a desire to uplift and entertain. If you're convinced you can't like techno, try this out. It might just change your mind. (DM)

Komfort.Labor presents Ocean Club (WMF)

What's it all about? Malifolious leftfield, mainly downtempo tunes from Berlin's leading purveyors of such things.

What's on it? Glitter Band techno moonstomps, glitchy Germanic electro abstractions, deep house, drum machine solos, Twenties jazz fiath about "feeling my tomatoes" while being "hard as a coconut", moments of pure beauty and nothing so complicated it can't be grasped by anyone with musical understanding greater than that of, say, Chris Moyles. Or a horse.

Any cop then? Like a post-party companion to last month's 'Sonic Mook' collection of leftfield bangers, this is a perfect, clearly signposted route out of the quicksand of musical mediocrity. Come with us. (DB)

Shut It – The Music Of The Sweeney

(Cinephile)

What's it all about? The title's pretty self-explanatory, unless you don't happen to have Channel 5 or didn't watch Cockney cop shows in the Seventies, in which case, like the title also says, SHUT IT!

What's on it? Incidental music from Morse's prehistory intermingled with pre-PC dialogue along the lines of "Now listen – you know more about south London than any skipper in the force, George – I need you."

Any cop then? Get your clothes on, sonny Jim, you're comin' down the station – we're gonna nostalgia your bloody 'lead in, you slag, etc. etc. (THG)

Acoustic Chill

(Organic)

What's it all about? Picking up where his 'Ibiza By Day' mix for Muzik left off, Chris Coco chooses cuts by Fug, Space Raiders and Gemma Hayes to make the perfect antidote to the glut of ill-conceived ambient comps currently spewing off the shelves.

What's on it? Opening with the genius low-slung groove of 'I Don't Know What I Can Save You From' by Kings Of Convenience, Coco's selection avoids anything by Zero 7 and Kinobe and opts for the likes of Blue States, Turin Breaks and new Heavenly hero Ed Harcourt instead.

Any cop then? A double CD with no filler, 'Acoustic Chill' leaves other like-minded comps out in the cold. Don't miss. (RM)

Legends Volume 1: Juan Atkins

(Om)

What's it all about? 'File under techno house', the sleeve advises, for those who aren't familiar with the man who brought the word 'techno' to dance music with his early Eighties track 'Techno City'.

What's on it? Funky, intelligent house music with a little bit of muscle and a lot of class from folk like DJ Sneak, Isolee, Harrison Crump ('Get Boogie'), Hattiras, Rui Da Silva, and Atkins' own Model 500.

Any cop then? With a mix as smooth as margarine being rubbed into Kate Moss' thighs, the sleepy electronic don leads his listeners by the ears through a selection that's both upfront fun and transport egghhead amenable. (THG)

Arthur Baker: Breakin'

(Perfecto)

What's it all about? Remarkably hairy New York hip hop progenitor Baker puts together a double spread of early production work and bang up to date nu-skool breakbeatery.

What's on it? Felix Da Housecat, Rennie Pi-grem, Dave Clarke and more of the usual suspects crop up on the first disc to whip Baker's back catalogue into 70 minutes of dirty funk'n'. Fleetwood Mac are on the second CD however, although admittedly alongside New Order and the Soul Sonic Force.

Any cop then? Legends don't come much bigger than Baker. It's a testament to his skill that even now, well into his forties, he's still miles ahead of many. (CS)

Duty Free Remixed

(Duty Free)

What's it all about? Tall Paul's label gets some of their mates in to re-jig 11 huge house monsters/stormers (delete according to taste).

What's on it? Lofty Turnmills ressie Paul gets two tracks put through the sonic blender with Riva adding some Euro fromage to the already whiffy 'Precious Heart', and the remix-loathing Jam & Spoon make a rare excursion to add a bit of wallop to 'Freebase'. Elsewhere, Corvin Dalek does his wet and hard thing to Darren Christian and Lottie gets her 'Bushroot' slapped by Mr G.

Any cop then? Remix comps can always be a bit of a hit and miss affair. And a poorly conceived jumble of whizzing and thumping doesn't make for a fun 70 minutes. (CS)

Mark B Presents Harlem World

(Heroes & Villains)

What's it all about? Glum-looking Brit producer Mark B takes us back to the most cheerful period in hip hop's history – the old skool. And in the process, proves that his record collection is bigger than yours.

What's on it? Check out the rhythm on Little Starsky's 'Dancin' Parly People', the choppy funk guitar on Bambaataa's classic 'Zulu Nation Throwdown', the kazoo work of Mr Magic, the Family Four's vocal stylings (and a fantastic shuffling break) and the Boogie Boys intro to 'Rappin' Ain't No Thing'.

Any cop then? No weak tracks, no filler and no Christmas raps – a blessed relief after years of Sugarhill reissues. (WA)

Hard Beat The Album

(Nukleuz)

What's it all about? Promising 'the definition of hard dance', it's an overview of the 'Hard Beat EP' series spread over two CDs, one mixed by BK, the other not.

What's on it? Insane BPMs all engineered by BK in some capacity. So you get 'Bad Ass' by BK, 'Noise' by BK and Nick Sentience, 'Higher' by Cortina (BK mix) and, of course, 'Please Fuck Me' by BK. The implication, therefore is that BK is the definition of hard dance.

Any cop then? It's too much to ask a single artist to provide the bedrock for a double CD of tunes that all basically sound the same. This feels one-dimensional. But if there's such a breed as BK completists, then this is for them. (AH)

Freezone (Seven Is Seven Is)

(SSR)

What's it all about? Chill out pioneer DJ Morpheus returns with lots of what at least several people in the English-speaking world are now calling 'broken beats'.

What's on it? Strangely beautiful music that defies categorisation. A few familiar names (Tim 'Love' Lee, Baby Mammot, Nubian Mind) and some that only aficionados will know (World Of Apples, Bigga Bush, The Detroit Escalator Co). All good though.

Any cop then? The early 'Freezone' comps introduced the likes of Kruder & Dorfmeister and Fia Brazillia to the world. Expect similarly great things from this new generation of dweeb-entangled vis'onaries. (ND)

Adam Freeland: On Tour

(Marine Parade)

What's it all about? Now they've axed their jungle slot, Adam Freeland's practically the only guy playing breaks on Kiss FM. Here he gives us a taste of one of his famed club sets, complete with cheesy crowd sounds.

What's on it? Languid, demonic, electrocut funk. Highlights are Fluke's 'Absurd', KC Flight Versus Funky Junction's 'Voices' and Forme's previously unreleased 'Percussive Thinking'. There's even a mighty cut from sometime junglists Caus'd Concern.

Any cop then? Adam's the crown prince of the breaks scene, and this goes some way towards demonstrating why. You should run along and purchase it at once. (ND)

Bora Bora 3: Beach Life

(React)

What's it all about? Away from the corporate clubs of Ibiza, there's a little café called Bora Bora where DJ Gee Moore mixes throbbing beats and Ibibiduous house. People dance. It's great.

What's on it? CD1 works a quirky house vein, high points being Silicone Soul's 'Minted' and Charles Webster's wonderful 'Good Advice'. The second disc turns up the energy levels a notch with Ping Pong's 'Freak Fire' and Gee's own 'G-Tribe'.

Any cop then? Not for nothing did we describe Bora Bora as 'the best party on the island'. Even if you've never set foot on Ibiza you can stick this on in your hotel and watch the dust fly. (ND)

Irritant Number 9

(Irritant)

What's it all about? A cold collation of the very finest in zero-budget, lo-fi piss-artists and their works, from the home of the recent, er, banging remix of Destiny's Child's 'Independent Women' (as endorsed by Radio 1's Sara Cox).

What's on it? Knifehandchop, Piesstank, Nazis From Mars, as well as names known outside their own bedrooms, such as (inevitably) Kid 606, Christoph De Babelon and Lesser. Knifehandchop's 'Irritant', a chopped-update of hyper-irritating proto dance tune 'Popcorn' is the pick of the bunch.

Kompakt – Total 3

(Kompakt)

What's it all about? Third round-up of the Cologne tech/house/ambient minimalists' recent dancefloor-bound 'twelve-inches, plus a few unreleased reissues.

What's on it? Good music made by Germans. Jorg Burger, aka The Modernist, with the tastefully trance-lingered 'AB 81'; Marco Haas, aka T Raumschmiere, with a clicky opus deeper than Dubya's war chest; and Reinhard Voigt, aka Reinhard Voigt, with something we might describe as 'progressive' if we didn't think he'd be insulted.

Any cop then? While many of Kompakt's tunes don't initially appear to do much at all, they do it with such beguiling warmth and conviction that you can barely help but be seduced. (TM)

Arthur relaxes in his local Indian take-away, having eaten everything on the menu

Singles reviewed by Arthur Baker

Muzik chews the fat with the legendary New York artist, producer and DJ. The topic? This month's 12-inches of pleasure

Ladies First

Messin' (Polydor)

Perfectly timed and perfectly calculated, Ladies First are – unbelievably – an all-girl two-step group, who take the underground blueprint and adapt it to a rather saccharine pop song (just like Mis-Teeq, actually). Happily for aficionados such as Spooky, who championed the tune when it originally appeared, the Sovereign and Oris Jay dubs remain intact.

Arthur Baker: "It has all the typical two-step things, a vocoder sample solo – which I'll take the blame for because the first one of those was on 'IOU' [by Freeez, an Arthur production from 1983]. It's alright but doesn't grab me and shake me."

Science Department Featuring Erire

Breathe (Renaissance)

Three slices of vinyl from Danny Howells and his studio partner Dick Trevor, the duo who were responsible for the modern house classic 'Persuasion/Repercussion'. This time the production may be impeccable but the female vocal is bland and the range of mixes from Howells, Lexicon Avenue and Shaboom add little to the package. Shame.

Arthur Baker: "This has a bit of a breaks vibe but it's gone wrong with the keyboard. There must be some guy who only knows one chord then ruins all these records with that same upbeat chord thing."

Herbie Hancock

The Essence (Transparent Music)

A number from Hancock's well-received new album and featuring Chaka Khan on vocals receives a perfectly palatable series of makeovers spread over two twelves. Two sweet Bukem drum & bass re-jigs, jazz-meets-house-nation antics from Joe Claussell and DJ Krush's slothful beat. All cool (daddio) but none outstanding.

Arthur Baker: "Chaka played with Quincy Jones at Sun City. And also on the Children's Promise charity record I did – 'It's Only Rock 'N' Roll' – not their most noteworthy performances. Krush's mix sounds like Soul II Soul, while Bukem's reminds me of Speed at the Milk Bar."

Slum Village Versus Daft Punk

Raise It Up (Aerodynamique Remix)
(Word Play)

Herein lies a tale. Hip hop headboys Slum Village sampled Thomas Bangalter's 'Trax On The Rocks' from an unlabelled bootleg for their 'Raise It Up' single. Da Punk saw said tune on MTV and, rather than sue the muthas, asked them to do their thing with 'Aerodynamic'. The results are presented on an oh so collectable, limited edition picture disc.

Arthur Baker: "The concept of remix trade-offs is cool. I did some with Lee Coombs. This is a collaboration you wouldn't expect to hear."

Arthur lays down a challenge to his arch rival Big Daddy, using a copy of The Ones' single to make his point

MUZIK'S SINGLE OF THE MONTH

The Ones

Flawless (Positiva)
Yes, we know Ibiza's over, but we also know white island clubland's musical policies will reverberate throughout British nightlife for another couple of months and here's a fine example. Top, campy New York house with alternate vocodered and spoken vocals, mixes by the Sharp Boys, Phunk Investigation and, er, Harry's Afro Hut. Chunkier than you might imagine and rather more-ish.

Arthur Baker: "That's a Gary's Gang 'Keep On Dancing' sample. The guy who does the vocal on this, Paul Alexander, did a record, 'Jackie Sixty', with me as The Jackie MCs when he was a drag queen. It's good!"

Paul Van Dyk

Columbia EP (Deviant)

There's not an epic floral chord in sight as Van Dyk throws down a doublepack designed to endear him to the progressive trance community. Three tracks are remixed from his under-performing 'Out There And Back' LP, one by Starcasse, plus there are two newbies, 'Out There' and 'Movement'. Not world-shaking.

Arthur Baker: "This is what the people at Perfecto call a galloping record - hi ho Silver! Lots of sweaty people with their hands in the air - nah!"

Quantix

Through These Eyes (Tru Thoughts)

Although Will Holland very slightly toughens up the drums on this from his debut LP, 'The Fifth Exotic', it's hardly Tayo-style breakbeat mayhem, more 3am at the Big Chill. More interesting is Carl Faure's mix of 'Life In The Rain', a very musical brass and piano-led hunk of downtempo funk.

Arthur Baker: "I like this as an antidote to all the other stuff - it's making an effort in its genre."

Filmopalast

I Want (Hope)

Glooping vocal house with a tribal edge from Germany. I suppose we have to bring in that much over-used and now almost meaningless term 'progressive' too, as 'I Want' fits the current definition of the word. Brother Brown are brought in to emphasise the 'songy' aspects while Loafer drags matters off to the usual Tenaglian pastures.

Arthur Baker: "This isn't my type of record but it's quite well done, not a lot going on but good. Sounds like the shit Timo Maas would play which isn't surprising as the Hope label is one of his homes."

MDM

Mash It Up (NuLife)

Matt Darey, flavour of the month remixer a year or two back, comes rampaging back with a hard house/hard trance hybrid that'll have froth-mouthed pill heads from Tolnes to Timbuktu spasm-jiggering faster than usual. Not one of his finest adrenaline-moesters, however.

Arthur Baker: "No! Just no."

Röyksopp

Poor Leno (Wall Of Sound)

More goodness from the Norwegian duo on a doublepack which includes their own remix of 'the housey one' from their LP. It's a remix, incidentally, which bears a close resemblance to their discification of Mekon's 'Please Stay'. Sander Kleinenberg, meanwhile, cleverly balances the vocal in an echoing circus of dynamic percussion.

Arthur Baker: "Sounds a bit like Visage. As a piece of music this isn't bad, almost film score stuff - like Vangelis' 'Chariots Of Fire'. The album version's nice, very Mirwals - they should have stuck with that."

Chris Coco

Next Wave EP (Distinctive Breaks)

Muzik's downtempo maestro and one time Steel & Lovebomb associate ups the ante following his Coco Da Silva and Coco & Storebridge outings. These three tracks demonstrate a pleasant combination of spaced out 'acoustic chill' dub-noodle and cheerful melody, especially on 'All Of My Beautiful Friends'. Remixes, please.

Arthur Baker: "When I want chill out records I'll listen to Al Green, not this kind of shit. When trip hop first came out I was into its fucked up downtempo beats, but now I'm bored to fuck with that and would rather listen to soul. People chill out to this when they're on drugs."

Silicone Soul

Right On (VC/Soma)

Tricky one, this, as the original's been around for a year, ever since the Scottish duo remixed 1999's 'Right On 4 The Darkness' into a funkier, fluffier, more addictive form - a brilliant record and one nominated for a Muzk Award. Now, however, we have the vocal. Let's just say it's no Spiller and leave it at that, shall we? Oh, and Steve Lawler makes a hash of remixing it too.

Arthur Baker: "Compared to what I've heard today it's a good club track. The vocal doesn't do much for me though."

The Streets

Has It Come To This? (Locked On)

Either a messy musical disaster of grand magnitude or a brave and intriguing step forward for UK garage. Anything that draws such opposing opinions has to be worth a listen. A bloke called Mike Skinner Mookney-gabbles about south London life over a jittering two-step rhythm, and is remixed by Zed Bias, among others.

Arthur Baker: "His life sounds well-rounded. Love the bassline, I'm a sucker for that. Why don't they make one about the streets of Camden with goths, dogs on strings and road-drills? The Aphex Twin can do it."

W.O.S.P.

Getting Into U (Data)

So, lazy studio types, take the keyboard from Laurent Garnier's excellent 'The Man With The Red Face', loop it, add a warty vocal from one Katherine Ellis, and, hey presto... a load of shit.

Arthur Baker: "It's one of those records I'm sure will work in clubs and if I heard it there I'd be into it, but in daylight..."

Soto

Monkey/Piggy (Botchit Breaks)

Veering away from the gnarly, almost '91 hardcore sound of recent Botchit material, Soto demonstrate a dab hand at mid-paced breakage. Enough bass to keep old time fans happy, but with juddering techy rhythms, a Gary Numan noise, and a title that refers to kitsch Japanese TV.

Arthur Baker: "This is one I'd go out and buy and definitely play on my show. This is more like it. I don't get the early Eighties TV references in the titles though as I wasn't watching TV then, I was too busy taking drugs."

Ellen Allien

StadtKind Remixes (Bpitch Control)

The Berlin robot-diva drags the title track from her new album and submits it to all manner of cyberlectropop remixing. The main mix sounds a tad like 'Radio Ga Ga' - but in a good way, if you can imagine that. Verbois strips it down and Barbara Morgenstern adds harmonic click'n' glitch.

Arthur Baker: "People are going back to this sort of disco thing [What discs did you hang out in? - Ed.]. It's non-offensive but doesn't blow me away."

Tim Taylor & Thor 54

Over The Hill (Missie/Thule)

Missie's Tim Taylor, aka DJ Onefinger of 'Housefucker' notoriety, joins forces with Iceland's leading techno luminary, Thor 54 and creates a very dull tracky plod. Even Mr G can't add fuel to the fire. Very disappointing considering the talent involved.

Arthur Baker: "I'm growing impatient with this sort of sound. Can't they add anything to the beat?"

Masters At Work Featuring Puppah Nas-T & Denise (MAW)

Work (MAW)

Little Louie and Kenny Dope appear back on vinyl with something utterly lacking the jazz-soul class for which they're renowned. 'Work' is a thoroughly irritating but catchy Caribbean pop shout-along drum-fest. 'Work' is, after all, a four-letter word round these parts. Damnably, the majority at Muzk appear in favour. Of the tune, not the four-letter word, that is.

Arthur Baker: "I know this one. The thing is I'm not a big soca fan but Kenny & Louie are two of my favourite producers when they're jazzy. This works but isn't one of their greats."

"They should do a track about the streets of Camden with goths, dogs on strings and road-drills"

Reach & Spin

The Hype (Hype The Funk) (Go Beat)

A wide array of styles spread themselves across this doublepack. The original is Armand-two-years-ago with added hip hop spice, while the Stanton Warriors throw down a tuneable slab of electro, Problem Kids takes us into the bouncy house zone, and Tim Wright sticks with jagged techno jiggery-pokery.

Arthur Baker: "I like this because it has old school hip hop vocals – they can't particularly sing, out of tune a bit. If this was playing in a club I'd go up to the booth and ask what it was. This is definitely the one. I like Tim Wright but the original's best."

Kelis

Young, Fresh 'N' New (Virgin)

Despite showing great promise, and adding colour to a bland r&b world with her feisty persona, Kelis has never really come through musically since her epochal 'Caught Out There' single. Muzk once observed a set of hers at Glastonbury that was closer to Skunk Anansie than any true funk and this single is in a similar vein. Luckily Timo Maas rescues it by stapling it firmly to a pile driver rhythm.

Arthur Baker: "I love the way Timo's mix keeps the vocal – it reminds me of the vibe from Armand's mix of Tori Amos. That synth chord thing's too twee though, cheezy-funky, I'm not feeling that right now. She's not my favourite but I like this."

Blair Bitch

Blair Bitch (Nebula)

We weren't sure why Nebula signed this rather anonymous prog-trance roller from Dutch label Combined Forces, but Mike Monday and Basscamp's mixes make matters clear. The former is functional Elements-style rumbling while the latter heads deep into truly hypnotic grooves of depth and subtlety – spookily good, in fact.

Arthur Baker: "It was good until that trance line came in, then it sounded like we'd stepped onto the set of 'Big Brother'. I'd play it till the breakdown, but once that 16 year-old thing comes in it becomes Trance-yvania. Before that it's cool, Tenaglia could play it."

X-Press 2

Smoke Machine (Skitin)

Rumbustious dancefloor throb in the dark, new, sorry, 'nu' Brit prog vein. Whopping basslines fight it out with ecstasy whooshes and a rhythm pattern that is at once savage and techno-funky. You'll recognise it from the repeated title phrase. 'In Beats' and 'In Bits' versions on the flip.

Arthur Baker: "A galloping record that works because they keep a sort of rawness to it. Just a little dirtier than the rest."

taster for Andy C's 'Drum & Bass Arena' mix CD, it is, naturally, an approximation of the end of the world via the medium of bass and drums.

Arthur Baker: "I've played this on my radio show on XFM. I like the sound and groove of this except for the rave section in the middle, which I hate, but it doesn't really go anywhere. The basic track is very cool though."

Arthur Baker: "I like all the sampled bits, the funky guitar – very early Eighties, and I'm a sucker for the early Eighties. I like that vocal thing too, very underground New York... sounds like Mama Cass."

Money Chocolate

Keep The Love (Subliminal Soul)

As Subliminal's output starts to display more bollocks (as it were) so Morillo needed to find an alternative outlet for the less in-her-face vocal disco gear that came his way. Such as this, featuring the vocal talents of D'Influence's Sarah Webb, which our resident Erick-head assures us is good stuff, the business, et cetera. Hmmm...

Arthur Baker: "This is my friend Lati [Kronlund], who wrote 'Where Love Lives'. I just spent four days in France with him. This reminds me a bit of Roberta Flack and Donny Hathaway's 'Back Together Again', one of my favourite albums. It's a great song."

Angelic

Stay With Me (Serious)

Okay, we're going to do something we don't usually do. We're going to ignore the fact that it's Jules' missus singing more dodgy epic trance – it's too easy to knock. Let's find some stuff to be complimentary about. Three sides down and no luck, but turn to the 'Sionix Underwater Dub' and it's passably spacious tribal gear. Well done.

Arthur Baker: "[Listening blind] It's either Posh or Kylie. It's everything that I hate about trance-dance. The point is that the only songs with vocalists are songs like these, so in a way you want to like it. But the songs are usually shite songs. Like this. It'll probably be huge and you'll want to slit your wrists whenever you hear it."

Jorz

Love To Dance (Truelove)

John Truelove takes a step back from his more hammering efforts and heads towards the cheese board, knife quivering in anticipation. Assisted by the more than capable Ramon Zenker, he's managed to create a toytown Julesy track so twee it may well be big. We hope not. Bring back Lectorlux!

Arthur Baker: "Not my cup of tea as I don't see what makes it stand out. It's a little fast but that's why we have varispeed on the turntable. John just did an excellent remix of Billy Ray Martin for me – I actually prefer his stuff when it's more soulful with vocals."

Par-T-One

I'm So Crazy (Credence)

Bizarre, yet one does come round to it in the end. Essentially it's a punchy punk-funk-house update of INXS's very Eighties, post-punk first single wherein exotic middle Eastern strings and wailing hit a nasal android vocal. Doesn't sound promising, but seems to fit the times.

Arthur Baker: "Is this a sample from 'Everybody Needs Somebody' by Ruffneck? This is a good tribal record, the first thing on Credence I've liked, definitely an Eighties Paradise Garage vibe."

Justin Robertson Presents Revtone

The Brightest Thing (Nuphonic)

A real grower. "Don't talk of stars/ If you're in love," runs the sweetly sung vocal sample over a bubbling, old fashioned acid house bassline and shuffling, techy rhythm. Simple ingredients put together in a rather endearing way. Not exactly chill out. But not exactly not, either.

Vital Release

UBU

Pixels (Azuli)
This Mathew Roberts-designed groove has generated huge interest since it appeared on Shaboom earlier this year. Now Azuli have picked it up for a big release and, thanks to some clever mastering, it sounds brighter and tougher than ever before. They've also drafted in Hipp-E and Pete Heller for remix duties, to good effect. For pure floorfilling action, though, you can't beat the original. (KM)

So Who The Hell Is...

Norken

This season's deep house must-have

WHEN we put it to Mancunian electronics wizard Lee Norris that, with his new 'Spring Themes' album, he's invented the genre of 'sub-aquatic house', he, not surprisingly, has mixed feelings.

"Yeah, I suppose you can call it that," he defers. "I make all my music in the house so I guess it is house music. My sister Lisa and her mates have a good old dance to it before they go out. In my mind it's listening music though."

Listening music it may be but, while his last long-player, 'Soul Static Bureau', was smooth, understated Detroitian electro-techno, the latest is full of 4/4 rhythms and production so gloopingly deep it makes Miguel Migs sound like Hi-Gate.

Norris also records as Metamatics, Nacht Plank and Tone Language, as well as running his own Neo Ouija label. Asked to describe himself, he says dryly, "Manchester, early love for all things electronic, started making music early Nineties, fanatic, husband, father, miserable bastard, happy soul." But why's this miserable bastard calling his album 'Spring Themes' just as we head into winter?

"Spring is a great time of the year, everything is waking up after being dormant through the winter. 'Spring Themes' is a story of birth."

Ahhh. Not that miserable after all, then.

'Spring Themes' is out now on Hydrogen Dukebox

Norken, aka Lee Norris. Demeanour: Miserable. House: Deep

Singles

Cosmetix

Background

Rulers Of The Deep

Rulers Of The Deep (both Ovum)

Josh Wink's rejuvenated Ovum label has gone from strength to strength over the past year and these two releases are perfect examples of their brand of tough, electronic soul music. 'Cosmetix' is the more driving of the two, with 'Background' (cool chords and bubbling bottom end) and 'Forget The Past' (classic wild pitch). 'Rulers Of The Deep', as you would imagine, is in a more aquatic house style, working a 16B meets Nugroove cut. (KM)

Buck & Chris Lum

Evenin'

Jay-J & Chris Lum

From The Vault (both Siesta)

The latest instalments from the label that brought us the mighty H-Foundation both involve West Coast head, Chris Lum. The first sees him paired with DJ Buck for a late night house groove, with smooth Rhodes, subtle piano and Moog overlays making it the perfect warm-up/wind-down moment. 'From The Vault' finds Lum and Jay-J raiding their record collections to paste together 'Using You', creating a huge disco floorfiller. (KM)

Frankie Knuckles Featuring Nicki Rickards

Keep On Movin' (Junior)

A game of two halves. In the first, Knuckles delivers a classic mix of Def Mix beats, bumpy bass and funky analogue synths. Add to that some classic New York-style vocal loops and you've got a kind of 'Cover Girls' for 2001. The second half sees Body & Soul main man Danny Krivit in the edit suite delivering his 'La Familia Re-edit', taking Rickards' vocals on a sun-drenched journey, complete with Afro-percussion and some serious acoustic guitar. It may sound like every other Body & Soul wannabe, but this mix is in a different league. (KM)

Keyboy

Viva Blue (Paper)

Bergen's Keyboy with another example of great Norwegian house music. Like Erot, Addvibe, Bjorne Torske and Rune Lindbaek, Keyboy make funky, percussive, authentic dance music, this time with a cool Latin twist. Don't miss out. (KM)

Daddy Ous/

Hard Like A Rock

Santal Featuring Titus

Be With You (both Guidance)

Two more great examples of smooth Guidance house. Daddy Ous offers us reggae at house tempo. Like the Solomonic Sound stuff, this is wonderful dubbing in the 120bpm range. I'm not sure how many dancefloors are feeling it in a large way, but if it's bar listening you're after, you won't find much better. Santal is produced by Chris Brann and, like a lot of Brann's material, falls firmly in the early on or very late night camp. That said, 'Be With You' is a perfect example of its kind. Great vocals and lovely music. (KM)

Saviour

Justify (Automatic)

This is the kind of record that turns a rhythm-crazy dancefloor into a feelgood clubbing collective in the drop of a breakdown. It's still heavy enough to keep the groove but the added synth chords and subtle vocal licks wrap the whole crowd in a very different vibe. Imagine Deep Dish's own 'Stay Gold' or their mix of 'The Horn Ride'. It's that type of groove. (KM)

Maurice Fulton Presents Stress

Moo That Rocked The Electric Chair/ My Gigolo (Transfusion)

The most fascinating record of the month, 'Moo That Rocked The Electric Chair' is the kind of heavy duty tribal workout that a 'Bitches Brew'-era Miles Davis would rock out to. 'Gigolo', meanwhile, is pure punk-funk, complete with killer vocals, slow beats, jagged stabs and off-beat, scratchy guitars. Incredible. (KM)

BLUE Presents

Live@Fluxt (Deep Vision)

A Sandy Rivera-led team of heads provide another of those simple/dark/minimal grooves. File next to Mood II Swing side project Chiapet and 'Choo Choo Beats Volume 1'. All kinds of DJs go insane for tribal shit and this will give us some quality hard shit amid a swamp of third rate Brit-prog twaddle. (TF)

Reel People

Spiritual (Papa)

From the dark side to the spiritual light, Jon Cutler remixes those ever so soulful vocals. Each new harmony lays over the last in a sensual wave of blackness while the simple rhythm bubbles perfectly underneath. A perfect MDMA moment. (TF)

Jay-J and Chris Lum

Loves Fixin' (Soulgroove)

The hottest kids on the block release another winner. That whole West Coast sound may have been done to death, but these guys have added some depth to their work. This, in essence, is an old-fashioned disco cut-up, but with live sax and keys it sounds much fresher than the thousand conga loops currently flooding the trackhead market. (TF)

Kid Stuff

Jet Funk (Fluential)

"It's all in the breakdown," Mark Wilkinson told me. Well, while big breakdowns are, in truth, spoiling many a night with that stop/start bollocks, 'Jet Funk' doesn't fall into that trap. In fact I'd say it was all about the groove, and this groove's dead good. (TF)

Mijangos

Bahia (Subliminal)

Out of Europe, I believe, this Andres Mijangos-produced slice of Latin heaven is, in its original form, jazzy, sexy and, dare we say, almost Balearic. Great rhythms work well with the voice of Gaby Estrella. On the flip, José Nunez takes it into traditional Subliminal territory, which will make it more acceptable to big commercial rooms, but for this page the original's a rare treat. (TF)

Got-A-Scatta

Still I Rise/ Wonderful Thing (Saiu)

Speaking of Balearic, what a brilliantly original double A-side this is. Think Grace Jones meeting Augustus Darrrell in a Fela Kut tribute band. One side is sensually sinister, the other happy happy in an end of night Shoom kind of way. Essential black music - buy it. (TF)

Linus

Loves (Body 'N' Soul)

Glasgow Underground, Scotland's premier providers of soulful house, conjure up another winner. The original's percussive funkiness or DJ Q's darker, more twisted take will particularly suit today's scene. (TF)

After All (S2S Promó)

This is pure quality – one of the best UKG tracks I've heard. It starts with some drums and a cheeky little guitar riff and then the live trombone blows you away. The vocalist (sounding like Lain) then steps up and you can feel the emotion in every word. Just close your eyes and take this in. Whoever is responsible for this, please reveal your identity, I wanna cook you dinner! It can't get much better than this.

Singles

Innocence Featuring Alex Charles

Beautiful (white label)

In a day and time of dubby tunes, this is such a breath of fresh air. It has everything – a happy vibe, easy to digest vocals and the excellent remix of scene stalwart Booker T, making this a must for any lover of good music.

Pluto

Crazy World (Killer Instinct)

Ed Case without Sweetie Lrie? It does happen you know! The vocals on this are more US rap-style than the normal UK MC style, but don't let that put you off. He's rapping about the finer things in life: cars, girls in thongs and designer clothes. The delivery is tight, while as usual Ed's production totally compliments it.

Studio 2

Rub U Down (Lick)

A relatively new label to watch out for, playing host to a very clearly produced jump-up, middle of set tune. Fusing the ever popular soca beat and a Richie Dan-style MC, this is a gem. There's a bit of vocal on there, but there are enough gaps for the club's MCs to do their thing, as the beats will put them in a position they won't be able to resist. Gimme the mix!

Wideboys: Big up the Chichester massive

Rubberneck Featuring Blue

Keep On Givin' Love (City Rockers)

With the production of Bump 'N' Flex, and the vocals of the finest vocalist to appear on a UKG track, Blue James, this was always going to be a hit. Definitely on the soulful, groovy side of what we do, but don't misinterpret that as meaning it will put you to sleep! The carnival-style steel drums are a nice touch, and when it breaks down... Check out the dub too – heavy tune!

George D Featuring Demetrious Project

Dangerous (Atlantis)

Songs, vocals, solid production and more new talent... what a good month for UK garage. This track is very upbeat, makes you move, and is one of those that is two-step but feels like 4/4 because of the energy in it. The singer's voice is very good – she doesn't sing in an overly 'warbling' way, she just keeps it clear and to the point. For radio jocks out there, this has your name on it, and it rocks the clubs too!

So Who The Hell Are... .

The Wideboys

They're not wide and they're not boys, but they are extremely talented young men

Unfortunately, due to an oversight on our part you weren't nominated for best producer at this year's Muzik awards. Who do you think is going to win it? "Oooh shame on you... I would say Ed Case." You're called Wideboys. Did you choose the name because you're really hard and streetwise, or were there more intricate reasons behind it? "We had a meeting and the name just rolled off my tongue. However, we do know how to have a ruck. We also eat quite a lot so are bellies are pretty wide too."

When did you guys first meet? "1997. I was running an underground record shop in Chichester and Jim was in charge of a recording studio, and we decided to hook up our individual strong ideas." How come your tune 'Sambuca' has taken so long to get noticed? "We don't try and write a good pop song, we try and write a good underground tune and hope it bubbles through. Because of the nature of this scene it's taken two years. There's been a lot of leg work. Who are your most famous garage DJ mates? "Timmi Magic and Mark Hill from Artful Dodger."

Wideboys' latest single 'Sambuca' is out now on Locked On/London

ATFC Featuring Lisa Millett

Sleep Talk (Defected)

The cheeky Funki Chle is back with yet another merger of two big tunes. This time he's ripped the music from Donna Summer's 'Bad Girls' and brought in Lisa Millett to cover Alyson Williams' early swing beat classic 'Sleep Talk'. What we have here is a little bit of magic and a perfect follow up to 'Bad Habit'!

Singles

Bobby Ambrosia with CJ

Reach Out (Definity, USA)

He's not been on vinyl for a while but it's a welcome return for one of Def Mix's driving forces. The new, unknown vocalist holds her own over his piano-happy affair, sounding similar to Sabrina Johnson. Eric Kupper also provides some deeper, tuffer mixes for this single taken from the forthcoming album 'Here I Am'. Quality vocal!

Luther Vandross

Take You Out (J, USA)

If you're a big fan of the man (like myself) then you need to find this. The naughty, bootleg-style 'Kamadelic Funk It Up' mix is completely made up from parts of Black Science Orchestra's 'New Jersey Deep' and it works, although it is a rather weak production. But fear not, as Full Intention are rumoured to be doing a remix of it.

David Anthony

No Way (Sound Design)

David Anthony's a name that's been absent from the dance scene for a while, but he's back with a lovely r&b vocal track with my preferred mix being by Todd Terry. This will either work early in the bigger clubs or remain destined strictly for the most soulful dancefloors. Purists should investigate!

Kenny Dope Versus DM

Could You Be The One? (Thank God It's Friday) (Eternal)

Kenny and Louie continue to pursue their respective solo careers as well as working together and here Kenny turns out some quality mixes. Skipping over his main vocal mix which uses Aquarian Dream's 'Phoenix' (as used in the Studio 54 record), the pick of the bunch is his dub which still uses most of the vocal but over a Nuyorican-style groove. Nice!

Pascal Featuring Mr Day

The Bee Tree EP (Guidance, USA)

Crazy title and funny enough my favourite track on this EP. 'Bee Tree' is a beautiful piece of music that touches the heart with what sounds like a very old bloke on vocals called Mr Day. Reminds me of when Kerri Chandler used to use his Grandpa on vocals. Bizarre, but I love it!

10 Of The Best

Ed Real

The Nukleuz nutter reveals the things that put lead in his hard house pencil

Blinky – My driver. He goes fast, but safe. He's from Oz and used to have to drive 100 miles every day just to pick up the milk.
Nukleuz Agency – Firm but fair. Top girl Lisa Porter must be multimap.com's best customer.

HHUK – It's a discussion service that lets people who work at clubs and labels talk with producers and fans via the internet.

Old Skool – I love trying to pick out tunes on 12th generation recordings of Top Buzz sets on 10 year old C90 cassettes!

Motorway Services – Actually quite entertaining if you like people-watching.

Casa Real – I share a flat with my brother Tom and my girlfriend Rhiannon, and it's the one place that I can really chill out.

The Simpsons – Why isn't there a channel that shows it 24 hours a day?

Riot! – My club and all-round labour of love, run with my partner Bev Price.

Cape Town – Breathtaking scenery, cool people and cheap as hell.

Free Parties – In summer, spare weekends are spent zipping around the fields and beaches of Sussex looking for illegal outdoor parties with my posse of rave monkeys. Nothing beats fresh air, loud music and good company – that's what it's all about.

Ed Real Versus The Shrink's 'Wake Up Call' is released at the end of October on Frantic

Ed Real: So named because he exists in the corporeal plane as opposed to the metaphysical, we dare say

Singles

Various Artists

Hardbeat 19 (Nukleuz Blue)

A remix package that sets non-Nukleuz artists loose on the back catalogue for the first time. Paul Glazby turns Eternal's 'Eternal 99' into a trance-infused smash, Pants & Corset take BK's 'Tragic' and ride a quirky and infectious groove, and Andy Farley gets tough and funky while fiddling with 'Please F**k Me'. Will also include a Bunter mix of IQ. Lovely!

Zini & Kantini

Big Beat (Nukleuz Red)

Zini & Kantini return with more infectious Dutch workouts that are as breezy as these autumn days. On the 'Original Mix', shuffling beats and sirens announce a rolling bass that glides along with the 'somebody scream' vocal scratched atop, before the big hook knocks you for six. The 'Jimmy Hammond Remix' is more of the same with added zing.

The Phat Controller

Close Attention (Vacuum)

The on-form Stimulant DJs repay Ingo for his great Alumina job with an equally awesome remake of 'CA' that's propelled by a bassline from Satan's inner chamber. Ingo's own mix is wobbly and wonderful, with catchy synth riffs popping up all over.

Banji Boyz

Free Florida (Tuff Twins)

Licensed after it blew up at this year's WMC, 'FF' is a refreshing affair that brings on thoughts of sun, sea and sangria. Revolving around a squeaky, spiralling synth whine, whooping crowds and laid back beats, this is chilled as taking the roof off gets. Tuff Twins up the tempo and make the ridiculously long break even longer, yet it works a treat.

Eufex

Feel It (Vicious Circle)

Dark and moody is the only way to describe the latest expertly polished offering from Eufex. It's a monstrous, breakdown-free mesh of tough beats, power-house bass and smart synth-work. Pants & Corset deliver a razor-sharp remix that utilises the best elements in their own unique fashion.

Illogic

Dance With The Devil (Elasticman)

The usual solid production underpins a gargantuan groove driven by a squelching bass and climaxing with an epic sci-fi soundtrack of a break. The teasing drop just before it kicks back in, however, almost kills the momentum and I'd love a copy with the offending few bars removed. Hoovertastic house heads, meanwhile, will love flipside 'Open Your Mind'.

Organ Donors

I Can Do The Boogaloo (Back On Plastic)

New kids on the block The Organ Donors have certainly made their presence felt this year, and this won't do their cause any harm, thanks to its obvious but effective Prodigy sample. Andy Farley and Paul James supply the remix, working the tune into a tough funk-fest with crisp techno hi-hats and plenty of swing.

Banga Matt & Craig Jon

Placetaker (Arktik)

Less is more, it is often said, and after experiencing these two minimal but energetic bouncers you'll be inclined to agree. 'Placetaker' is the sparser and darker, and cool enough, but somewhat overshadowed by the mesmerising mix of odd sounds played off each other on the hi-NRG flavoured 'Jam Hot'. Ideal trampoline music too.

The M Experience

Rock Ya Body (Detonator)

First out half a decade ago, when it became an Irish anthem that still gets played out today, 'Rock Ya Body' resurfaced earlier this year on Redemption in a Butch & Sundance remix and now comes on new offshoot Detonator in the first of two Irish remixes. Jay Pidgeon and Raff give it a high-octane offbeat flavour to suit fans of both the Ingo and Glazby styles.

Karim & Kultcha

Wicked (Wasa-B)

Wasa B's founder Kultcha teams up with Karim for a storming Base Graffiti-esque slice of futuristic funk, twittering fiercely and laced with smart hoovers and clever vocal bites. The Banga Matt remix is in Matt's dark and minimal NRG style, and it complements the other mix superbly.

Beamer Boys

Cruise Control (Impetuous, Belgium)

Two of the biggest production crews from the continent, RBA and The Shrink, join forces and come up with a double-header that matches their reputations. A euphoric synth riff leads the way on both mixes, with one opting for a Ficotto-styled reversed bass rhythm and the other going for a more full-on, almost NRG treatment. Either way, you can't lose.

Carlotta Chardick

Be There (Rock Hard)

Licensed from down under, this full-vocaled offbeat bouncer from the Dinky label arrives on Miss Pin-Up's imprint with two mixes from Lisa herself (one uplifting and bouncy, the other harder with added hoovers) and one from D-Bop, who give it a bright Euro treatment that suits perfectly.

The Ones

Flawless (Posiliva)

Head straight for the Sharp Boys mix on this pop chart contender. It's amusing to see George and Stephen's tough, tribal trance style being referred to elsewhere as a new musical discovery when in fact, they're just doing what they have always done, only better. Two years ago we all played their stuff and back then it was called hard house. How the wheel turns.

Karri K & Banga Matt

Laws Of The House (Re-Entry)

If you like Paul Glazby's frenetic approach, then this galloping, noisy and acidic pumphunter from Finnish DJ Karri and Corsican Matt will tickle your taste buds. Check that 303, and watch out for the ragga vocals and hellish rave stabs – only for the headstrong. It'll be released commercially with a new techno remix.

Miss Shiva

Dreams (VC)

Paul Glazby takes one of the biggest tracks of all time and does what Pants & Corset did when remixing Ian M's 'The Dreamer' – utilising the riff from underground classic 'Dreams' (by Quench). I don't know if Miss Shiva would approve, but the hard house fraternity certainly do – it's a corker!

Ed Real Versus The Shrink

Wake Up Call (Frantic)

A meeting of minds ends in a fusion of old skool and techno elements, with the 'Hard House Mix' rattling along nicely until the breakdown – totally OTT with a big riff and even bigger build-up. Phew! On the other side, Kev 'KGB' Bird delivers a phat and funky alternative with all sorts of twitery synths floating about the place. Cool.

Vital Release

John Thomas

Vision (Arii Brikha Remix) (Logistic)

Anyone who's witnessed one of Arii Brikha's mesmerising live sets will know what a special talent he is. His grooves have a weird, back-to-front dynamic that makes the beats tumble over each other in a manner that's as extraordinary as it is funky. Add to that his awe-inspiring builds and drops and you've got a record that's head and shoulders above anything else this month. Perfectly balanced future-tech with soul, feeling and motion. (DM)

Singles

Preach

Lexus EP (Ascend)

This one's been around for a while, but considering 'Catch Me' on the flip is such a great set builder, it had to go in. All bass-heavy beats, rolling rhythms and ethereal chord sweeps, it's a great set builder that's perfect for those mood-changing moments when you need to ease the tempo but can't afford to lose momentum. (DM)

Tim Taylor & Thor 54

Over The Hill (Missile)

As User's 'Volume 12' continues to do rather well in techno discos around the globe, here's another record that lifts the rhythm from Tantra's 'Hills Of Kalmandu' wholesale. It's not bad either, especially in its darker Mr G guise. Our advice, though, is to track down the hi-NRG, high camp 1979 original. (DM)

Oka & Yamazaki

Underhand EP (Dark House Music)

This could have been just another two-week record – alright, but nothing special. Wisely though, someone commissioned a Rue East mix and now instead of being run of the mill it's actually quite tasty. The hats swing, the drums rock, the midrange hooks and vocal loops creep up with just the right intensity. (DM)

Gary Martin

Persuasive Percussion EP (Tekknotika)

This, as you may have gathered from the title, is a very percussive record. In fact it's exceptionally percussive, even by Gary Martin's percussive-heavy standards. Play it out and everyone will think the party has been gatecrashed by a group of mad Latino drummers, which, let's face it, can only be a good thing. (DM)

Vince Watson

Abstractions EP (Bio)

Quite why Vince Watson isn't more highly rated by the world at large is a mystery to us. Here he proves yet again that his wide-ranging style is leagues above most of his contemporaries. If you're still unconvinced or unfamiliar, then check the EP's opener 'Fiction' – it's like 'Lifetimes', only, dare we say it, better. (DM)

Trevor Rockliffe

Need You (Mentor)

From Trade to the Fuse club and all points in between, Rockliffe has always been one of those DJs who understands that there's more to big room techno than sledgehammers, drills and chainsaws. So what you get instead are disco basslines, tough, rolling beats and old school vocal samples. It's all in a day's work for techno's original party man. (DM)

"Hi, we're Red Moon. Have you thought about Jesus recently?"

Red Moon

The beautiful music machine that is Roger Watson (aka DJ Hal) and Tony Thomas from The Producers

What's so good about them, then?

Their records, of course. Their debut tune 'Caterpillar' was one of Eukahouse's best-received records, winning plaudits from the likes of Terry Francis and Craig Richards. The follow up, 'Esther The Whore' on Surround Sounds, is currently being hammered by everyone from Steve Lawler and Anthony Pappa to Colin Dale and Mr C. All of which means they have an appeal that goes beyond that of your average tech-house outfit, something Roger puts this down to their wide range of influences.

"I come from a Balearic background," he says. "When I DJ, I play everything from hip hop and funk right through to deep house, whereas Tony is more of a techno man." So what's next for these boys?

"We're doing our first live show soon at the Impulz festival in Holland," says Roger, obviously delighted at the prospect. Then there's their remix of 'Ghetto Tears' by Martin Benejoki on Loaded, which Roger reliably and rather modestly informs us "is going to be massive."

Another remix for Niche, the prog house imprint, will follow, and later this year they'll be releasing their debut album on Surround Sounds.

'Esther The Whore' is out now on Surround Sounds

Halcyon Daze

Searchin' EP (Molecular)

When Colin McBean pulls the cat out of the bag he's nothing short of awesome, and that's what he's done here. Okay, so two of the cuts aren't that amazing, but the lead track's dirty, driving bass, mad sounds and dark, foreboding mood more than compensate. A proper G-man techno mash-up. (DM)

Transparent Sound

Orson's House (Surreal)

A bit of a surprise, this one, as the Transparent boys take some time off from writing electro beats and get with some tech-house vibes instead. The results aren't half bad either, with two versions of the same track on one side and a James Harrison mix on the other. Think Housey Doingz with spookier sounds. (DM)

Splinterfaction

Breathe New Life (Digital Soul)

Those of you with good memories and a taste for deeper techno styles might remember Mik Poynter (Splinterfaction) in his previous incarnation as Fat Filters. Here he wears his influences (Red Planet, Ian O'Brien and Anthony Shaki) on his sleeve, but that's hardly a problem as it's all delivered with real skill and fluency. Dream state techno for those who still pine for good old-fashioned artificial intelligence. (DM)

Various Artists

EP 5 (Duplex)

Another record that harks back to electronica's early Nineties heyday. We've no idea who the artists involved are as the label copy doesn't give much away, but we can tell you that it's all top drawer gear with loads of Detroitian sweeps, B12-style syncopation and lush, melancholic chords. The spirit of the Black Dog is alive, well and living in Rotterdam. (DM)

Sons Of Slough

Omegadent (Skint)

We're not convinced about the electro side of this release, as it's just too retro for our sensitive ears. The tech-house mix on the flip gets our seal of approval, though. It doesn't really do all that much, but it chugs along nicely in a jerky yet smooth kinda way and sounds pretty good in the mix. (DM)

Ultradyn

Antartica (Pi Gao Movement)

Coming on like Dopplereffekt sucked through a wormhole, Ultradyn's robotic and wiggled-out electro futurism is as fresh as it is quirky and Kraftwerk cool. Clean and crisp but with enough audio freak out beats and rhythms to keep you wrong-footed, the melodic nature of the frazzled, crossed pylons means that Ultradyn come closest yet to holding a candle to Drexciya's unsurpassed flame. (JS)

DJ Deon

Tear The Club Up (Pro-Jex)

An apt title if ever there was one, as Chicago's Deon goes schizo on the vocal name-calling tip, with jack-hammer Armani-style 909 beats creating a thunderous wall of sound underneath. With fellow old skool Chi-town dweller DJ Funk providing guest vocals on the flip's remake of the classic 'Snake It', this is one dynamite package in the hands of the right DJ. Tearin'. (JS)

Tony Jackson

The Journey (End To End)

Kalamazoo's newest addition to Detroit and Chicago's halfway house reels out a quality four-tracker with plenty of across-the-board decks appeal. From melodic, Detroit deepness to (you guessed it) Chicago jacking beats, Jackson whips in the groove with enough depth and nous to leave you in no doubt that this is one man we're gonna be hearing a lot more of as his 'Journey' unravels. (JS)

Vital Release

Chrome Yellow

New And Better Sex
(Chrome Yellow Communications)

Handed to a few faces over a year ago and still holding its own, Chrome Yellow now finally see the light of day. This international collaboration comes from Australian Adrian White and Ricky Blue and is a hard metallic fusion for the fuller dancefloor. Repetitive, tough and funky in equal measure. A welcome addition to the breakbeat flock and top of the league.

Krafty Kuts, about to get out of his box

Brothers Of Dub

Same Frequency (FFS Mix)
(Forged)

We love our dub influences around here, and we love the rich vein of form Future Funk Squad is in. This is a rough skank, a bassline that does its job and another away win for The Glenn Nicholls.

DJ Punk-Roc

Blow My Mind (Airdog)

Heavy. The Plump DJs emerge from their album-making hibernation to give a spit and a polish to Punk-Roc's worthy electro original. Their boombastic drum and bass combination leaves the opposition flat-footed. More proof the Plumps will be there or thereabouts at the end of the season, as ever.

Arthur Baker & Meat Katie

Rockin' On Sunshine (Perfecto)

Arthur Baker has called upon some of the leading breakbeat strikeforce in his bid for promotion. Meat Katie more than earns his wages, adding his usual dub funk house flavour to this re-rub of a Baker original. One for the heads down crew.

Koma & Bones

Button Monkey (Streetbeats)

Taken from their US mix album 'Nu Horizons 02'. Whether they keep this work rate up all season is one thing, but Lancashire's finest show no signs of letting up. A tailor-made epic groove, dub inflections and a lazy beat make this a winner. DBJ's 'Spank The Monkey' remix electros things up nice for the US market.

Versatile Featuring MC B-Live

Cum Cakes (Honey Beat)

Crowd noises. Big ol' basslines. Some dubious MC lyrics ('Left right, left right, bust up the mic', anyone?) sound like long ball tactics on paper, but the production on the breakbeat garage instrumental will appeal to the Zincs, the Krafty Kuts, the Freq Nastys and other purveyors of the heavy groove.

Shut Up And Dance Featuring 2 Ton

Moving Up (SUAD)

Veteran strikers from east London come good again, finding filthy bass sounds where they shouldn't and bucking the breakbeat garage bronco with more subtlety than in recent times. MC 2 Ton gets a Vibe FM rice 'n' peas reggae vocal on the go, but this purist only just prefers the instrumental. Bad like the new Britney track and the freshest since 'Action'.

Aquasky Versus Masterblaster

Ghost/Lord Of Motion Remix
(Passenger)

Ooh, this is baad. A derby match that always produces fireworks has done it again. Originally surfacing with drum & bass tracks on Aquasky's Sonix label, the Bournemouth boys show how two-footed they are, flipping things down to 135bpm and ripping a hole out of the dancefloor.

Solar

Sunspots (Circular Orbit)

Another contender for Vital Release and an indication of how strong the league is at the moment. Old school electro updated simply and effectively for breakers and breakbeat fiends alike. The percussive electro thrum of 'Underworld Of Osiris' is even more impressive.

Blim & Rennie Pilgrem

Triffid (Track)

Second release on BLIM's track label and the return leg between him and the big lad up front Rennie Pilgrem. The more gnarly 'Triffid' is the one for the breakbeat police. We soft lads and ladies like the rolling percussive thunk of 'Monkfish', the natural successor to 'Eskimo'. Top work.

In The Bag

Krafty Kuts

Martin Reeves, known to you and me as Krafty Kuts, has lent his talents to the likes of Finger Lickin', Southern Fried, Stakka Humanoid and his own Against The Grain label. Here's what he's digging in his crate this month

"THE Rennie Pilgrem mix of Deep Blue's 'The Helicopter Tune' (Moving Shadow) keeps the original flavours of this classic d&b track but adds some bass-heavy action. A classic breaks re-rub.

"Krafty Kuts' 'Don't Stop' (dub plate) drops back into funk mode with a hint of disco and a slice of carnivorous bass.

"Skool Of Thought's 'Devastate' (dub plate) hits you like a Mike Tyson jab with its eerie siren riffs and a hard-as-Bognor-rock kick drum. Set to ignite dancefloors in your area.

"Disco Assassins' 'Hook U Up' (ATG) is raw, uncut twisted breakbeat – not one for the chin strokers.

"Finally, Praga Khan's 'Injected With A Poison' (KK Mix) (Newkleus) is another remix I have been road testing – and I was around when the original first came out. Again, an electro feel with some techy stabs and quirky synth lines and an old Chicago-style baseline. Lovely."

Krafty Kuts' 'Smash The Breaks' is out now on Against The Grain

Electrelane

Film Music (Let's Rock)

Always loved the original of this, a sick seven-inch cinematic score from four Brighton belles. Mixes come from on-loan strikers Echoboy on an electro lip, Treva Whatever with some pacy beats and sharp runs upfront, and best of all Jagz Kooner, bossing the midfield with a dose of midtempo percussive funk. Different.

Blue Effect

Aquathought
(FUNctional Breaks)

FUNctional Breaks, the unfancied outsider from out west, cock another snook to the breakbeat league's more fancied outfits, once again pulling out the goods. A jazzual garage vibe if you will, similar in flavour to a Landslide record, and superior to the excellent Stabiliser and Spoon Wizard efforts on the flip. Buy.

Kraymon

Bite The Bullet (Boombox)

A mid-tempo acid test on Boombox for the much fancied Kraymon. A 303 formation, and trancey electro overtones indicate a direct approach bound to find favour in the great outdoors, though it's perhaps a little two-dimensional for the aesthetes amongst you.

Soul Electric

Surrender
(In-flight Entertainment)

Danny McMillan and Will South have never been afraid to experiment with their formations. busting a 4-4-2 dancefloor groove or a 3-5-2 home listening thing on the same day if the mood takes them. 'Surrender' would be more at home on Doctor Bob Jones' page down the road, but Blue Effect picks things up again with that two-step shuffle of his. And how.

Regency Buck

God At The Disco
(Terminalhead Remix)
(white label)

Where Terminalhead find these bands to remix, or what the original records sound like is a mystery. Nevertheless, we flip to the dub where the drums are sold at the back, the bassline holds the midfield together, and guitar licks and futuristic dub sweeps make surging runs from the wings. Would prefer a Terminalhead original, but that's just nit picking.

Minute Men

Lo Life (Kilowatt)

A new release on a new label from Bedrock resident DJ hyper. Messrs Muir and Gray leave the progressive 4/4 thunk that is their natural habitat for some progressive breakbeat business instead. A taster from Hyper's forthcoming Bedrock compilation and one for the heads, no doubt.

Mashup

Do It (Plastica Red)
Well-crafted percussion and the obligatory kick and we are off. Add some throbbing, warbling bass and the scene is set. Another chunky prog houser – well, yes, but we don't finish there, oh no. The vocal makes this into a Beloved-cum-New Order-esque classic – awesome! Wake up, do it, do it! (P)

Singles

Stript Inc

Glitterball (Method)

It's time to start saying your prayers, in preparation for Method's latest wickedly evil progressive release. Calling upon the forces of darkness are Norman H and Gary Dobbs, aka Stript Inc, with Andy Moor drafted in to beef their track up with a progressive remix straight from hell. This is not for the faint-hearted – your soul could well be in danger. Well, perhaps I'm exaggerating a little. (LF)

Orinoko

Island (Positiva)

As the summer winds down, thank God for those pillars of society, doctors, for getting us back on our feet after Ibiza. To end the season on a high, Timo Maas, Martin Bultrich and Xan Tyer have deftly combined their talents for a track destined for anthem status. The Thrillseekers' mix is sublime. (LF)

Shibuya

Naked & Beautiful (Conception)

Trance junkies will be foaming at the mouth (aren't they always?) on hearing this haunting and uplifting trance from top Japanese production duo Nivi Gashira and DJ Samurai. Working with vocalist Mary Pearce, they have produced a track that suggests you should "take off your clothes and dance!" – words to be acted upon without delay. Divide And Rule add extra credibility with a stripped down tech-trance remix. (LF)

Angelic

Stay With Me (Serious)

Darren and Amanda seem to be on course for a Top 10 breaker, with the most commercially orientated Angelic single yet. Following the familiar format of euphoric strings backed with emotive vocals, it is easy to see why this genre of music is so popular in clubland. For those who shy away from the sugary sweet, try the 'Marc O'Tool' Dub', which adds a deeper, progressive spin on things. (LF)

Pob: Insert poor joke about dimly remembered kids' TV character here

Slynus

Slynus III (Vinyl Addiction)

It was one of those 'listen to this binding tune on a sub standard audio tape that has been completely mangled' moments. Fortunately, we were able to get the general gist of a rather booming techno-influenced, hypnotic trance beast, and decided to immediately track it down. After several false starts, a copy was found. Written by Linus, this bummer is a big black disc of pure throbbing evil. You'll love it. (LF)

Tony Thomas

Living It (Purpose)

It is amazing what you can do with a shoestring, for apparently, Purpose Records was started on one, with the aim of releasing quality tech/progressive house. Tony, who has over 40 production projects ready to rumble this year, has a unique musical viewpoint. Hopefully, the delivery vans, made from empty egg cartons, will be able to distribute the vinyl without delay. (LF)

Manticore

Slaves (Baroque)

Another complete package from the dons of the Twilo house sound. The original rocks along, driving to a dark vocal break. Flip to find the incredible Brancaccio & Aisher remix. More progressive with their fantastically unique method of melody production shining through. (P)

Vance Musgrove

Squelch (Vapour)

The best Australian label is now surpassing even its own high standards. 'Squelch' covers many of the progressive bases, starting with dark, grizzly bass moving subtly through to a chunky groove and then a skankin' piano break. Simple and very effective – a dancelfloor winner! (P)

Medway Versus Gawtry

Geno Sequence (Decipher)

Quite simply Decipher's best yet. Not just deep and groovy as is the norm at the moment, but adding enough quirky (aka Paul Brogden). Things are hectic for the man named after a naughty puppet!

"WAKE UP and stumble blindly to the kitchen to drink some strong coffee. When that kicks in, it's into the studio to do some last minute work on my live PA, which I'll be performing for my album launch at Bedrock tonight. "John Digweed calls to sort out the play order; I settle for a midnight slot in the main room.

"Drive like a madman to the airport, collecting some very good friends that have flown in from Vienna to see the show. Drop them at home before heading to Platipus Records to see Simon 'Art Of Trance' Berry to borrow some of his studio to take on stage with me.

"Go to Heaven in Charing Cross, the venue for Bedrock. Set up my equipment and do a soundcheck to an empty room.

"Taylor, a DJ from LA that I worked with on one of my album tracks, texts a good luck message for tonight. I tell him I'll let him know how the track we wrote goes down.

"Chilling at home, I realise I haven't written my 'day in the life' piece for Muzik yet, so frantically scribble the day's events. It's 9pm and there's less than half an hour left till I have to return to Heaven to play..." (LF) lifts to take it past the mundane and to a higher plain. Never getting over-excited and losing its cool roots but always aiming to get more movement on the all-important dancelfloor. (P)

Powerplant

Angel (Teknology)

Teknology are on a roll, fast becoming one of the strongest progressive labels out there. 'Angel' in its 'Hamel Versus Medway' remix really rocks once it gets going. Monster sub-bass and Twilo-style percussion are finished off with a tastefully used sample from Massive Attack's 'Angel'. (P)

DJ Cyber

Marco Antonio (Cyber)

They still can't do any wrong, those Dutch. This is another funky, tech-driven masterpiece but this time with a difference. Here a collection of sounds and styles that DJ Cyber's late friend Marco Antonio adored are presented in a wonderful tribute. A fantastic record with heartfelt meaning at its core. (P)

Bluefish

Three (Quad)

Bluefish are back – well they will be soon. With no release date set yet for 'Three' there could still be a wait. Another chunky, percussion-driven groove scattered with odd spoken vocal samples that are brought to the fore in the break. Huge already for the big guns. (P)

Mike Vandenberg

Spooky (Sadle)

Mike Vandenberg, who is set to follow Sander Kleinenberg to superstardom, and Sadie Records who are hot on Cyber and Combined Forces' heels team up again to bring us an awesome funky and incredibly melodic, moody number. Complete with 'Lemon8', 'Spaced Out' and 'Nu Skool Broken' remixes. (P)

Piece Process

Adrenalin (Pod)

Like a huge, pulsating sac of thrusting, squirming things, the ever-expanding Pod bring new wonders with every release. Matt Philips, who you might recall from his earlier 'Deepside' track, returns with an incredible production that threatens to cause the listener to fall into a parallel dimension when played at high volume. Weekend World supply a more laid back flipside. (LF)

lio

Rapture (Made/Ministry Of Sound)

Incredibly cool and infamously catchy, this tune's simplicity combined with one of the biggest hooks of the year are gonna see it fly all the way to the top of the charts. And once again, Creamer and K are the reason so many arms will be raised aloft. Ignore this record at your peril... forget that – you'll never be able to ignore it! (P)

DOUBLE ZERO

Ill Logic & Raf

Water Torture (Double Zero)

While so many tracks sacrifice any sense of drama and tension to sheer brutality, 'Water Torture' has both in spades. Spectral strings and the eponymous percussion droplets set the tone, swiftly followed by weighty bass stabs and nimble drums. Each element darts in and out of earshot like an actor in an Oriental play. Brilliant, 'Mind Tricks' is equally good, both rhythmically compelling and wonderfully atmospheric. Something wicked this way comes.

State Of The Artist

Ill Logic & Raf

The cinematic junglists tell us what makes them drop their popcorn

What's your musical background? "We've been influenced by loads of different forms of music. Miles Davis is an obvious inspiration, Herbie Hancock as well. Film soundtracks, like Lalo Schifrin and Ennio Morricone's stuff, have been really important to us. Soul and hip hop too – Stevie Wonder, Marvin Gaye, A Tribe Called Quest, and the whole Philly Soulquarians sound."

Where is drum & bass heading? "Hard to say – the scene's so diverse. But we hope it goes towards the more soulful edge, bringing back the funk of a few years ago. There's a tendency to concentrate more on production than musical content at the moment, which isn't good. . ."

What are you up to at the moment? "We've just finished a remix of SFK's 'Forever Young' for Botchit & Scarper, as part of a tribute to [label boss] Vini Medley who died last year. We've also done a remix of a tune called 'Soma' by The Bluefoot Project, which should be out soon. Raf's also got a forthcoming solo release on Double Zero."

'Water Torture' by Ill Logic & Raf is out on Double Zero on 29th October

Singles

Matrix

Fallen (Remix) (Idioma)

New label Idioma debuts with two typically stripped to the bone roll-outs from Matrix. Where's he been hiding? The title track fuses toughness and lyricism in a manner reminiscent of his Klute remix, but turn to 'Bad Dreams' for some proper drum tuggery, where the subliminal fear-tones and weirded-out percussion cast a powerfully strange spell. Mighty.

Various Artists

Inferno EP (Outbreak)

Dylan's 'Inferno' is six minutes of pure percussive venom and a formidable start to the EP. Over on the flip, 'Think' (Dylan again) breathes new life into the eponymous – and much-neglected – break. The prime draw here, though, is Kemal and Rob Data's 'Possession' remix, a monstrous fusion of blurry electronics and ricocheting breaks reminiscent of Cause4Concern's classic 'Epox'. Sick.

Fire 'N' Skill

Takin' Scores (Integrity Beatz)

Ah, the breaks! A brand new Bradford label impresses mightily with its debut twelve. Both tracks have slo-mo intros that are suddenly undercut by a frenzy of old skool rolling beats of the kind you (almost) never hear these days. If there's a highlight it's the louche breaks-and-bassline boogie of 'Clique Pressure'. Proper jungle lunacy. More please.

Cause4Concern

Night Gasp (Idioma)

A fast-paced roller from Cause4Concern, whose variations on the new-school-of-darkside theme are so minute that they don't leave much of an impression. 'Patchwork' is subtler and prettier, delicate beats and strange submerged sounds overlaying an ethereal Carl Craig sample. 'Therapy' prescribes some slower, dooper breaks.

DJ Damage

Rapture (Invader)

Two stunning tracks from Damage. 'Rapture' is an immense drum onslaught that alternates between various different breaks, while spacey Dr Who-style sounds and a grim bass drone underpin it all. The more rigid, stuttering break that drives 'Inside Of Me' mingles with a wooden-sounding percussive tic, a 'love will make things right' vocal sample and some well-deployed strings. Ace.

The Visitors

The Visitor (No U-Turn)

More hurtling intricacy and vertiginous soundscapes from Nico's ever-excellent label. 'The Visitor' opens with scuttling percussion and a darkly melodramatic interrogation – "Who are you? What is your destination? You do understand the danger, don't you?" – before descending into a maelstrom of electronic blips and restless drums. "We're Into That" offers similarly haunted drum patterns. Solid.

Sappo

Stand Bold (Emotif)

'Stand Bold' is a nice, lighthearted roller in a style similar to the Tru Playaz camp, spangly keyboard licks coursing through the beats like sunlight on water. On the bass-laden 'Do It', some silken-voiced honey exhorts us to "do all the nasty things I like". Tempting, but 'Stand Bold' is the killer.

Rascal & Klone

Nightphase (Emotif)

Arresting in its atmosphere and velocity, 'Nightphase' nevertheless seems sorely in need of some proper breaks to give it punch. Flipside 'Convicted' uses the same combination of cranked-to-the-max percussion and sounds that suggest vast horizons and yawning voids. A buzz, then, but not for breaks-lovers.

Calibre

Deep Everytime (Creative Source)

Misrepresented by some as a backwards-looking purveyor of 'intelligent' drum & bass, Belfast's Calibre is actually making some of the most innovative and gorgeous music around. 'Deep Everytime' is one of the strongest cuts from his superb 'Musique Concrete' album, a disarmingly simple piece of modern urban soul that resurrects – hooray! – the hoover bass sound. Turn to 'What U Need' for some sinuous, dusky beats.

The Architex

Dance Of The Titanium Minds (Architecture)

This one's magnificent, a gargantuan flow of tightly chopped drum patterns and vast, inhuman chords. Intermittent steel drum melodies add a touch of light to the proceedings. Unknown forces at play. Epic. 'Feel The Heat' rolls out some more of those 'Think' breaks (hints of a resurrection here?) while messed-up voices and a deeply embedded funk bassline create a mood of nervous rapture. Excellent.

Albums

DJ Marky: The Brazilian Job (Movement)

Movement's follow-up to the excellent 'Perpetual Drum & Bass Motion' is testament to the musical genius of two very different nations. Marky juxtaposes the darkest of British darkside (Bad Company's 'Four Days', say) with the sun-drenched rhythms of Brazil (such as his own sublime 'Caroline Carol Bela') – a risk few are prepared to take. A few more Brazilian tracks wouldn't have gone amiss, but this is superb nevertheless.

Various Artists

Renegades Of Funk (Renegade)

Quite apart from sounding great, the deeper sounds represented here are also getting the ladies back on the dancefloor. The trend on this, Renegade's second label compilation, is for lightly stepping rollers with deep basslines and a nod towards the sparse harmonies of early Chicago and Detroit. Special mention should go to Sonic's synth-driven 'Healwave' and the bassline sorcery of Ju Ju, Echo & Hive's 'Penthouse'. Properly horny breaks.

So Who The Hell Is...

Edan

Well, first up it's pronounced 'E-don', and it's his real name. "It means something about eternity - all that good stuff," he explains. . .

What are you trying to do in hip hop?

"Counter a certain level of patronising polish that exists in a lot of music and make it into a real experience. Basically I listen to a lot of old hip hop records. They're my favourite hip hop records, that's where I get my inspiration. But I try to make it a combination of futurism and nostalgia."

How did you end up in Boston?

"I went to music school at Berkley, having played bass in a jazz band at high school. There was no one at the school that was bringing hip hop to me in the right way. It's not a hip hop school! So I had to keep pursuing my own interests and eventually my interest in the school waned and I dropped out."

So are we going to get the Edan jazz album any time soon?

"Well, maybe. I see what Madlib's been doing. Actually, I play folk music now. I like Dylan and all that stuff. Just a simple song that's well written is something to inspire me. I'm trying to be well-rounded!"

The single 'Mic Manipulator' is out now and the album 'Primitive Plus' will be out on Lewis Recordings in November

Singles

DV Alias Khrist

Rejuvenation (Move Stomp) (Bear Moutai, USA)

DV has one of the more interesting voices in East Coast hip hop. Perhaps that's why he's been largely ignored by the mainstream. Here, Maceo gifts him two hard, funky beats that give him room to be very good indeed. Excellent.

The Nextmen Featuring Rodney P

Where You'll Find Me (Scenario)

Rodney P seems to release about 800 singles a month at the moment, and is blinding on all of them. Apparently this one is left over from the session that led to his Nextmen album contribution, 'I'll Try'. As ever, he attacks the beat and comes off best. More so than usual on this beat, which has just a little too much sashay.

Mike Zoot Featuring Labba

Spread Love (Groove Attack)

"Mike Zity in ya city" - putting aside the issue of Mike's complexion, Zoot returns on some roots reggae loop and delivers his best material in ages. Not so much because it's in any way lyrically inspired, but just because the backing sounds so good and it's a seven-inch and it feels super ruff and utterly ready.

Aerosolik All Stars

All Stars EP (Aerosolik)

Scarborough's Aerosolik come through with a strong EP of atmospheric, eerie beats, often with an understated electro edge, and confident, quick-tongued MCing from AD-1. It all works, but the standout track is 'Sandman', where sub bass combines with a harp twist to make a tune that is both uplifting and weird.

Edan

Mic Manipulator (Lewis)

There's been so much fuss about this boy from Maryland, so it's good to hear him on a brand new British label. The results live up to the hype - there's something very late Eighties/early Nineties about the whole thing, but fuckin' hell, if you do it this well and make it sound so new, who cares? Swinging, funky beats combined with super, tongue-twisting wordplay takes you back to when hip hop was fun, but without seeming self-conscious. Lovely.

RDS

I Just Kan't Kope (RDS)

Over a twinkling psycho-piano loop reminiscent of early Wu Tang, this south east London crew come through with pure lyrical nastiness, flowing cleverly and with considerable flair. The three voices complement each other nicely and their off-colour tales of street life feel proper. Spooky innit?

Tony D

Wizard of Oz/Yodel (Grand Central)

The Mancunian soul-hopper's New Jersey connection returns with what appears to be his first single for the label since his album back in 1997. It's, erm, interesting. Monks on one side and yodellers on the other, all held together by tick-tock beats. Both tracks are reasonably funny and very well done, but feel a little... cld?

Rodney P

Big Tings We Inna (Riddim Killa)

That's more like it. The second release from Rodney P's own label shows the man on absolutely top form, helped considerably by a genuinely skanking, reggae-fuelled beat that makes you feel stoned just listening to it. Mr P is obviously determined to be a legend of tomorrow as well as of the last decade.

Aspects

We Get Fowl (Hombre)

The bumptious Bristol boys return with their ode to chickens (a perfect rejoinder to all the tossers who said West Country rap sounded like the Wurzels) and a fantastic remix from 7 Stu 7. If there's a criticism of the single it's of the B-side, 'Correct English'. Nothing wrong with the lyrical work of Aspects or their guests, Taskforce, but berating UK rappers for using American accents seems like something from 1995. This battle has been won - let's consign it to history and find something more interesting to talk about.

Various Artists

Shining Son EP (Son/Bad News, Japan)

Son's Japanese link-up comes with an EP of material from recent LPs, led by a very nice, woody remix of Mad Doctor X's posse cut, '7even'. Throw in Def Tex with Ty and Huntikilbury Finn and a Lost Island cut and you've got a really strong package.

Mystic

The Life (GoodVibe, USA)

Left Coast female MC with more than a little commercial edge who nevertheless cuts it because she pulls off her conscious-lite with more style than half a hundred lesser talents. Her voice carries it, but A-Plus (from Sounds Of Mischief) keeps his end up on the production.

Albums

Lexicon

It's The LI (Spy Tech, USA)

A very tight, funny record which sits somewhere between the Tribe of 'People's Instinctive Travels...' and Atmosphere. Not everything is perfect and some of the tracks get a little heavy on the nostalgia vibe, but you can't fault the way it builds on the promise of 'Nikelhead'. Classy.

Fat Jon as Maurice Galactica

Humanoid Erotica (Counterflow/Groove Attack)

A album of instrumental hip hop from the Ample Soul Physician for you to get down and dirty to. I haven't really tested its aphrodisiac powers, but these are beautifully constructed, mellow little tunes, constantly changing and eminently musical. But more likely to be listened to by wanna-b-boys checking out the samples than Casanovas. An unfair fate.

Tre

Daily Affirmations (Mother Tongues, Australia)

The Australian b-girl on the Australian b-girl label, collects together the tracks from her single with a couple of new ones. There's a fantastic cameo from Aceyalone on some Miles shiznit, but Tre shows what she can do with a harmony and a story on standout track 'Reality Tales'. Really promising.

Aesop Rock

Labor Days (Def Jux)

Aesop Rock seems to have developed considerably from his first album 'Float', seeming more varied, musically and vocally. Either that or I'm listening harder. Bizarrely, although the timbre of his voice and his aims are totally different, his flow can bear a resemblance to Eminem's. His voice can still get a little overpowering, but his words have a raw honesty - he means it and that means something.

Take You Out (J)

So the big man returns with a new label, album and single to grace your soulful decks. To be quite frank the maxi is, apart from a couple of worthy tunes, a real pile of cabaret gunge, but this cut, touched by the golden hands of Karmadelic and Maurice Joshua, is worthy of your attention.

Obliquity (Clairaudience)

This is the work of New York producer/artist Anthony Nicholson, one of the guys behind the underground US soul motif Sfero. This time he creates a pure jazz and beat vibe for Clairaudience. Rough rhythms and raw sax add to the excitement and make this EP worth searching the import racks for.

So Who The Hell Is...

Blu Cantrell

US soulstress signed without singing a note

THERE ARE plenty of stories about r&b singers who were 'discovered' while singing in tube stations or waiting rooms. Providence-born Blu Cantrell can go one better. "I'd come to Atlanta to visit some family," she explains, "and somebody stopped me saying I looked like a singer. They introduced me to LA Reid, and he hooked me up with a record deal at Arista. This was all before they'd heard me sing a single note!"

Fortunately, she can sing, as her Dallas Austin-produced debut single 'Hit 'Em Up Style (Oops)' shows. It comes with a maddeningly infectious singalong hook, and reached Number One in America. After several months on import, it's finally released in the UK this month, along with the album 'So Blu'.

"There's a very jazz-oriented feel to the album," explains Blu (a nickname from her mother). "Dallas also produced one of the other tracks, and Jam & Lewis are also on there."

Not all the songs follow the familiar lyrical theme of 'Oops' – a girl getting her own back on her man for cheating. "I don't think people see it as another guy-bashing tune," says Blu. "It's just a fun song, and I think guys love it just as much as girls!"

'Hit 'Em Up Style (Oops)' is out on November 12th. 'So Blu' follows on 26th, both on Arista some much wanted items. Speedbump's 'Deeper' sounds like a lost Lou Rawls tune, and George Levin's 'When I'm With You' will be fetching silly money in about 10 years' time. So grab this pot of pure gold while you can.

Rio Evolutions Volume 1 (Easy Beat)

A superb selection of nu bossa [Are you sure? – Nu Genres Ed.] tracks selected by one of Italy's finest, Paolo Scotti. His passionate love of all things jazz comes shining through on this highly eclectic set. The attraction of this is that he doesn't live too much in the past, sitting modern breaks and beats perfectly alongside old school rhymes and things.

Giant Step Records Sessions Volume 1 (Giant Step)

We knew it wouldn't take that long before New York's happening label decided to hit us with their definitive collection. This is the stuff that can be heard at Shrine, the Step's flagship club on a Thursday night in downtown NYC, hosted by the genius of all things deep and spiritual, Ron Trent. Another 'must have' import album.

Jeff Lorber

Kickin' It (Gold Circle)

Back in the mid Seventies this guy was on the cutting edge of jazz fusion, but now he seems to have descended to making 'lift music'. Sure, this is pleasant enough, well produced and played, but it's hardly breaking any barriers at all. Disappointingly dull.

Various Artists

Nite Owl Volume 3 (Joe Bloy)

The Northern soul' fraternity are in their latest revival, according to media sources, but to those of us with our feet in the soul camp, it has never gone away. All gems, these tried and tested classics are worth a listen for anyone who wants an insight into this evergreen, soulful dance scene.

Beverly Knight

Get Up (Pariophone)

A really pleasant surprise from the UK's first lady of soul. Any fears that Beverly was going to disappear down Retro Alley are dismissed with this chunk of polished and cutting-edge r&b. Produced by Derrick Martin and Derrick Joshua, the track's barnstorming chorus is decidedly British, while the overall sound and production has the sheen of a US record. Good work.

Singles

Bubba Sparxxx

Ugly (11th Hour/Interscope)

The first release from Timbaland's 'Beat Club' and the debut from a much-hyped young, white, southern rapper. The backing continues in Timbaland's recent Middle Eastern-sounding direction and is matched cunce for ounce by Bubba Sparxxx' rap. A very strong track which is already bubbling.

Kool G Rap Featuring G Wise

My Life (Rawkus)

Kool G Rap's resurrection continues with this excellent, headbanging new track. There's no information on the promo about the producers, but the beats have an almost Teddy Riley feel to them. A big, New York-style track.

Foxy Brown

Candy (Def Jam)

Following up the mighty 'Oh Yeah' was always going to be difficult, but this Neptunes-produced track manages to pull it off. A poppy female chorus is contrasted by Foxy's typically gruff and X-rated delivery, while The Neptunes' production skills show no signs of abating. Good stuff.

Nas

Stillmatic (Columbia)

Nas attempts to show that he's 'Stillmatic' [EH? - Ed.] with this simple track, which loops the ancient Coldcut remix of Eric B & Rakim's 'Paid In Full'. The contents will no doubt fuel the current beef with Jay Z, but it's all good, clean fun.

Usher

U Remind Me (Arista)

A bit late in the day but worthy of mention due to the quality of this US remix. Tone & Poke deliver an excellent, soulful mix of 'U Remind Me', with Usher's Arista labelmate Blu Cantrell guesting on vocals alongside Method Man. Maybe this is meant to balance out Usher's decidedly downtempo new single 'U Got It Bad'.

Public Announcement

John Doe/ Mamacita (Remix) (RCA)

A strong new single from R Kelly's old backing group. The main cut is a bass-driven party tune featuring female rapper Mz Lelee, but the track that will probably swing it for most is the previously unavailable remix of the group's last single, 'Mamacita'. Built around The Emotions' classic old skool hip hop break 'Blind Alley', Big Daddy Kane makes an appearance to add extra vintage appeal.

JA Rule

Livin' It Up (Def Jam)

A club-orientated number launches JA Rule's third album. Based on a replayed backing of Stevie Wonder's 'Do I Do', labelmate Case is on hand to provide his vocal excellence. Not subtle, but effective nonetheless.

DJ Enuff Featuring J Remi

So Beautiful/One Night Stand

If memory serves, DJ Enuff was one of the DJ Runnin' Tings.US white label remix team. This new white label is an original production featuring a couple of street-orientated r&b cuts. The A-side is a heavy, synth-driven number which grows on you, while a bonus track

So Who The Hell Is...

Cherise

West London teenager turned MOBO Award winner makes good

R&B and a generous degree of surface gloss have always gone hand in hand. But when you hear Cherise harmonising about having a "shitty attitude" or how she's "tired of y'all niggaz acting fresh," you realise there's nothing artificial or watered down about this highly talented newcomer. Instead, you get the brazen street attitude of an 18 year-old from Shepherds Bush.

"I'm not trying to sugar-coat anything," says Cherise. "I'm just representing myself honestly, and I think a lot of people will relate to what I'm saying."

Cherise blew up last year, when she won the MOBO Best Unsigned Act award as part of the production crew Big Brovaz. A label deal with East West followed; the track that clinched it, '2nd Best', has just been re-released, and now features on the album 'Look Inside'.

"I co-wrote a lot of the tracks," she explains. "As I'm still 18, they're all very much from a young person's perspective. But so much has happened already. I've supported Missy Elliott and Destiny's Child, and I realise I'm very lucky. But being young doesn't protect you from the streets. I'm glad I was brought up in London because I've learned to be streetwise. These days you have to be." (MD)

'Look Inside' is out now on East West places a song over Jay Z's 'I Just Wanna Luv You' and Mystikal's 'Shake Ya Ass'. 'Nuff said.

Sunshine Anderson

Lunch Or Dinner (East West)

A curious choice of follow up to 'Heard It All Before' from Sunshine Anderson's admittedly patchy latest album. This decidedly midtempo track features a stripped down backing track courtesy of Mike City and showcases Anderson's voca's well, but wasn't the almost Mary J Blige-sounding 'Letting Down My Guard' a more obvious candidate?

Ray J Featuring Pharell Williams

Formal Invite (East West)

Fresh from the Top 10 with his and s'ister Brandy's Phil Collins tribute, Ray J returns with a very strong solo single. Teaming up once again with the omnipotent Neptunes, Pharell Williams joins in on the voca's for the stand out track from Ray J's album. Great stuff.

Luther Vandross

Take You Out Tonight (Remix) (J)

All Star gets on the mix to give Luther's recent single a club edge. This he achieves by replacing the original backing track with the one from Snoop Dogg's last single 'Lay Low'. The result works remarkably well and will be useful for working DJs.

Mariah Carey

Don't Stop (Funkin' For Jamaica) (Virgin)

The second single from Mariah Carey's forthcoming film Glitter is fittingly retro, but will further enforce the feeling that the old tracks she's chosen to sample for this project are a bit too familiar already. In this case it's Tom Browne's 'Funkin' For Jamaica' and not even a guest appearance from Ludacris can breathe life into the affair. Still, it'll probably move a dancefloor.

Romina Johnson

Never Do (Urban Star)

The star of the Artful Dodger hit 'Movin' Too Fast' reappears with a single of her own. The original D-influence production is based on Benny Goulson's 'I'm Always Dancin' To The Music' while Full Crew give things a more street edge. Also included for a good measure is a mellow r&b mix of 'Movin' Too Fast'.

Alicia Keys

Fallin' (Remix) (J)

The very young and very hyped Ms Keys attempts to prove that she's not all froth and no coffee with this piano-led street remix of 'Fallin''. For extra grit, Busta Rhymes and Rampage add their tupeuce worth, but as with her album, it fails to convince.

Neotropic

Sunflower Girl (Ntone)

This little number is a minimal piece of near-ambient music featuring a harmonica, acoustic guitar from ex-Verve man Nick McCabe, and assorted sound effects. Not much really, but by the time the swelling strings roll in a third of the way through, you're hooked in and loving it. A great bit of melancholy sunset music for those special moments when you want to laugh and cry at the same time. (CC)

Singles

Kinobe

Summer In The Studio (Pepper)

A disappointing follow up to 'That Tune In The Beer Ad' sees Kinobe doing three things that chill out artists should never do. These are: 1) going all jazz-funk; 2) sampling a Capta/Heart-style classic ('Summer In The City') and 3) getting in a dodgy MC ("see me buzz with the bees... Please!"). The result is cheesy and laboured. They are trying far too hard to be 'now' and 'commercial' and as a result completely fail to be either. (CC)

Area 21

Sonata For MPC And Moog (Edel)

The first single from what should be an interesting album of modern interpretations of classical pieces, courtesy of Edel Germany (who also own Deutsche Grammophon, the famous classical label). The tune is not ground-breaking but it does its job in a pleasantly soothing way. (CC)

Pedro

Chapel Was My Dream (Melodic)

Pedro lives somewhere in space where downtempo meets twisted electronica and acoustic chill, presumably over a cup of herbal tea. This is a beautiful soundtrack for your life that teases out those dormant emotions without resorting to cheesy pads or piano melodies. It's fine modern music to use when you need to clear your head and find some space. (CC)

Daddy Ous

Hard Like A Rock (Guidance)

This is a long, lazy dub chill thing that just floats about without ever going anywhere in particular. Which is exactly what you want from this kind of tune. Perfect, then. (CC)

The Notwist

Trashing Days (City Slang)

The Notwist are a four-piece band from a village in Bavaria, and the epitome of the current acoustic/indie chill sound. They write fragile songs and record them using the best bits of past and present sounds and technology. So here we hear a banjo duelling with sampled, processed electronica. Great. (CC)

The Underwolves

In The Picture (Jazzanova/Compost)

A three-track EP with the best stuff on the B-side. 'In The Picture' is typical Compost – jazzy, soulful and dancefloor friendly. But on the flip are the more satisfying 'Shaken', remixed deep house style by the super-funky Fauna Flash, and a new, slightly darker mix of the lovely 'Birdsong'. (CC)

Nick Holder

Summer Daze (NRK)

Getting a full UK release at last, 'Summer Daze' became a classic at Body & Soul when it was released in a limited quantity last year. Taking the main hook from Pat Metheny's 'Slip Away' and dropping it over a shuffling house beat, this is possibly one of the most uplifting summer records ever made. Essential. (PM)

Cuica

Percussive One (Arison)

A joint venture between Simone Serritella and DJ Pete Herbert, 'Percussive One' is exactly that, an uptempo Detroit-tinged percussive groove with off-kilter chords, strings and piano. An excellent release which should go down well on more musically adventurous dancefloors. (PM)

Bazeads

Bazeado EP (Mr Bongo)

A Latin EP produced by Mr Hermans's Ben Mitchell. 'Maria' is a laid back samba groove complete with mellow vocals, guitars and parping trombones while 'Mar Cia Foi Samba' is more of a Rio Carnival-style percussive workout. If you're a fan of Brazilian music, this is for you. (PM)

This is, amazingly, the seventh instalment of the 'Freezone' series, lovingly curated as always by DJ Morpheus. He keeps the interest by letting just enough instrumentals roll by

Space Raiders

Brighton indie-chillers named after a nasty-tasting snack

SPACE RAIDERS are Mark Hornby, Martin Jenkins and Gary Bradford. Their superb tune 'Beautiful Crazy' was a highlight of the 'Ibiza By Day' Muzik chill out CD and their new single 'Mr Sunshine' is equally fabulous. They are currently working on a new album with the working title 'Hookers On Pop Street'.

What's the album going to be like?

"Like a funky male voice choir, guided by the spirits of Joey Ramone and Ian Dury. It's like the robot soul of the past, present and future all rolled into one. It's like our last album but better."

Why are there so few actual songs in the world of dance music?

"I reckon it's because they're so hard to write. Different music for verse and chorus, then a middle eight to find. Too much like hard work. We're pushing ourselves, trying to get 90% of the next album to be proper songs, aided by KLF's 'The Manual'."

What are your plans for the future?

"To write a musical, breathe underwater or write the most perfect three-minute pop song." "And your message for the world?" "Melody cures malady".

'Mr Sunshine' is out now on Skint. Space Raiders run a monthly fancy dress night called Margo's at the Hambury Arms in Brighton before slipping in another killer song like Companion Featuring Nicola Hitchcock's amazing 'All Or Nothing'. He even manages to get a couple of deep house ruggels in there without losing the chilled vibe. Nicely done. (CC)

Various Artists

Hi:Fidelity Lounge Volume 3 – Cosmopolitan Grooves (Guidance)

The third volume of this reliable, quality series holds few surprises, but it does the job well enough. It starts with excellent Guidance signing The Dining Rooms' 'M Dupont' and continues with more familiar names like Kinobe, Thievery Corporation and J Walk. If you like your downtempo served chilled with an olive and a little swizzle stick, this is for you. (CC)

Zohar

Onethreeseven (Ark 21)

'Fusion' and 'world music' aren't the coolest words to throw at an album. But don't be afraid, this LP is both those things but it's still 'now' enough to work beautifully. The collision of ideas from east and west, and the mash of club and chill beats with Arab and Jewish vocals leads to some real Balearic treats. Check the soundtrackry 'Elokinu' or the evocative 'The Merciful One' for some real musical emotion. (CC)

Nagisa Ni Te

Songs For A Simple Moment (Geographic)

A most peculiar album that could come under the 'indie chill' banner (just). It's a retrospective of work by a Japanese songwriter/guitarist called Shinji Shibayama. He makes neat melodic songs, often punctuated by huge, wailing guitar solos. Which means it won't be to everyone's taste but does fit perfectly into the current Hoxton prog/soft rock revival vibe [Great! – Ed.]. (CC)

Orchestra Du Soleil

A Summer Day By The Lake (S.H.A.D.O.)

Imagine I Monster making a soundtrack for a soft focus movie about a twisted summer holiday starring Richard and Karen Carpenter and you are half way to understanding the music on this bizarre album. Its ironic, folksy, whimsical strangeness can be a little wearing, but tracks like 'Spiral' and '35 Degrees Celsius' are surely pure genius. (CC)

Stephen Jones

1985-2001 (EasyTiger)

This is a limited edition triple CD of sketches, ideas and imaginary soundtracks put together by Stephen Jones, best known as the voice of Baby Bird, over 15 years of noodling about in the studio. For Baby Bird obsessives and completists (if such people exist) it's a must, but in among the experiments there are some little tracky gems that are perfect sunset moments. (CC)

Irritant

The strange tale of the label with the best-named artist roster ever

"MY NAME is Irritant. I am a record label. I do art. It is for sale. That means you buy it. What you buy from me are ways to facilitate your wildest dreams.

"I need you to buy it so I can live in comfort and style. I like big expensive toys and sexy women, and it is only with your aid that I can reach such a lofty level of affluence.

"Irritant will appeal to everybody. It has been rigorously tested in focus groups, who have responded favourably to its fawning persuasions. You will respond instantly to the magic of my spell. I want to become a household name. I want you to see me as perennially young and hip. I want you to define precisely who you are through me, even if millions of others all over the world are doing so in exactly the same way. I need 'fuck you' money. Then I will be free!"

To celebrate their soon-come world domination, here is a list of Irritant artists who will kick your butt, with two we've made up. But which ones are the cuckoos?

Knifehandchop, Frederik Schikowski, Duran Duran, Jonathan Svärd, Printed Circuit, Deacon Boombastardizer, The Brown Alternative, Random Number, Acting On A Quim, Honey & Kisses, Pissstank, Henry Kissinger War Criminal.

The 'Irritant Number Nine' compilation is out now. See p77 for a review, or www.irritant.com for more info

The Bug

Seismic (Morpheus)
The Bug is Kevin Martin of Techno Animal, returning on a ragga tip with the official fastest MC in the world (so says the Guinness Book Of Records), Daddy Freddy, doing his impressively verbose thing over a tib-rattling dancehall rhythm. The B-side calms things down slightly with Tikiman's gentle insistence that you "love your brother". Rather incongruously, as it happens, as the beats still sound like they're forged from decommissioned Soviet rocket launchers. Fierce. (TM)

Felix Kubin

Jet-Lag Disco (A-Musik)
One of those drinky three-inch CDs from the man who, it is claimed, is in regular clairvoyant contact with Yuri Gagarin, with a peculiar drawing of a three-headed baby on the sleeve and the track titles written in Japanese. Diminutive, devil-worshipping and inscrutable it may be, then, but there's no shortage of ideas, twisted humour and space age Hammond party drinking songs inside. We've said it before and we'll say it again, this man should be famous. (TM)

Various Artists

Karl Marx Stadt (Lux Nigra)
The recently renamed city of Chemnitz in the former East Germany (the Karl Marx Stadt of the title) apparently boasts a thriving hardcore/breakbeat scene. This is a snapshot of its less rave-based, more experimental side. It'll hold few surprises for Aphex Twin aficionados (but then neither does the new Aphex album), but as befits its namesake, it has energy and attitude in spades, not to mention a brilliant gabba track. Braindancers of the world unite! (TM)

Smyglyssna

U Don't Jump Like I Jump (Vertical Form)
Rubbery, loose-limbed electro-funk from this month's second most difficult to spell artist. Henrik Johansson from Sweden, to be precise, who sounds like he's spent every waking hour since the age of eight in front of a computer, but now he's older also likes to get drunk and make a fool of himself, just like normal people. "Every Letter Was A Love Letter" on the B-side is our favourite. (TM)

Various Artists

Swim Team #2 (Swim)
The second compilation (we assume) from Wire man Colin Newman's label is sufficiently good that we can almost forgive him his appearance at Big Black's farewell gig with one of those yucky guitars with no end on it. Almost. The main attractions, of course, are the tracks by Slo. We know they only have one song - but what a song it is. Sterling support comes from Toucaen, Bumpy, Symptoms and the dubbed-out Lobe, among others, all going down smooth as you like, but not giving you that chill out compilation feeling that your brain's being sucked out of your arse. (DB)

Techno Animal

The Brotherhood Of The Bomb (Matador)
Rather making a rod for their own backs, Techno Animal dragged America's Dälek over as support for their recent gig at Cargo and were duly overshadowed by the more subtle and effective blend of noise and shouting that the latter employ. This album is similarly out-maneuvred by labelmate Mr Len this month. Where Techno Animal shout at you till your head hurts, Mr Len locks you in a small room and brainwashes you into a more pliable state. Good in small doses, but simply too one-dimensionally hectoring to be effective as an album. (DB)

Le Tigre

Feminist Sweepstakes (Chicks On Speed)
Two Rot Griffs, with obligatory emaciated-looking Quiet Billoke in tow, making a rather wonderful racket, Le Tigre are like an overtly political version of label owners Chicks On Speed. Whether you find them important or faintly embarrassing probably depends on your age, gender and degree of 'commitment', but what's undeniable is that they have something to say and they say it bangingly, which makes them better than nine tenths of the shit we've heard this month. (DB)

Christian Kleine

Beyond Repair (City Centre Offices)
In many ways a companion album to Arovane's 'Tides' from last year (which Kleine co-wrote and co-produced), 'Beyond Repair' takes a similarly reflective stroll through monochrome ambience, wistful melody and slow, crunchy breakbeats. Familiar pastures, perhaps, but seen with fresh eyes. With its refreshingly uncomplicated approach giving it an almost acoustic feel, it's like the sun suddenly breaking through a thick expanse of dark grey cloud. (TM)

Lali Puna

Scary World Theory (Morr Music)
Coolly understated, metronomic pop music from Germany, with Valerie Trebeljahr's terse, breathy songs fleshed out by members of other coolly understated groops like Console and The Notwist. Fåted by Weatherall (a Two Lone Swordsman remix is forthcoming) and (gulp) Radiohead, this has plenty of what people like to call 'crossover appeal'. In today's featureless PR-pop climate, though, it's not easy to see where they could cross over to. (TM)

Various Artists

Hate You (V/Vm Test)
V/Vm's musical sphincter rarely ceases to emit a foul-smelling, partially digested response to popular culture's most risible excesses. The title track here, for instance, is a scabrous 17-minute take on 'Hey Jude' (geddit?), while Irish newcomer Skkatter makes mincemeat of Madonna's 'Music'. And while turning shit into gold is admirable enough in itself, this is also a round-up of original 'tunes' by similarly disagreeable international 'talent'. It's fucking ace. Obviously. (TM)

Stilluppsteypa

Stories Part Five (Ritornell)
It thrums and plops, it drones and scrapes, it crackles and pops. Ho hum. But two things make this Icelandic trio's latest effort stand out from a billion other grainy glitch-fests: 1) track 11, which is feverishly psychedelic, like waking abruptly from a terrifying dream, and 2) the cover shot, in which they're wearing Ming The Merciless-style shiny capes and gold lamé shorts. Now that's panache. (TM)

Various Artists

The Cosmic Forces Of Mu (Planet J)
If you've been following our advice over the last year or so [insert sarcastic remark here - Ed.] you'll have heard many of Planet J's finest already. If not, here they are again, together at last: spectacular speedcore hip hop from Hellfish, a silly remix of 'Ice Ice Baby' from Bit_Meddler, the underrated 'I can squeeze an entire prog rock double album into five minutes of electronica' sound of Leafcutter John's 'Khom?$', Kid Spatula, Luke Vibert, Venetian Snares... Quality. (TM)

Fad Gadget

The Best Of (Mute)
John Foxx
Metamatic (Edsel)

Two slightly neglected figures from the history of electro-pop. Former Ultravox singer Foxx's 1980 solo debut 'Metamatic' could either be seen as a stark, alienated, futurist precursor to techno, or a load of floppy-fringed, sub-Bowie bollocks about Italian cars and turning into a liquid. We're feeling charitable, so we'll go with the former. Frank 'Fad Gadget' Tovey, meanwhile, spent the early Eighties attracting a following who wanted to see him beat seven shades of shit out of himself on stage. He was happy to oblige, but this did tend to rather overshadow his actual records. But hey - Uncle Mute's put out a double compilation with one CD of his best bits and one of some rather dreadful remixes. 'Ricky's Hand', 'Back To Nature' and a couple of others have all dated rather nicely, thanks... (DB/TM)

Cabaret Voltaire

Conform To Deform (Virgin)
... Which is more than can be said of this. A lavishly packaged box set, it's brimming with B-sides, unreleased bits and pieces and live tracks from the Cabs' Virgin/EMI years. So there's only a crappy live version of 'Sensoria', no 'I Want You', all the dread words 'Francois Kenyorkian Mix' appear twice, and the only outstanding track is 'Sately Zone', the B-side of 'The Dream Ticket'. So that makes it 'a must for completists', as critics often say - as if pandering to transpotters and record shop bores (like us) were a laudable exercise. Fear not though - a proper 'Best Of' is incoming. (DB)

Vital Release

Flanger

Inner Space/Outer Space (Ninja Tune)

Cosmic Seventies jazz, skilfully spiced, digitally dissembled and recklessly re-combulated by Germany's hardest-working laptop jockeys - Alom? (not his real name) and Burnt Friedman. Despite the presence of actual earth-dwelling hominids on vibes, guitar, percussion and sax, this has silicon seeping from every pore, and for jazz purists is about as 'authentic' as Michael Jackson's skin tone. But if Herbie Hancock had been assimilated by the Borg round about 1976, chances are he'd have come up with something as crammed with invention and virtual virtuosity as this. (TM)

HOME LISTENING CHART Fort Lauderdale

1) The Stooges 'Funhouse' LP

Pure, feral emotion committed to tape. Gives me a nihilistic, dangerous white knuckle rush every time I hear it. It's groovy too, and there's so much space in the music. Almost perfect.

2) Alexander 'Skip' Spence 'Oar' LP

If you want to hear what frazzled, drug-addled genius sounds like, check out this record. He recorded it over a weekend in the late Sixties on his release from a mental hospital, sold a few hundred copies, he never did anything again. It has the most venerable, brittle sound, yet is 100% life affirming.

3) King Crimson 'In The Court Of The Crimson King' LP

Out-there, quintessentially English psychedelia, heart soaring Mellotron strings and one of the tightest rhythm sections ever.

4) The Beach Boys 'Smile' LP

Quite simply, this sounds like nothing of this earth. Fat basslines and Hawaiian chanting always make for an interesting combination.

5) Spacemen 3 'The Perfect Prescription' LP

Sounds like The Velvet Underground if they'd lived in a mansion in Rugby in the Eighties. I just never tire of it, it says everything yet nothing at all. They had a motto at the time – 'Taking drugs to make music for people to take drugs to'

6) Eddie Harris 'I Need Some Money' LP

My mum played this to me when I was a little kid. It's some of the most beautiful music I've ever heard. Even though the players are very tight, they express themselves in an incredibly free and funky way which is sheer delight.

7) The Association 'Remember'

An incredibly haunting tune about eternal love which in its subject has never been bettered.

8) Richard Strauss 'Four Last Songs For Voice And Orchestra'

Beautiful music and words about love and death which approaches the subjects not with gloom but with light and beauty.

9) The Music Machine 'Come On In'

Satisfies feelings I've yet to understand inside myself. They're one hell of a band.

10) Elvis Presley 'Trouble'

Perfect blend of music with lyrics – what else could he be saying apart from 'are you looking for trouble?' after that mean brass motif kicks the shit out of everything?

Fort Lauderdale's 'Time Is Of The Essence' album is out now on Memphis Industries

Armand Van Helden

there was a one-off 12-inch, 'Move It To The Left' and percussive Afro-rhythms aplenty were firing from his Circle Children project with the 'Indonesia' and 'Zulu' singles. In 1997 SR released a 'Greatest Hits' double album.

In 1996, Armand reappeared as the Old School Junkies on Henry Street, the highlight of the two twelves being the superbly infectious 'The Funk Phenomena' which was remixed to death in the UK & US. Also in 1996 there was a brief defection to Chicago for two collaborations – 'Hardsteppin' Disko Selection' and 'Psychic Bounty Killaz', with the king of filtered disco-house DJ Sneak, on Relief.

In 1998 Van Helden set up his own Armed record label and released the '2 Future 4 U EP'. This featured the killer track 'You Don't Know Me' which went on to become a massive anthem and a UK Number One. It was followed by the sublime Roland Clark-vocalled 'Flowerz' and tongue in cheek Ibiza anthem 'The Boogie Monster'.

2000 saw the critics divided by 'Koochy', his cut-up of Gary Numan's 'Cars'. There were various other 12-inch releases on Armed, culminating in the LP 'Killing Puritans', a patchy affair with one dodgy heavy metal sample too many for some people's liking.

Despite all this studio work, Armand made his reputation through his remixes. Undoubtedly, his reworkings of Tori Amos' 'Professional Widow' (East West) and CJ Bolland's 'Sugar Is Sweeter' (Internal) launched a wave of imitations and changed the face of UK garage scene, sending demand for his services through the roof in the process. His reputation was cemented with mixes of Nuyorican Soul's 'Runaway' and 'It's Alright I Feel It' (both Talkin' Loud) and the Sneaker Pimps' 'Spin Spin Sugar' (Clean Up). His claim that he won't remix just anybody to fill his bank account seems a little dubious when the roll-call of artists includes 2 Unlimited, Ace Of Base, Bananarama, M People, Rednex, The Rolling Stones, Sash! and The Urban Cookie Collective. . . But would we have him any other way?

WILL the real Van Helden please stand up? Is he a maverick genius or big time chancer? It all depends what day you get him on.

Armand made his debut as Deep Creed in 1992 on Nervous with 'Stay On My Mind' / 'The Anthem', with the aptly-titled B-side being licensed for a UK release. It was followed up by the 12-inch 'Can U Feel It'. There was a further release on the same label as Jungle Juice in 1994 with 'Love's Ecstasy' / 'Egyptian Magician', the latter released in the UK with mixes from Peace Division and Mr C on Eukahouse a couple of years later. These and various remixes were released on Nervous as 'Nervous Tracks' in 1997.

A move to Strictly Rhythm kicked off a fertile period in Armand's career. He found early success under his own name with the 'Witch Doctor EP' in 1994, followed by the funky house classic 'New York Express' as Hardhead and the follow-up 'Demon Dreams'. As Sultans Of Swing,

Buried Treasure Joy Division 'Atmosphere' (Factory)

NOW that New Order have almost become the electronic equivalent of U2, it's worth sparing a few thoughts for the group's hugely influential earlier incarnation, Joy Division. The recorded two classic albums ('Unknown Pleasures' and 'Closer'), but it's 1979's 'Atmosphere' that many will remember as their greatest triumph.

Released a few months before singer Ian Curtis' suicide, 'Atmosphere' still sounds as otherworldly as it did over 20 years ago. Its melancholy synth motif, beautiful bassline and lonely, dejected lyrics served as a blueprint for all that people would later come to love about New Order. Not surprisingly, it wasn't a big pop hit (apart from in New Zealand where, bizarrely, it topped the charts), but it remains one of the most sad, yet strangely comforting songs of its era. Sorrow has rarely sounded so exhilarating. (DM)

£ Armand collectables £

Tori Amos

'Professional Widow' (US Atlantic 12-inch, 1996)

Armand's 'Star Trunk Funkin' Remix' was caned by just about everyone and established AVH as king of the bassline. This teased, swirled and rocked, and it still does today.

20

CJ Bolland

'Sugar Is Sweeter'
(Internal 12-inch, 1996) £20

More of the same from 'Armand's Drum 'N' Bass Mix' of Belgium's king of techno. Hissing hi-hats, meandering bassline and gated vocals lift the roof off once again.

20

Sneaker Pimps

'Spin Spin Sugar'
(Clean Up Promo 2x12-inch, 1997)

Take your pick from 'Armand's Dark Garage Mix' or 'Armand's Bonus Dub', both dark, psychotic, claustrophobic and funky as fuck.

15

Tonja Dantzer

'In And Out Of My Life'
(Ladybird 12-inch, 1994)

Co-produced by Van Helden on this now-defunct house label, this is a tough little vocal number with Todd Terry-style beats. Also released on FFRR.

10

Nuyorican Soul

'Runaway' (Talkin' Loud 12-inch, 1997)

MAW's alter ego featuring India, revamped and reconstructed courtesy of Armand's 11 and a half minutes of charmingly titled 'Mongoloids In Space' madness.

10

Daft Punk

'Da Funk' (US Virgin 12-inch, 1996)

Daft Punk's quirky cartoon house classic is given the 'Ten Minutes Of Funk Mix' it was waiting for on this US-only 12-inch.

10

FAITHLESS

Faithless

'Insomnia' (US Arista 12-inch, 1997)

Two mixes from the man like Van on another US-only 12-inch version of the Cheeky Records classic. 'Armand's Mission To Mars Mix' is the pick of the pair.

Genaside II

'Narramine'
(FFRR promo 2x12-inch, 1997)

Armand's 'West Coast Mix' stays true to the breakbeat flavour of this UK hardcore classic, the original of which is also included here.

10

Old School Junkies Part 2

'The Funk Phenomena: Remixes'
(Henry Street 2x12-inch, 1996) £10

Funky house classic – if you'll pardon the pun – from OSJ, given the full remix treatment from the likes of Kenny Dope and Johnick.

The Mole People

'Break Night'
(Strictly Rhythm 12-inch, 1995)

A tripped-out, tribal, deep house odyssey and one of Van Helden's classic Strictly Rhythm moments.

Oct 10th – Nov 13th

"Cross my palm with silver"

WHAT A CRACKING summer it was. Through a mixture of highs and lows, tears and joy, I've come out with a few minor scratches, several bruises and no marbles. That's what it's all about, innit?

The closure of Home put clubland in a tizz. Big Beat went into receivership and Mean Fiddler bought the lot to add to their growing club empire. Then there was the failure of the Newcastle Love Parade (cheers residents), the fuzz raiding Gatecrasher and finding only 90 tablets (hmm. . . were there no Kids there?). Fatboy Slim boshed Brighton Beach and Paul Oakenfold clattered Clapham Common. And Bank Holidays were filled with three-day benders, boat parties, pool parties, carry-on parties and then of course, the after-parties. Wigs, dresses, black marker pens, video cameras and a house full of nutters. . . I'll say no more.

And then, there was Ibiza. Underwater and Subliminal joined forces and brought us hours of fun and filters, We Love Sundays packed out Space to the point of suffocation (not nice – sort it out) and DC10 provided a special summer line-up. The girls kicked some serious arse this year. Lottie led the way in her inimitable style, Smokin' Jo made a comeback, Sister Bliss did a smashing job on her TV debut and Jo Mills was the undisputed Queen of Eivissa. Go on ladies! There were the endless remixes of KOT's 'Finally', The One's 'Flawless' echoed through every beach bar and X-Press 2's 'Smoke Machine' still sends shivers down your back – or was that just Amnesia's smoke cannon? But that's sadly it for another year. Time for shorter, miserable days and cold long nights. One positive thing I guess is that it'll still be dark when you crawl into bed at 7:30am. Oh joy.

Etch Concorde 2, Brighton

LORDY, it's like the Northern Line in here – but without the sense of soul-crushing desperation, luckily. There are people dancing on the bars, legging it outside for a breather, even a heap of stage invaders – not showing off, just trying to get on the good foot without treading on someone else's. It's Etch's first birthday and seemingly anyone who's ever had a fine old time here has returned to celebrate.

Etch is the brainchild of Mr Scruff and Tru Thoughts label boss Rob Luis, a bit of an unsung hero in these parts. Despite a shaky start – the first Etch was scheduled on the final night of last year's Big Brother – it's become a seaside phenomenon unseen since, ooh, that Boutique thing a few years back. Scruff's own rise in popularity hasn't hurt. He's had Madonna singing his praises this year ("She just said in an interview that she liked my album," he shrugs) and his Manc-based Keep It Unreal night has spread round the country like foot and mouth with less cattle slaughtering.

Brighton's usually a pretty darn chilled town, but Scruff and Etch stir up the kind of reaction you usually only see way, way north of Watford. It's truly apeshit mental till gone three – extraordinary when you think he's playing breakbeat, funk and leftfield stuff rather than your usual quasi-nirvana-inducing prog-trance anthems. Spinning obscure remixes, a wee bit of Latin house, and new stuff from Luis' label, Scruff goes down better than a love-struck groupie.

But that's the Scruff skill, y'see. "If I played the same tunes in a different order everyone'd leave," he claims. But he's evidently the biggest draw down south these days and half of this mob seem to be disciples.

"We've come down from Manchester to hear him play," says one girl fighting for space on – rather than at – the bar. "It's worth it, this is the most fun I've had for ages."

"Hat's entertainment!?!!!!"

Planet Of The Breaks

The Cellar Rooms, Shrewsbury

THERE are portentous clouds gathering round the gothic church spire outside Muzik's hotel window this evening. It's the kind of scene that Austen or Bronte would have attached some kind of lusty emotional significance to. But we content ourselves with remarking that Shrewsbury's the kind of oak beamed, chocolate box town that would make an ideal location for the Antiques Roadshow.

There's not a sniff of the heavily eyebrowed presence of Hugh Scully around though, more's the pity. Not a sniff of anyone around at all in fact, which at 10 o'clock on a Friday evening is rather surreal.

But by the time Muzik finally reaches the Cellar Rooms, everything is simmering quite nicely, thank you. In fact, the venue's awash with attitude-free, grinning youngsters grooving to resident Doddy. For the early part of the evening he dishes out an eclectic slew of rare-as-hen's teeth funk, Grand Central boogie-down beats and full on party hip hop that would rock any block.

Nevertheless the geeks are out tonight. A full 20 minutes before

Tony Vegas and Prime Cuts are due on, there's already a ring of steel around the DJ booth, due to the sheer volume of people desperate to catch a glimpse of the two Scratch Perverts playing out this evening.

And you can't blame 'em. The two deck-bound deviants decimate the venue with the kind of dexterity that could only possibly have sprung from a supremely maladjusted adolescence playing with records rather than talking to girls. But it's paid off for 'em. When Ganja Kru's 'Super Sharp Shooter' blasts out – yes, they're as adept at spinning jungle as they are breakbeat or hip hop – cut to within an inch of its life, people stop dancing and simply gasp at each other, all with the same 'how the fuck?' expression on their faces. It doesn't matter how. You'll never be able to. Be thankful that the Perverts can and the Planet Of The Breaks is where they did it.

Scream!

Scream! at The Rock, Frogmore Street, Bristol.
0117-927-9227. 9pm-4am/6am. £10-£8

SCREAM! is the latest brainchild of Louis Gee and Dan Prince, the promotion team which helped establish both Sundissential and Slinky. Although typecast by some locals, promoter Louis is keen to point out that it's not an exclusively hard house night.

"Scream! provides a diverse mix of all genres with the main focus simply on quality," he says, and indeed, a high standard has already been set, with Julesy, Mauro Picotto, Fergie and Boy George making recent appearances. Louis also enthuses about the club's dress code – "make an effort and focus on style. Sportswear is a big no-no, as is the 'straight-from-the-boozers' look." The promoters also aim to veer away from tacky clubbing garments. Put simply, no Hilfiger, no lightsticks.

Although only six months old, Scream! already commands a large and feverishly loyal fanbase. Clubbers enjoy the spacious freedom offered by several rooms, which include an 850-capacity main arena, The Star Bar (for US vocal house) and the more sedate Cabot Bar. In the main arena tonight, Galaxy 101's Paul Conroy warms up the crowd with a fine selection of percussive house, leaning towards trance at the climax of his set, to herald the appearance of Scott Bond.

The Gatecrasher resident launches straight in to some electro-flavoured chunky cuts before moving on to his more recognisable, anthemic style. This development encourages much hand-waving action from the Bristolian throng packing out the sizeable dancefloor. Bond does occasionally take one step too close to the Cheddar Gorge, but to Muzik's relief, he does revert back to a more minimal vibe before Dan Pearce and The Saint enter and speed things up with their selection of pumping tracks.

Meanwhile, a more cosmopolitan crowd is inhabiting the Star Bar, where Amos Nelson's seamlessly mixed US funky house set encourages dancing in all areas of the lengthy room. So Scream! with delight at the variety on offer in this club, then admire the quality. Class.

Kinobe

Live at Cargo, Rivington Street, London. September 19th 2001.

PERHAPS it's when guest vocalists and romantic indie types Ben & Jason swagger on stage in nice suits and bad haircuts, looking like a pair of estate agents out to celebrate clinching the commission on the sale of a swanky Mayfair pad.

Or maybe it's when keyboard-bashing scruffpot Blackie decides, halfway through proceedings, to ditch what, for the early part of the evening, has been meandering Open University nature programme soundtrack progger, and head into some clumsy hip hop.

Or, perhaps, even, it's when the other guest vocalist Sandy stretches out her arms while warbling newie 'Butterfly' in a ludicrously over-emotional fashion that recalls a slightly overweight South Shields housewife 'doing' Elaine Paige on Stars in Their Eyes. But whatever the precise moment, this evening makes it absolutely clear that, in a live context, Kinobe suck arse.

Having slipped out their debut album, 'Soundphiles', last year to almost blanket disinterest, Kinobe have been revived by the healing power of a lager ad, and their second album 'Versebridgechorus' is about to drop. But that doesn't stop tonight's set from being confused and jumbled. With between eight and 11 musicians crammed onto Cargo's diminutive stage at any one time, there's apprehension in the audience as to what might happen if the frugging gets too animated – violin bows in peoples' eyes or flutes up noses, perhaps. But just let something exciting happen, PURLEASE.

But hey – towards the end, something does, in the shape of MC Skeleton. A skinny bugger, as his name might suggest, he cartwheels on stage looking even closer to death than Stereo MC soap dodger Rob Birch. He proceeds to skillfully inject a heap of hip hoppery into proceedings, even if the results do sound like a cross between Twyford Down warriors Galliano and long forgotten Brit-hoppers Honky. But amateurish as it may be, it's at least more entertaining than the preceding 45 minutes of dub-tinged bluntery and gloopy funk.

Recorded Live in Boston...

These are:- Cellnet 8785 - Orange 1111 - Vodafone 3333 - OneZone 1210 Virgin 7990 - Orange & Vodafone users - If you have never changed your default Pin you will need change it before ordering your 'celebrity' voicemail - do this by dialling your voicemail & selecting the appropriate options)

Global Dance

Guernsey, August 25th

Global Dance promoter Miguel was so overcome by the whole affair when we were there that he pillaged the freezer and the office for anything he could get his hands on, sprung onto the dancefloor and... just gave it away! Go on, have it! Take it now!

He wasn't the only one who lost it. In fact all 500 of us were having trouble holding it down in one way or another.

Bedroom Bedlam DJ K yet again proved he gets closer to the truth than most. Marc Vedo produced one of his best performances and resident Paul Lorraine complemented them both admirably, yet it's the crowd we should thank for an awesome night. See you at Christmas!

Sugarshack

@ Empire, September 14th

There's a hullabaloo surrounding Futureshock, tonight's guests, at the moment. The glowstick fraternity were out in force to hooray their heroes and the Empire's cavernous interior only added to the spectacle. From insanely beautiful to disgustingly filthy, Futureshock rocked the spot, holding it back and letting it go time and time again. There are other reasons to visit Sugarshack, however. Ten years at the top have left it with a fantastic reputation. Only recently they enticed music meister Tenaglia up to the north east – no mean feat. Sugarshack is to the north east what Fabric is to London.

Scream

@ the Rock, Bristol, Aug 24th

Bristol, the epicentre of south west clubbing, customarily bursts its seams on the weekend and while many head for the plethora of bars and fairground attractions in town, at least 1,000 head for Scream. That's where we found ourselves – and then lost ourselves again – the other night. Anne Savage, guest of honour, was on more than good form and while we're sometimes dubious about the harder side of things, we couldn't help but feel compelled to join in the gaiety. Several hours later, back aching, we retired to the bar to discuss Scream's very lovely current advert, which features an amply proportioned topless lady of mature appearance. Tasteful!

Surfing the internet and the airwaves with Jazzy M

words Phil Benedictus photos Christopher Sims

IF VIDEO KILLED the radio star, then someone forgot to tell Jazzy M. The man who introduced house music to UK radio on his seminal Jacking Zone show on London's LWR is still rocking the airwaves – and now cyberspace – every Friday afternoon, from 4-6pm on Ministry Of Sound Radio (www.ministryofsound.com).

Times may change, but Jazzy is an enduring figure. From his pioneering radio shows, Vinyl Zone record shop and Oh!Zone record label (original home of Orbital's 'Chime') to his epic residency at Ministry (over six years now), he has been a rock in the fickle waters of clubland. So what better person to talk us through the latest developments in music broadcasting?

"The internet is obviously the way forward, it is the future," Jazzy opines. "Actually, it's not so much the internet as digital broadcasting. Let's get that straight, because it can actually get quite confusing."

Jazzy's pirate radio background had left him ill-prepared for modern studio equipment like headphones

"There are two ways to listen to the internet: with a digital tuner, or by logging onto the station on the web – in my case, Ministry Of Sound. You go to the radio broadcast part of the web site, and as long as you've got Windows Media 7, you can pretty much log on and listen to 24 hour dance music."

What's more. . .

"You can get some nice speakers now for your PC, or if you're privileged enough to have a Mac, you can get some Harman JBLs, even with a sub bass system and you can listen to a perfectly clear digital broadcast, 24/7."

Yep, while record company executives sit, wracking their scheming brains for ways to make music sales on the internet profitable and free from 'piracy', the infant digital broadcasters are staking their turf, and software houses are only too happy to sell picks and shovels to the punters. Simply visit this easy-to-remember web address – www.microsoft.com/windows/windowsmedia/en/default.asp – and, yes, the Devil's own company will provide you with the rather wonderful Microsoft® Windows Media™ Player 7.1, for FREE! It runs on Windows 98, Windows 2000 or Windows ME and lets you use your PC as a CD player, audio and video player, media jukebox, media guide, internet radio, cuddly toy, food processor, audio CD burner and a means to transfer music files to portable devices such as pocket PCs. This is mass market and we are only witnessing the beginning of it.

And you don't have to huddle like geeky head-noddors around your PCs. These on-line broadcasts can be plucked out of the ether with a DAB (Digital Audio Broadcast) receiver – and that could be a hi-fi component, car radio or even, in the future, a mobile phone. The snag is that this technology is quite expensive at the moment. The engineer for Ministry Of Sound's radio station reckons it's impossible to buy a decent hi-fi DAB tuner for under £200. That's a bit daft seeing as most internet stations focus on often young, niche audience groups, who are unlikely to have the dosh to splash on flashy electronic components. But these prices can only drop. For more information, check out the website for the World Forum For Digital Audio Broadcasting, at www.worlddab.org/index.html. It's a pretty informative site which gives a good overview of what products are available.

Jazzy responds to a listener's request for 'Since You've Been Gone' by Rainbow

"With a digital set-up I can pretty much control my whole show. I only need an engineer to log me on and off"

The action end of broadcasting is devastatingly high-tech as well and if you thought the receiver was pricey then brace yourself. The studio and kit enabling MOS to put out digital broadcasts cost around £100,000. The most expensive, sophisticated, and crucial bit of kit is a big fuck-off computer: a Computer Concepts DCS system. It holds all the music, jingles, etc and allows you to play in tracks for a 'scheduler' which arranges and mixes them (although many DJs like Jazzy still prefer to mix live in their shows). This passes the musical signal to a streaming PC then onto the DAB transmitter, which pumps the sounds out into the airwaves.

It's all a far cry from the stations where Jazzy M learned his trade.

"We used to do the show from flats in places like North Peckham Estate, with crack dealers or whatever just down the way from you. Battersea, Crystal Palace, really kind of hardcore, police no-go areas. Very, very dangerous. I used to conceal my tunes in one of my mother's big shopping bags along with some weapons, just in case. Because I was always on from nine till midnight, and you never knew exactly who'd be waiting for you.

"They were crazy days, dangerous days, but to be honest with you, to have got to where I am now, I am glad I went through them. They were such good fun. The studio used to have plastic decks, crappy cassette recorders, it was all very, very, very replaceable equipment because of the possibility of the DTI coming and busting your studio. Later, the set-up evolved to what is called a microwave link, where they bounce the signal from the studio where you're broadcasting to another studio and on from there. So instead of actually broadcasting from the flat where you were playing, you would actually broadcast from somewhere much higher up, perhaps in the Crystal Palace area which is why we always chose locations near that area."

Ministry Radio is a different DJ experience all round for Jazzy.

"If you go into Radio 1 or Kiss, or anywhere that has the proper broadcasting desk, then normally most DJs will have a producer. Here I can pretty much control my whole show. I only need an engineer to log me on when I start my show and log me off when I go, because it is all virtually working around a computer, rather than working around a huge radio desk."

And while there are still moments when Jazzy wishes he had another set of hands, generally he revels in the extra degree of control he has in the virtual radio station. He's also been "astounded" by the quantity of e-mails he receives, as well as where they come from.

"It's a global show and you have to get it into your brain that you're not just talking to London, like I used to when I was on Kiss or a pirate station. It's global. So when I do a time check, I always say 'UK time' because somebody's e-mailing you from Alaska or Wisconsin or wherever it is that they are, and they're in a different time-zone."

But surely he's had to put up with some pretty weird e-mails, as the internet and weirdos go together like kids and drugs?

"No, I haven't had any real freaks, which given the reputation of the internet as the home of freaks and freaky conversations is not bad. But I've had some great fun with e-mails, where we've actually had people e-mailing in from different areas. For instance, we once had a battle between Chicago and Atlanta. People were coming on from Atlanta saying 'this is the best party area' and people from Chicago saying 'no, you've gotta be joking, check down South', etc. They were having a right go at each other and I'm in the middle,

The Psion DAB Wavefinder Tuner

DAB PC Receivers plug into PCs and allow you to listen to your preferred digital radio programmes and access data services. All functions are controlled via your PC.

reading out these different e-mails, until finally someone says, 'What the hell – it doesn't matter where you're from!' It is great fun having people who are in your show, but who geographically are nowhere near you. And I like stirring the pot, getting them going."

This summer, Jazzy has been getting them going left, right and centre; on the radio, at Pacha, in Ibiza, and with his new mix CD, '7 Live Compilation' on DMC. And when things 'calm down' (when he restricts himself to merely holding down a radio show, Ministry residency and innumerable gigs) he is going to get back in his recording studio and resurrect his legendary OHZone label.

Oh, and there's his 'Headliners Compilation CD' for Ministry, slated for release in October. Ever enthusiastic, Jazzy has moved with the times and the times have been kind. The joyous naivete of the first summer of love may be long gone now, but Jazzy is philosophical.

"If dance music wasn't such a big deal 'product', I most probably wouldn't be having a comfortable life, where I'm actually making a living out of it. I want to go on and become a producer and a big radio broadcaster, than I can die a happy man.

"At the end of the day, without commercialisation, you can't really live on it, whereas in days of old, when we were young and bold, you could live quite easily on maybe £100 a week, going back home to your mother's house. I am certainly not going to sit here and agree with all things commercial, but I am also not going to disagree either and look like some two-faced prat who's actually earning good money out of it and driving a very nice car around, thank you very much. Know what I mean?"

Sure do. Jazzy M is playing on a computer near you, soon. Get in the zone!

1980s 1990s 2000s

Over the course of several decades most things evolve, professional quality DJ turntables on the other hand have remained virtually unchanged since the late seventies. That is, until now.

Boss SP505

ROLAND offshoot Boss are back with this new sampling workstation. Its 15,000-note sequencer has the usual comprehensive set of Roland sample-processing effects. However, rather than just offering phrase sampling, like recent units, it has a limited multi-sampling capability – albeit only with a maximum eight-note polyphony.

You also have banks of synth, drum and bass sounds and a standard maximum sampling time of 124 seconds in mono or 62 seconds in stereo. This can be expanded up to a stonking 66 minutes with a 128Mb memory card.

Graphic waveform editing and sample re-pitching is possible via the LCD display, which also permits the operation of the Recycle-like Sample Chop function.

Definitely one for drum & bass nut nuts.

↓ SMOOTH, WARM & TONED

DBX Mini-Pre Microphone Pre-Amp

IF you wanna add some warmth and sultry tone to your vocals, this one's for you. Over the last 30 years dBX have established a reputation for first class professional signal processing and this product lives up to that.

The Mini-Pre offers classic dBX tube microphone pre-amp tone, portability and affordability. It has uncompromising and crystal clear, high band width, and low noise circuitry, and also features selectable 48 volt phantom power, -20 dB pad and a phase reverse switch. Nice.

In short, this new vacuum tube mini pre-amp has all the features that you could want or expect, but at a price that you would have been unthinkable a few years ago.

Steinberg Voice Machine

STEINBERG have developed a nice bit of software for VST in both Mac and PC formats. The Voice Machine consists of two new real time voice effect tools. The VM Generator allows you to work with your voice in the same way that you would use an instrument and, therefore, you can create the Mormon Tabernacle Choir in minutes. The unfortunately named VD Generator can create up to four additional voices, triggered via MIDI. At last that hip hop cover of Bohemian Rhapsody you've always wanted to do is a possibility. Bismillah!

Samson Airline UHF Wireless System

THIS one's for all you serious MCs out there. The wireless microphone system was originally developed to eliminate cables and to provide its user with unlimited freedom of movement. The Airline, however, takes this concept to a new level with transmitters so small, lightweight and aerodynamic that they are nearly invisible. It provides a completely hassle-free user experience. The Airline totally eliminates the need for belt packs and is run on a single AAA battery. Oh my gosh!

Vinyl Touch Classic

THE Vinyl Touch Classic stabilises the key of any record played on your turntable. You can speed records up or down as much as you like, even nudge or slow down the platter with your hands and the Vinyl Touch Classic will correct the resulting key change in real time. If you WANT to change the key of a track, switch to the Bend mode and you can use the pitch control to change the key.

Pioneer's CDJ 1000 takes CD mixing into the 21st Century

BONG! BONG! BONNGG! Thus tolls the death knell for DJing as we know it. Think Dad's Army siren in the background and newsreel voiceover:

"The decade-long war between vinyl and CD has been violently interrupted by the unveiling of a secret weapon in the Digital Army's arsenal. Yes, the dominance of the vinyl turntable as the DJ's premier tool has finally been seriously challenged – some might say usurped entirely, by the arrival of Pioneer's CDJ-1000 Digital Deck, billed as a new generation in DJ technology."

Run for cover boys, the fallout from this one could be disastrous.

Change, in the world of the DJ, is always feared. On the one hand, we are taking part in a technological revolution, with improved decks, mixers, FX units, record bags, stylis and cartridges. On the other, we still cling like old lovers to dear old Vicky Vinyl, tried and tested, solid and true, like the romantic and sentimental nostalgia junkies we really are.

"Nah, you can't use CDs. They sound naff when you scratch 'em, you can't cue them up by looking at the grooves, they sound too clean, you don't get no warmth, they don't feel right, blah blah blah. . ."

Oh, but you can now my friends, you can now. Where, before you read 'nostalgic vinyl buffs' now just read 'lazy, technophobic, tweed-wearing antiques dealers'. Searching, like Dali's Pharmacist Of Ampurdan, for absolutely nothing. Digging up bones in the desert of a parched and dying technology. All around us the world makes huge leaps and bounds in communications, travel, medicine, and leisure, yet we still draw lovingly on a bygone era, with our two turntables and a mixer, as if piecing together a Viking Longboat we've unearthed at Sutton Hoo.

The first thing that will strike you when you look at the CDJ-1000 (and the reason why it will be accepted by turntablists worldwide) is that it's based on a Technics-type deck. It's chunky and sits on four round feet – unlike the initial effort from Pioneer, the CDJ, which is five years old, too small and doesn't look right. It's got 'the world's biggest jog dial' on the top, making it look a bit like a turntable. There's a pitch fader on the right and a start/stop button on the left. So it looks right. A good place to start, I'm sure you'll agree.

"They sound naff when you scratch 'em."

They did sound naff but now you have a brand new 'Vinyl' setting as well as the old CDJ setting. It's not clear why they included the CDJ setting as it is crappy, disjointed digital starting and stopping. But with the 'Vinyl' setting on the jog wheel it just sounds like you're scratching. Period. You can use the finger grooves around the outside or use the touch-sensitive top surface for different techniques and basically it works. You can also use the jog dial's turntable-like feature to cue, pitch-bend and back-spin, just like vinyl. The light display on the wheel shows you where the laser is on the disc, like a needle on a record, so you can judge your scratching cue points, etc, by 'looking at the groove'.

Also (and this is a big Also) there is a wave display meter thing which reads every track on the CD and shows it to you as a graph. This means you can cue up a tune by reading the graph as you can see where the break points are quite easily and use them as a mixpoint. The zoom facility gives you more detail. It's really not very complicated.

As we're now in the digital domain, you can also store cue and loop points on a removable MMC memory card, just like saving your position in a Playstation game. The 16MB of memory enables you to store cue and loop points and graphic track maps for up to 10,000 CDs. You're never going to need all that, but it is cool to be able to store a few sets worth of cue and loop points that you know are good and then just dress your set up with live FX and your usual high standard of mixing.

Three 'Hot Cue' buttons are also included to use like a sampler – you can tap in a loop or a cue for vocals or a break or something and then drop it in at any time during a mix. If you cock-up the loop entry point when you tap it in and miss the beat you want because you're a talentless, butter-fingered loser, you can adjust the start and end time of the loop in real time (as you're hearing it) until the loop is smooth. It's a basic and useful sampler to play with and, again, is not complicated to operate.

Tempo control is a major plus on this box too. Just like on a normal deck, you've got your pitch fader. However, on a vinyl deck, as you speed the tune up, the pitch always gets higher (er, hence the name pitch fader). On the CDJ 1000, if you like the pitch you're at you press the 'Master Tempo' button and you can speed up or slow down the track without changing its tuning, effectively time-stretching the entire track in real time! Normally this sort of feature tends to sound shit, with the sound quality getting a bit fucked, but it actually works on this sucker.

words JULES BROOKES

No, it's not a spaceship from Blake's 7, it's the CDJ 1000 from Pioneer

If you're extreme with the fader, you will get a nasty reverb-y effect but if your tunes are in the same tempo ballpark to begin with, the quality is fine. This is something that plug-in effects for sequencers don't always manage very well and it's a feature Pioneer are justifiably proud of.

The BPM of each track is displayed automatically in the display window and it shows any adjustments you make to it as you make them. If you change the tempo but then want to make it normal again, just press 'Tempo Reset' and voila.

Also very importantly, if someone bangs into your deck while wildly freaking out to your set, there will be no jump. There is a 16-second buffer time, which means that you could pick it up and shake it around a bit without affecting the sound. Though why you would want to do that is another question.

There's probably a bit more to it, but your eyes must be glazing over by now – I know mine are. Anyway, I think the point has been made. It'll probably start being used as an addition to a couple of vinyl decks for the next few years but once we get our dinosaur brains around the concept, CD decks in general are sure to supersede the venerable old wheels of steel. That is, unless another medium really takes over for playing tunes out and sends CDs the way of vinyl. What's that you say? MP3 players for live DJing? It'll never catch on. . .

Errol Brown

The former Hot Chocolate man on Caddies, The Full Monty and kickin' it with John Lennon (momentarily)

So, 'Heaven's In The Back Seat Of My Cadillac (2001)'. Are you pleased with it?

I'm very pleased with it. Obviously I'm pleased with the original, but you've heard the dance mixes, yes? Well, I can't say I'm a great judge of what's a great house track or a great trance mix, but it sounds good. My daughter likes it and she's 19, which is interesting. It's all a bit over my head, really.

There's a garage mix on there too. Are you a fan of garage?

What happens with garage and me is that I hear it around the house all of the time. Some of it I like. I like the groove and the vibe and feel of it. Some of it I find too tough.

So we won't see you on the floor in Ayia Napa?

You might. I still like to boogie.

On your album you do a cover of 'Unpretty' by TLC. Did you have to change the lyrics?

Not at all. Well, I think one.

But isn't it a bit of a 'laydeez' song?

The thing is, it reminded me of when I was a teenager when I felt very unattractive. I just loved the words and even a lyric about make-up, which you might say is a woman's lyric, it's about covering yourself when you still feel unpretty on the inside. I just loved those words, which is why I wanted to do a version of it.

The Full Monty: A good thing or a bloody great albatross you wish you'd never got involved in?

It can never be a bad thing, something like that, to write a classic song like 'You Sexy Thing'. When I first picked up a guitar, if somebody had told me I was going to write a song that people would still love so many years later, I would have bitten their hand off. It's something that everywhere I go, even if people don't know me, they know that song and you can't knock that. And the film helped bring it back around.

Does that officially make 'You Sexy Thing' the most successful thing you've ever done?

It's definitely the most successful record I have ever made, and the most successful for Hot Chocolate. For me it's not necessarily the best, but I think a lot of songwriters might say that about their most successful songs.

Have you done anything weird with the profits, like plough them all into crop circle research?

Ha ha. I've got better things to do with my money! The profits are there for when it all ends.

When will that be?

Well I'm a musician, so I can pitch up a mic and sing wherever. I don't need to do the pop star bit like a lot of people. I live to play music and sing and that's what I've done to survive and what I'll keep on doing.

Hot Chocolate were signed to Apple Records. Any Beatles anecdotes to share?

What was amazing about that was that I remember going into Apple, and I went from being somebody who was just a great fan, to being invited into the Beatles' headquarters. I went in and it was just as I expected. All the lights were low and it was very mystic, and there was incense burning. John went past and said "good luck", but I'm afraid that was all I saw of him.

You're one of the UK's most famous baldies. Are you a natural bald or is it fake?

Half and half. At the age of 19 I'd started to thin out at the front, and when I started singing I knew I wasn't going to look at all hip like that, so I pre-empted the baldness by deciding to have it all off. It was quite unique at the time. I remember there was only one other singer who had it, and that was Isaac Hayes. Then one time I spotted this guy in a shop who had his head shaved and I thought, 'Oh no, there's another one!' But it turned out to be Isaac Hayes, so that was okay.

Do women want to rub their hands over your cranium the whole time? I'm afraid so. Even people who know me can't resist it.

Have you ever owned a Cadillac?
Yes, I had a green Eldorado. That was where I got the idea for the song.

And was heaven on the back seat of it?

Ha! Sometimes, yes...

You were in a band called Hot Chocolate and you've advertised it on TV. Do you actually drink it?

I've made many people laugh over the years when I've been on tour and gone out with friends after a show. We'd come back having had too much to drink and I'd always ring room service and order a ham sandwich and a hot chocolate. And the waitresses used to kill themselves when they came up with the order.

Rock 'n' roll!

You'd be surprised. Nowadays I only drink it on the road, because it settles the alcohol. There's a good tip for you.

The single 'Heaven's In The Back Seat Of My Cadillac (2001)' is out on Universal on November 26th. The album 'Still Sexy' is out now
